RELATIVE MISERY

There is a saying of a great French writer that he who has ten needs is not happy when nine of them are satisfied. It is true that we all of us have needs that cannot be satisfied and that they will make us unhappy, if we let them. It is true that there is no complete and absolute happiness. Fortunately, it is also true that there is no absolute misery.

When things go wrong, our own personal misery is likely to seem to us absolute, whereas the ills of others seem unreal and insignificant. Even trifles prick so deep that we forget that they are trifles, unimportant not only in the larger movement of the world but even in the total current of our own lives. The great preacher Wesley once visited a wealthy parishioner to get assistance for some overwhelming charitable need. The visit was mainly occupied with an account of the parishioner's fireplace, which would smoke, no matter what was done to remedy the difficulty. "Would you believe it, Mr. Wesley, I have had the best advice from London and still it smokes? These are my troubles, Mr. Wesley." To this man the life and death of Mr. Wesley's protégés was of little consequence compared with the smoking fireplace. How often is it so with all of us.

To appreciate the relative quality of our own troubles we should keep an open heart for the troubles of other people; not brood over them, "not wear our lives away in useless pity, not lose the possibility of joy that are given to us by vague complaining over the sorrows of the world, but remember, when vexations come, that they come to all and to most more thickly than to us."

It is sometimes urged that this relative cure for unhappiness is a selfish one, and that we have no right to cultivate our own contentment by dwelling on the sufferings of the wretchedness of others—but that is not what is meant at all. We are not to gloat over others' misery, nor to emphasize whatever truth there may be in the remark of another great Frenchman, that there is something not wholly illusory about us in the misfortunes of even our best friends. The sense that we are not alone in trouble, that millions of people daily undergo for more than we venture, ought to soften us and render us more considerate and forbearing and helpful. At any rate, it will teach us that our own miseries are not monstrous and that, viewed relatively, they are in most cases insignificant.

When your fireplace smokes, do not complain. "These are my troubles, Mr. Wesley," but mend it or forget it.

The Greatest of These.

The world has need of greatness; men who give. Upon the stepping-stones of yesterday to the tomorrow of their dreams and ones; The world has need of power; the power to build; The strength to break down barriers; to erect; The gleaming edifice of betterment upon the now foundation-stone of faith— Faith in mankind—and staunch and tender trust. The world has need of hope invincible; Of daily effort crowning daily prayer. The world has need of vision; ere it sees. The first dawn of that falter, neither sphere. Rising from the soil of sacrifice. Great in the world's need! All the gifts of might And power and will to conquer Destiny; The gifts of service, tolerance, loyalty— Of strenuous purpose and of honest toil; Of gladness and good cheer, of merry hearts. Of knightly zest and gallant bravery; But most of all the world has need of love!

What All Prospective Bridegrooms Know.

That he won't be able to find the wedding ring at the fatal moment. That his hands will look as big as the broadsides of a barn during the ceremony and that it is a confounded shame that it isn't permissible to hide them in his trousers' pocket. That it would be an immense relief to elope instead of going through the fuss and flurry of the church wedding. That his pal has too much of a smile on his face and is sure to play some sort of trick before the ceremony is over with.

That all the women in the congregation will wonder what on earth it is that the bride sees in him.

That all his bachelor friends, are madly shaking their heads and saying, "Another good man gone."

That though the bride's father has protested vehemently that he doesn't want to give up his little girl, he still seems remarkably happy over the fact that she is getting married.

That while the fact remains that he isn't marrying the whole family the whole bunch has laid out a schedule of visits they are going to pay him during the next few months.

That if the bride's mischievous little brother pulls off any of his so-called "cute little tricks" during the ceremony it will be with extreme difficulty that he will restrain himself from upending little brother and giving him a splendid little paddling.

KEEP HEALTHY DURING WINTER

Colds and Diseases May be Avoided if the Blood is Kept Pure.

Do not let your blood get thin this winter. For people who have a tendency towards anaemia, or bloodlessness, winter is a trying season. Lack of exercise and fresh air, and the more restricted diet are among the many things that combine to lower the tone of the body and deplete the blood.

As soon as you notice the tired feeling, lack of appetite and shortness of breath that are warning symptoms of thin blood, take a short course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Do not wait until the color has entirely left your cheeks, until your lips are white and your eyes dull. It is so much easier to correct the thinness of the blood in the earlier stages than later. This is well illustrated in the case of Mrs. E. Williams, Elk Lake, Ont., who says: "I take great pleasure in letting you know the benefit. I have found in the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I was in an anaemic condition, and was very weak and run down. The least exertion would leave me breathless and it was with difficulty that I did household work. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after the use of four boxes, I felt like a new person. In fact, my system seemed filled with new energy and new life. I strongly recommend this medicine to all who feel weak or run down."

The purpose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is to build up the blood. They are for this reason an invaluable remedy in diseases arising from bad or deficient blood, as rheumatism, neuralgia, after-effects of the grip or fevers. The pills are guaranteed to be free from opium, or any harsh drug and cannot injure the most delicate system.

You can procure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent to you by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Signals From Another Planet?

Interruptions of the Marconi wireless instruments by mysterious undecipherable signals, which were noted before the war, and have been publicly referred to since, have been specially featured in the Daily Mail, London, and discussed by Marconi in an interview published by the paper.

"We occasionally get very queer sounds and indications, which might come from somewhere outside the earth," said Signor Marconi. "We have had them both in England and America. The Morse signal letters occur with much greater frequency than others, but we have never yet picked up anything that could be translated into a definite message."

"The fact that the signals have occurred simultaneously at New York and London with perfect integrity seems to indicate that they must have originated at a very great distance."

We have not yet got the slightest proof of their origin. They might conceivably be due to some natural disturbance, for instance, an eruption of the sun causing electrical disturbances."

Asked whether possibly attempts were being made by another planet to communicate, Signor Marconi said: "I would not rule out the possibility of this, but there is no proof. We must investigate the matter much more thoroughly before we venture upon a definite opinion."

He added that the mysterious sounds are not confined to any particular diurnal period; they are equally frequent by day and night.

New Restaurant Plate. In addition to food new plate for restaurants holds separate compartments a knife, fork, spoon and butter dish.

New Postage Stamps.

It has been calculated that about 2,000 new postage stamps have been issued in Europe since the end of the war. These show how needless our old stamps are when we come to study the political geography of that continent.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

The Thoroughbred Auction Sale.

Swift foot, single foot down the orchard lane;

All the old, deserted farm still beneath the stars;

Nickered soft a low good-by till hoofs beat home again,

Satin nose from satin nose across the orchard bars.

Swift foot, single foot down the valley road;

Iron shoe and flint fire up the rocky hill;

Slanting ear for stranger voice—does some evil bird?

Past the empty pastures where the shadows lie so still...

Brown cast, velvet coat, pointed ears alert,

Jasmine, the stable's pride, had blocked the swinging door;

Shying from the waiting crowd as though she feared a hurt;

Headless now of man's command as never once before.

Thin hair, silver hair, shaken volved slow;

Came the master to her side, at the word they sent.

Laid his hand upon the rump, with his head bent low,

To lead her to the auction block—then at last she went.

Swift foot, single foot—dying far away.

Empty stall, a vagrant rat prowling to and fro;

Silence where the hammer fell on the bid to-day;

Silence, where were stamping hoofs only hours ago.

Swift foot, single foot over all the ways;

Allen hands upon the reins, silver tears, the stars.

Apple bloom and clover bloom—but never through the days

Will satin nose touch satin nose across the orchard bars.

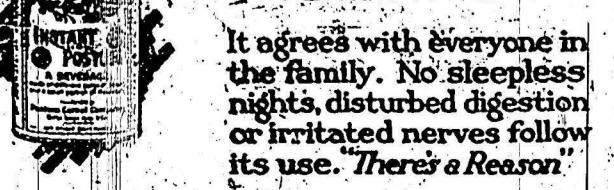

You cannot do anything in the world, achieve any success, unless you believe in yourself.

Spiders' Threads For Telescopes

The threads of the garden spider are fixed by astronomers in their telescopes for the purpose of giving fine lines to the field of view, by which the relative positions of stars may be accurately measured.

For a century astronomers desired to make use of such lines of the greatest possible fineness, and procured first silver wire drawn out to the extreme limit of tensile attainable with that metal. They also tried hairs (1-500th of an inch thick), and threads of the silkworm's cocoon, which are split into two component threads, each only 1-200th of an inch thick. But in 1820 an English instrument maker named Troughton introduced the spider's line. This can be readily obtained from the silkworm's thread, and has also advantages in its strength and freedom from twist.

In order to obtain the thread the spider is carefully fixed on a miniature "rake" and the thread, which the moment of issue from the body is viscous liquid, is made to adhere to a winder by turning which the desired length of firm but elastic thread can be procured.

Made a Hit, Anyway.

Mr. Higginson had been away from home for a week and on his return found that burglars had visited the house during his absence, and although one had been wounded, they had succeeded in getting away.

"And so you shot a burglar while alone and unprotected," he said to his wife. "You are a brave little woman! What became of him?"

"The other man carried him off."

"The other man?" he asked.

"Yes," she said, "the one I aimed at!"

Price of Radium.

Radium, which was discovered in Paris by Madame Curie, and which is used in medicine and for many other purposes, is worth about $5,000 a grain.

Regardless of our own necessity, we should work because of the need of the world.

As Friend to Friend.

By cheering speech, By loving deed, By friendly smile, Give joy awhile;

To those in need, True courage teach;

Let love beguile And kindly lead

Bubble in a Sapphire.

There is exhibited in the British Museum a sapphire weighing nine carats which contains a bubble that appears and disappears with changes of temperature.

It is believed that a cavity in the gem enclosed a quantity of carbonic acid gas under great pressure. When the temperature is as close to the critical point for that gas under the particular pressure to which it is subjected in its brilliant prison-house it liquefies and becomes visible as a bubble.

It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of frozen oil obtained at any drug store will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Cut this out especially if you are a woman reader who wears high heels.

Carved Himself in Wood.

The most marvelous woodworker in the world is Hananuki Masakichi of Tokyo, Japan, who has carved a figure in wood so like himself that when the two are placed side by side it is said to be almost impossible to tell which lives and breathes and which does not.

By several connoisseurs in art this wooden figure has been pronounced the most perfect image of a man ever made. Masakichi has faithfully reproduced every scar, vein, and wrinkle to be seen on his body. The figure is composed of two thousand pieces of wood, dovetailed and joined with such skill that no seams can be detected.
