Measure Up.

"Measure up, my boy! measure up!" This was the advice a father frequently gave his son, who was inclined to weaken when confronted by any tough problem or unusual situation. "Measure up, my boy!" Measure up" There are times when even the strongest need the advice. The words have a fine courageous ring, and would make a good maxim for a business man. Frame them and put them upon the wall of your office, or place of business, where they will constantly remind you that you must measure up to the situation that confronts you, whatever it is. When you do this—when you answer the call and bring all your courage and resourcefulness to your aid, no matter how difficult your problem, you are likely to come through all right. There is no situation that can freeze a man when he measures up and meets it like a man. The trouble with most of us is that we do not measure up in a supreme crisis. When great responsibilities confront us, when unusual difficulties oppose us, instead of measuring up, we are apt to measure down; our backbones weaken, we slump miserably. When we realize that mind has power over all things, is greater than all obstacles, and that man is the master mind, we find nothing singular in this. Man was made to conquer things, not to be conquered by them. There is something within you bigger than anything else on this planet. It is bigger than any circumstances, any luck, any accident of fortune, any situation or emergency that confronts you. And the more you use this thing within you, the more you exercise and develop it, the stronger you become. If we had no problems to grapple with, no difficulties to overcome, we would all be weaklings. Perpetual fair weather and smooth seas never make good sailors. It is battling with the elements, battling on through the storm and tempest undauntedly facing hurricanes and rough seas, that develop in the mariner his sterling qualities. Great emergencies, tremendous responsibilities, hard times, tight money, commercial crises, focusing the mind on the solving of tough problems, adjusting means to ends, calling out all of one's ingenuity and resourcefulness to meet unusual conditions—these are the things that make great business men and successful farmers. It is battling with, and overcoming difficulties that makes great leaders, great men in every walk of life.

Death of Miss Edna Stephens.

The home of Mr. Russell Stephens and family was deeply saddened on Sunday, May 29th, 1921, when death entered and claimed as its victim their eldest daughter, Edna, aged 23 years and 3 months. She had been confined to her bed since last February, and while she was not expected to fully recover, yet she seemed to be resting as well as usual at 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning when she suddenly passed away while talking to her father, who was at her bedside at that time. Her sudden death was a great shock to her many friends, who had shown their sympathy in many ways during her illness. Although her suffering was long and continuous, yet she never murmured nor complained, but bore her afflictions cheerfully and was hopeful of recovery to the last. Being of a quiet and gentle disposition she was greatly beloved by all who knew her. She was a member of the Wesleyan Union Sunday School and church choir. The large attendance at the funeral and the many floral tributes, among which was one from the School and one from the Sunday School, showed the esteem in which she was held. Besides her parents, she is survived by an older brother, Robert, and a younger sister, Abigail.

The funeral service was held on Tuesday, May 31st, in the Methodist Church, Markdale, Ontario, conducted by Rev. A. J. Eagle, of Holland Centre, assisted by Rev. W. H. Stoddart, of Strathavon. The special number ordered by the choir, "Jesus Care," was very appropriate. The remains were laid to rest in the cemetery beside the church. The sympathy of the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stephens and family's extended to them in their sad bereavement.

The pall bearers were: R. Murray, Charlie Rapson, Harold Gillespie, Willie Stephens, Warren Sigh and Lucas Summers.
