AIR "TRAINS" RUSH BETWEEN CITIES

TWENTY-SIX LINES FROM LONDON.

Service is Constantly Being Improved and Safety is Unchallenged.

A new time table of the aerial routes has been issued by the Aerial Travel Bureau, and it is now possible for one to look up air connections with most parts of Europe and North Africa...

There are twenty-six regular routes in operation in and out of Croydon airport, eighteen of which are conducted by Great Britain, four by France and four by Holland.

The table gives a graphic idea of the extension of aerial transportation in the continent. Under the heading "Leave Croydon 4 in the afternoon, reach Paris at 6, leave following morning at 6, arrive Prague at 2, wait half an hour, depart again at 2, reach Budapest 6 in the evening, reach Belgrade at 10"

Another interesting route outlined in the guide includes stops in Spain and Morocco. It is possible to fly to Paris, take a train to Toulouse, catch an airplane at 9 in the morning, stopping at Barcelona and Alicante, reaching the night in Malaga, and arrive at Casablanca at 10 the next morning.

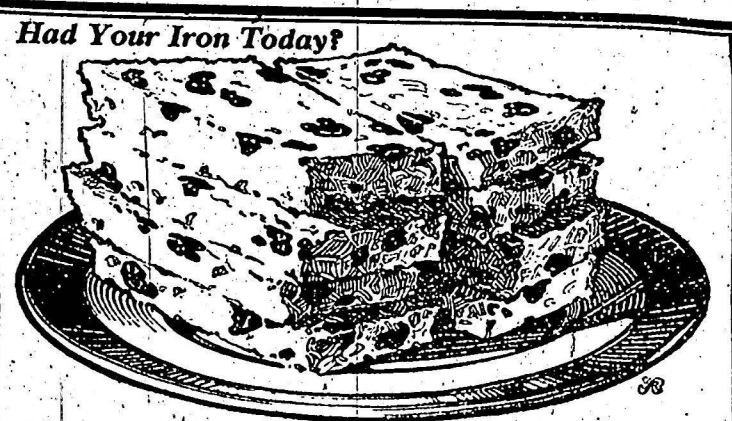

It is both possible and practical to have one's home and take off in an airplane at Croydon within the hour, to go to any point in Europe, excepting Russia, by air. The routes are not only not exorbitant, but, figuring on the longer time required by trains with sleepers, meals and hotels, actually amount to about the same and in many cases are actually cheaper than travel by boat and train.

How to Dry Fruit. Experiments in the "dehydration" of pears has been engaging the attention of the Oregon Agricultural Experiment Station. Development of a satisfactory process has been attended with some difficulties, chief among them being that of preserving the natural color of the fruit, but it is believed that that problem has been solved.

Do "Box Numbers" Baffle You? While the system of "box numbers" addresses used by advertisers in newspapers has been in operation for a good many years, there are some people who do not know what a "box number" really means.

Seeing the King. For mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts—Isaiah vi: 5. Unclean lips; yea, all uncleanneas, I can nothing righteous bring; Woe is me, undone, undone!

Let's Have Raisin Bread Tonight

HOW long since you've had delicious raisin bread—since you've tasted that incomparable flavor?

Serve a loaf tonight. No need to bake it. Just telephone your grocer or a bakery. Say you want "full-fruited bread—generously filled with luscious, seeded, Sun-Maid Raisins."

Use it all. You need not waste a crumb. Raisin bread is luscious, energizing, food. So it's both good and good for you.

Serve it at least twice a week. Start this good habit in your home today. But don't take any but a real, full-fruited, genuine raisin bread.

Surnames and Their Origin

COSTELLO. Racial Origin—Norman-French. Source—A given name.

Here is a family name that is likely to puzzle you. Boreing any particular knowledge, you may have of it, it looks more as though it might be Italian than anything else. But all those of this name that you have ever met have probably been Irish.

The Costello clan in Ireland became a fixture there in the early days of the Anglo-Norman invasion. It derived its name from one Costello Fitz-Gilbert, who was the son of Gilbert de Angule, one of the first of the invaders.

There are two freedoms—the false where a man is free to do what he likes; the true, where a man is free to do what he ought.—Kingsley.

Dust Explosions

The recent explosion of a bin of oatmeal in some London works is said to have been due to an admixture of dust and air. It is a curious and unpleasant fact that such a mixture is extremely explosive, and that some of the most terrible accidents in industrial history have been caused by dust floating in dry air.

The dreadful disaster at the Tradeston flour mills at Glasgow was caused by a spark igniting the fine flour dust with which the air was filled, and resulted in the loss of twelve lives. The mill itself was a roaring furnace inside five minutes.

The worst explosion of the kind on record was that which destroyed the Washburn corn mills in Minneapolis, reputed to be the largest in the world. The result was a loss of eighteen lives and a million dollars worth of property.

In the year 1903 Paris was shaken by a most tremendous explosion, caused by the blowing up of the great Say sugar refinery, near the Orleans Station. It is believed that a spark from a dynamo ignited the finely powdered sugar floating in the air.

Naturally, therefore, when a particle of dust is floating in the air, with oxygen all around it, there only needs the requisite degree of heat for that particle to burst into fierce flame, which of course is instantly communicated to all the other atoms of dust in succession.

Later, the Royal Commission of 1891 went into the matter more closely, and their investigations proved that explosions in coal-mines, even when not caused by dust, were often aggravated by dust floating in the air. It is not really difficult to understand the why and wherefore of such explosions: To light a fire, you first chop up wood into small sticks or shavings, and the smaller these are the more readily they burn. The reason is that the surface in contact is merely the combination of the carbon of the wood with the oxygen of the air.

PALE, WEAK GIRLS AND DELICATE WOMEN

Can Find New Health by Enriching Their Blood Supply.

Nature intended every girl and every woman to be happy, active and healthy. Yet, too many of them find their lives saddened by suffering—nearly always because their blood is to blame. All those unhappy girls and women with colorless cheeks, dull skins, and sunken, listless eyes, are in this condition because they have not enough red blood in their veins to keep them well and in the charm of health.

Along navigable water this double boat travels in the normal way, propelled by a screw at the stern of each hull. But over all rapids and shallow parts a single railway line has been constructed, supported on trestles, the rail rising up from the water-level at each end of the unnavigable section.

The "Silent Nine."

A silent aeroplane engine has at last been invented, says a London newspaper.

In a recent test the deafening roar of the engine and exhaust was completely eliminated, and the "Silent Nine," as the new invention is called.

The inventor is Major Grant, the superintendent of the Croydon aerodrome depot.

One "Silent Nine" can be sold at a profit for less than $50, and already there is a great demand for it.
