

COPYING MODERN FASHIONS FROM THE MUMMIES OF ANCIENT EGYPT.

The Styles of Three Thousand Years Ago Are Up-to-Date in Twentieth Century.

Fashion news from Paris is to the effect that the latest styles in costume are copied from ancient Egyptian mummies.

A rather striking way to but the fact seems to be that some of the newest designs from the designers' ateliers are taken from the Louvre, which date from 3,000 to 4,000 years. Mummy mummies were not present in their clothes on; but valuable articles also obtainable from the Louvre, which are carved and painted in the most beautiful manner.

The Egyptian Museum of Art, which may behold the mummies of the pharaohs, who, in the full-length carved on the lid, must have been beautiful women.

The Louvre represents the styles of the twenty-first century. It is wonderful how the short sleeves of the twenty-first century are identical in workmanship with those of the twenty-first century.

At the Corporation of a Sovereign, the Lord of the Manor of Aldington, the Sovereign can claim a dish of portage consisting of "chopped chickens, capon-brown, spices, sugar, and almond milk," while the Lord of the Manor of Aldington must make a solemn presentation of a towel for his Sovereign's use.

In olden times the Chamberlain carried the furniture of the room in which the Sovereign had slept on the day of the Coronation in addition to forty yards of crimson velvet and a silver sword and basin.

Bits of Information.

The Polish alphabet contains forty-five letters.

Alfalfa is the pea-like fruit of a bush grown in the West Indies.

"Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" was first published in 1865.

The properties of cocaine as an anesthetic were discovered in 1854.

There are more than 1,500 different tribes of American Indians.

Alens to the number of 24,500 were signed in England at the beginning of the Armistice.

There are 11,000 British troops still stationed in France as guard to "dumps" of war material.

Explosive shells, which were fairly successful, appear to have been used by the Dutch as long ago as 1588.

More than 60,000 people have returned to the ruins of Thebes, where they are mostly living in the miles of wine cellars.

Although only two peaks of the Alps are over 15,000 feet in height, there are dozens exceeding 12,000 feet.

Peasants on the Swiss mountains use horns, often as much as eight feet long, to converse with one another from a distance.

Possible Planets

Suppose that a new planet, a fresh addition to the sun's family, were to appear one of these fine nights in the sky. What a sensation it would make to be sure!

Astronomers do not regard such an occurrence as impossible, though assuredly most unlikely. The sun's orbit is so tremendous that it might conceivably throw out a flaming mass of gas that would cool and condense into a planet.

Not long ago, at the Yerkes Observatory, an eruption was observed (and photographed) on the rim of the sun which threw up material to a height of 50,000 miles. One cloud of it, which appeared as if floating detached, was reckoned to have some thousands of times the volume of the earth.

We are accustomed to regard great volcanic explosions on the earth as the most appalling of natural phenomena, but they are feeble and trifling disturbances compared with the outbursts which are continually taking place all over the body of the sun.

When an eclipse occurs, we can see with the naked eye, through a piece of smoked glass, gigantic flames darting from the edge of the solar disk.

Very likely the little planet on which we dwell was originally part of the sun and was thrown out from the latter as a mass of burning gas. The rotation of the sun on its axis started the vortex motion of the eruption.

The same eruption may have thrown off the moon, a smaller mass of gas, which fell under the control of the embryo earth, becoming its satellite.

Possibly the four little planets—Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars—were thrown out at about the same time. Greater eruptions may have given birth to the four giant planets—Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune.

Royal Perquisites.

The King has some very strange perquisites, many of which have most interesting histories attached to them. Few know that he can claim the head of a whale, so that "there may be no lack of whalebone wherewith to stiffen the Royal garments," although it is more commonly known that every sturgeon caught in British waters belongs to him by right.

What a remarkable collection the King's perquisites would make if they were all duly claimed! And what possible use could his Majesty make of some of them? A tablecloth of the value of three shillings; a coat of grey fur; a horse and halter, and even a silver headdress, contributed by the Court, but he might conceivably be welcome; but he might willingly dispense with a penny's worth of cinnamon, a cataplasm of scarlet hose, a carriage, a pair of scarlet hose, a crossbow, a pair of tongs, and a falcon.

And yet the King is by law and ancient custom entitled to this strange assortment of perquisites, and to others of greater value and usefulness, such as the costly and beautiful Cashmere shawls which are so much treasured as wedding presents.

At the Coronation of a Sovereign perquisites come in showers, and some of them are very quaint. From the Lord of the Manor of Aldington the Sovereign can claim a dish of portage consisting of "chopped chickens, capon-brown, spices, sugar, and almond milk," while the Lord of the Manor of Aldington must make a solemn presentation of a towel for his Sovereign's use.

In olden times the Chamberlain carried the furniture of the room in which the Sovereign had slept on the day of the Coronation in addition to forty yards of crimson velvet and a silver sword and basin.

TO SAFEGUARD YOUR DIGESTION

The Blood Should Constantly be Kept Rich and Pure.

If you suffer from any form of indigestion, your diet should be carefully chosen. Over-eating is always harmful, but at the same time one must take enough food to supply the needs of the blood. It must be remembered that the blood has to carry nourishment to every part of the body, and fuel for energy and defence against its enemies, as well as the regular juices for digestion. Hence, when the blood becomes weak and fails to do its work, indigestion arises; also when indigestion begins the blood still further suffers. Therefore, to safeguard your digestion the blood should be kept rich and red, and this can best be done by taking a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills are a blood-building, nerve-restoring tonic and through their use your digestive system will respond naturally, your appetite will improve and your food will do you good. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of stomach trouble is shown by the experience of Mrs. J. H. Alexander, Barrie, Ont., who says: "Some years ago I was in a terribly broken down condition. I had indigestion of a severe nature, and sharp pains of agony all through me. My stomach was so weak that it was difficult to get any food, and often after eating I would have vomiting spells. I was under medical treatment, but as I did not improve my nerves were in a terrible condition and I was always in much misery. One day I read of a woman who had been relieved of similar trouble through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. The result can be summed up by saying that after using the pills for some weeks I was entirely better, could eat a hearty meal, and was again enjoying life. If I feel run down at any time I take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and always get benefit from them."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 60 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Incendiary Bullets.

The incendiary bullets used during the war, mostly fired from machine guns carried by airplanes, were in effect miniature high-explosive shells. Those supplied to our armies were of brass, hollowed out to hold a composition of which the principal ingredient was barium nitrate. To set this off, each bullet had a priming charge of magnesium and red lead.

An ordinary rifle bullet, of course, is solid. The incendiary bullet is of wholly different construction, though of the same calibre, being meant to carry flame. Its discharge sets fire to the explosive stuff contained in it.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic diarrhoea and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Burglars, Beware!

A "burglar chaser" is the novel invention of Gertrude Markle and Kawaihiti Fujita (the latter a Japanese), and it promises to be a terror to ill-advised persons who break in and steal.

Consists of a series of alarm boxes distributed through the house, one in each room. They are harmless-looking affairs, fastened to the wall. But they are loaded.

In case of an alarm of robbers, the household touches a button that communicates with the box in the room where the thieves are supposed to be, and the box, pneumatically energized, turns on a pivot, pointing half a dozen gun barrels toward the interior.

"Bang" bang! go the guns. Perhaps the robbers are not hit, but they are badly scared. They may run into another room. If so, the box in that room is similarly revolved by another button, and starts shooting.

As the inventors state, the operation may be repeated until the intruders have entirely fled the premises, thus obviating the necessity of the occupants of the house having to face armed burglars.

Marriage Etiquette in China.

When a Chinese girl is married she must wait four months before etiquette allows her to pay her first visit to her mother; but after this initiatory call it is within bounds of social custom and propriety to visit the home of her parents at her home.

You can't wear soil out by cultivating it.

The Grim Companions.

I saw him dancing between the two. When the spring was young and the leaves were green. Oh, gay was he, for his life was new. Though the sombre two that he danced between. Were Pain and Sorrow, Sorrow and Pain. The brook was full and the wee birds sang. The child boy played and his laughter rang. For Pain and Sorrow had barbed no pang. When he started down life's lane. I saw him again on a summer's day. A man full-grown, stern-faced, and strong. And Pain and Sorrow he held at bay. Though they sulked beside as he walked along. Oh, Pain and Sorrow, Sorrow and Pain. The trees were full and the way uphill. Spring's rushing stream was but a rill; The wee birds dreamed, and their song was still. As he climbed the hilly lane. I saw him next on an autumn eve. Weary and sad by the moaning trees. And he cried and prayed for a short reprieve. Of two who were forcing him to his knees. Hard Pain and Sorrow, Sorrow and Pain. The brook was dark, and the wind was shrill. The wind swept down on the steeper hill. While Pain and Sorrow were working their will. To strike him deep and again. I saw him last in the winter here. The church was near, and its graves were dank. He crept along to find refuge there, 'Till at the foot of the Cross he sank. Scourged, and followed by Sorrow and Pain. For Sorrow and Pain they had racked each bone. And he prayed for the peace that is Heaven's own; 'Till a light shone down from the Great White Throne. And there was no Sorrow nor Pain.
