A Breeder's Problem.

There are many who do not believe very strongly in a careful, scientific breeding. There are many seven cows that are enormous producers, both in quality and quantity of milk. Then, there are many pure-bred cows that are poor producers. A case has come to the notice of a pure-bred cow which produced about twelve thousand pounds of milk in a year, mated with a bull whose dam produced eleven thousand pounds in a year, and the result was a daughter which was capable of producing less than six thousand pounds of milk in a year. Is it because of occurrences like this that some dairy farmers look with some suspicion on scientific breeding of dairy cows?

The principle of selection, which is the backbone to scientific breeding, is well shown in a recent article in a newspaper's column on dairy breeding. In such cases, should there be any fault? The fault was not necessarily in the intelligent breeder, but will see to it in his pedigree to select to the best advantage the best qualities in the stock, and to avoid the bad qualities. The dairyman should have a good stock. There is a market for the skins of a good dairy animal, especially a pure-bred.

I am sure that a good deal of the value added to the market value of the stock is due to the fact that the animal is well bred.

It is a good idea to keep a record of the animals you buy, and to keep a record of the animals you sell, so that you can see what you are getting for your money.

It is also a good idea to keep a record of the animals you sell, so that you can see what you are getting for your money.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

A cold has made me lose my voice. This really is a boon to me. I'm in the limelight now, at last! And how I love the sympathy.

Before I left our old home before coming to Canada, we had only two cows; not to provide ample milk for these, we had to sell our cows and I was something of a fool. Now we have 20 cows, it's easier to provide for them than it was to provide for the other ten. Best of all, our silage cows are in better condition, we grow, and produced a higher grade of milk. For the last two years every cow has produced on the average 100 pounds of butter per year. This is what we have ascertained, we have a cost of 10 cents a pound less to produce butter coming from cows not sold for their milk.

Our poultry and our hogs are doing well, and we have a good supply of eggs for our tables. I know many who feel that they could kill a beef steer if they could afford it. But, they are among those who were born of what the master as a valuable product.

Our hogs are doing well, and we have a good supply of eggs for our tables. I know many who feel that they could afford it. But, they are among those who were born of what the master as a valuable product.
