BRITISH RAILWAY STRIKE SETTLED BY A COMPROMISE

Government Offers to Continue Present Wage Scale For Twelve Months Instead of Six, the Union of Railwaymen to Resume Work at Once.

London, Oct. 5.—With dramatic suddenness in the quiet of the London Sunday afternoon, it was announced to a knot of people waiting in Downing Street that the great railway strike, which appeared to have brought the country almost to the brink of revolution, was settled, and that the strikers would resume work as quickly as possible.

The terms of the settlement are in the nature of a compromise. The National Union of Railwaymen agrees to call off the strike, and the Government consents to a renewal of the negotiations, the continuance of the existing wage scale for another year, instead of six months, as previously offered, and the establishment of a minimum wage of 51 shillings, while the cost of living is 110 per cent. above the pre-war level.

The settlement was the result of a long conference to-day between a Trade Union delegation, including representatives of the Railwaymen's Union, and Premier Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law in the famous conference room in Downing Street. Prior to the conference was a Cabinet meeting.

It is common ground on all sides that the settlement, the outcome of the moderated but determined effort of the executive of the Transport Workers' Federation and men like Arthur Henderson and John Robert Clynes, who throughout have set their faces steadily against the idea of a sympathetic strike until every possible avenue of mediation had been explored.

The official terms of settlement of the railwaymen's strike are as follows:

1. Work shall be resumed immediately.

2. Negotiations will be resumed on the understanding that they shall be completed before the end of the year.

3. Wages will be stabilized at the present level until Sept. 30, 1920, and any time after Aug. 1 they may be reviewed in the light of circumstances then existing.

4. No adult railwayman in Great Britain shall receive less than 51 shillings per week while the cost of living is 110 per cent. above the pre-war level.

5. The Railway Union agree that the men will work harmoniously with all men who returned to work or who remained at work during the strike, and shall there be any victimization of strikers.

6. Arrears of wages will be paid on resumption of work.

The people of Britain, particularly those of London, will long remember the past ten days as the most remarkable experience, apart from the war, of their day. Nothing except the air raids has ever so disorganized the normal life of the country.

CLEAR FOODSTUFFS FROM DOCKS

British Government to Retain Lorry Service.

London, Oct. 6.—An important ally to the railway strike will be the elimination of the congestion of British docks and railways which ever since the war has been the subject of serious public complaint and has been largely responsible for the failure of proper distribution to dealers of foodstuffs.

The London newspapers have pointed out that the organization which so successfully maintained supplies during the strike could speedily remove congestion, and the Government acted promptly on this suggestion, announces to-night the retention of the lorry service for this purpose.

Citizens Make Reeve Salute the Flag

Swift Current, Sask. Oct. 6—P. [illegible] Jessen, Reeve of the rural municipality of Rush Lake, was taken in charge by the citizens following the departure of the Prince of Wales and refused to salute the flag and sing "Save the King." The alleged action of Jessen which caused the trouble was his neglect to bare his head when he stood on the reception platform as the band struck up the National Anthem. Chief Inspector Miller of Scotland Yard, who is with the Prince's party, reprimanded him.

WESTERN TOWNS GREET THE PRINCE

Medicine Hat Welcomes Him With a Tower of Flaming Natural Gas.

A despatch from Swift Current, Sask., says:—Saskatchewan on Friday welcomed the Prince of Wales back from the West, and the enthusiasm of the smaller communities along the way bore witness to the Prince's popularity here. At Maple Creek, Tompkins, Gull Lake and Swift Current, the Royal party made short stops, to find nearly all the population out to greet the Prince.

Inspections of veterans and presentations of medals were performed at the bigger towns. Medicine Hat on Friday welcomed the Prince with a tower of flame, a pocket of natural gas was ignited, and, as the Prince's automobile reached it, millions of feet of gas went up in flame over his head.

The Royal party will spend Saturday morning in Moose Jaw and the week-end in Regina.
