STORY OF THE PLAY

Seth Barrett, a young lawyer, is running for district attorney against David Conant, a political "boss" of long standing. Conant is incensed at Seth's refusal to withdraw his name from the ticket. Being unscrupulous and unrelenting toward those who thwart his purpose, he commands Seth, who is desperately in love with his daughter, Helen, to cease paying his attentions to her. Seth, early in his college career, saw a few washcoats and became acquainted with gay Broadway and its habits. He soon awoke to the folly of it all and quite forgets the incidents associated with that period. In some way, however, Conant learns of this, and negotiates with an actress, who knew Seth at this
