"LET HIM LIVE."

(New York Paper) As long as the flowers their perfume give, So long I'd let the Kaiser live, Live and live for a million years With nothing to drink but Belgian (tears)

With nothing to quench his awful thirst, But the salted brine of a Scotchman's curse. I would let him live on a dinner each day, Served from silver on a golden tray, Served with things both dainty and sweet, Served with everything—but things eat.

I would make him a bed of silken sheen, With costly linens to lie between, With covers of down and fllets of lace And dowdy pillows piled in place; Yet when to its comfort he would yield, It would sink with the rot of the battlefield, And blood, and brain and bones of men Should cover him, smother him and then— His pillow should cling with the rotten clay.

Clay from the grave of a soldier boy; And while God's stars their vigils keep, And while the waves the white sands sweep, He should never, never sleep. And through all the days—through all the years, There should be an anthem in his ears, Ringing and singing and never done From the edge of light to the set of sun.

Moaning and moaning and moaning— wild A ravaged French girl's child, And I'd build him a castle by the sea As lovely castle as ever could be, Then I'd show him a ship from over the sea, As fine a ship as ever could be, Laden with water, cold and sweet, Laden with everything good to eat, Yet scarce does she touch the silvered sands.

Scarce may he reach out his eager hands— That a hot and hellish molten shell Should change his Heaven into Hell, And though he'd watch by the wave swept shore, Our Lusitania would rise no more.

"No Man's Land," where the fish fell, I'd start the Kaiser a private Hell, I'd jab him, stab him, give him gas And in each wound I'd pour ground glass; I'd march him out where the brave boys died, Out past the lads he crucified, In the fearful gloom of his living tomb, There is one thing I'd do before I was through, I'd make him sing in a stirring manner, The wonderful words of "The Star Spangled Banner."

PATRIOTISM. Breathes there a man with soul so dead, Who never to himself hath said, This is my own, my native land, Thousands upon thousands of men have met untimely deaths during the past four years; never has the love of home and country called for such a sacrifice. Patriotism does not begin nor end with war. We cannot all serve on the battlefield—but we can be as truly patriotic in looking after the welfare of our countrymen here at home.

There is an enemy in our midst— consumption. Lurking in unsuspected places, it seeks but a foothold to drag its victims down to death. Surely it is a true test of love of country to devote our energies and our means towards exterminating such a foe.

We have just learned of a family, once quite comfortable, now in the grip of poverty and misery. The father developed consumption; after a lingering illness that exhausted their savings, he died; leaving the mother and four little ones penniless—worse still, all the children have contracted the same disease. This case is not exceptional, family after family is suffering a similar fate.

The Munkoka Free Hospital for Consumption—the pioneer in the war against the Great White Plague—impeds your active help to carry on its work. Consumption can be cured if taken in time. Must the light be lost for lack of funds?

"If I Could Only Be Strong and Healthy Like Other Girls."

THIS is the longing of the girl who is pale, weak and anemic. She is lacking in energy and strength, and is so easily tired out that she does not feel like taking outdoor exercise or joining others in social gatherings.

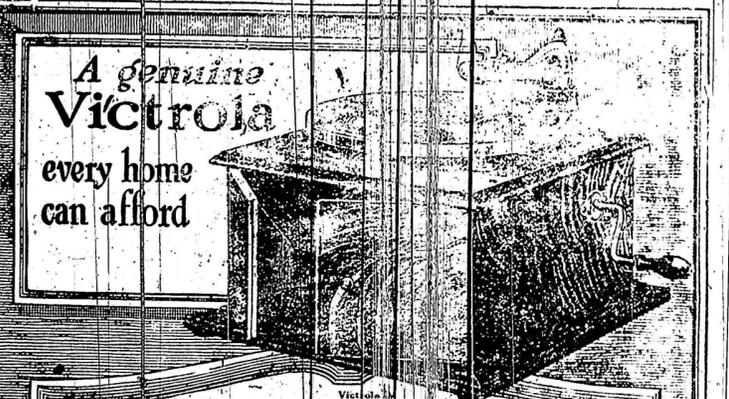

The healthy, happy outdoor girls get in the way of leaving her to herself and she gets lonely, discouraged and dependent. The source of trouble is in the condition of the blood, which has become thin and watery, and utterly lacking in nutritive qualities.

The anemic condition is shown in the pallor of the face, the gums and the eyelids, as well as in the pale face and angular form.

Nature has provided for the purifying of the blood by having it sent to the lungs periodically to come in contact with the fresh air and to be renewed.

Unfortunately this form of nature has been defeated by human beings living too long in cities and by eating over and over again the same kind of food, and by neglecting to take a new and more healthful diet as well as a reason for its continuation.

The blood cells die, thicken and more and more of the human system is affected.
