Goosie Gray and Goosie Green.
Once there was a handsome little fellow named Goosie Gray, with silvery gray feathers exactly like the feathers of the rest of his family. He was perfectly satisfied with his color until the day when he went waddling over to Meadow Farm.

The Value of the Printed Programme By Gibson Scott

Is your Institute Branch keeping up with the great progressive strides being made by the Women's Institutes generally throughout Ontario? Has it increased in numbers this year? Is it following more fundamental lines of work? Is it availing itself to the fullest extent of the help in literature, lectures, short courses to be had from the College and the Institutes Branch of the Department of Agriculture? Has it a carefully planned and printed program distributed among the members and through the homes of the community for the year 1922-3? If not, Madam President, call a meeting of your Branch Board of Directors and get busy—get the homemakers of your neighborhood into the main current of progress.

of a bright green but of a beautiful silvery gray. "Quack!" he cried joyfully as he swam out into the still, blue water and saw the sun shining on his silvery feathers. "Quackety! quackety! quackety! I am Goosie Gray again!" Linda Stevens Almond in Youth's Companion.

Why the Woodlot is Valuable. There are on almost any farm certain portions of land which are not utilized for grain-growing, and which, if pastured, do not really give the returns they should do. Low spots difficult to drain, rough, stony pieces, steep banks of creeks, and odd corners cut off from the large fields by water holes or creeks, are left idle, as they are too small to make it profitable to cultivate them. These are instances of conditions where tree-planting might be of considerable value, and in valuable and revenue-producing property.—Bulletin No. 1, Director of Forestry, Ottawa.

HAS NEVER FELT THE RHEUMATISM

Since Taking "Fruit-a-tives" The Famous Fruit Medicine—P.O. Box 123, Painsuono, N.S. "I suffered with Rheumatism for five years, having it so badly at times I was unable to get up. I tried medicines I saw advertised, and was treated by doctors but the Rheumatism always came back. In 1916, I saw in an advertisement that "Fruit-a-tives" would stop Rheumatism and took a box, and got relief; then took "Fruit-a-tives" right along for about six months and I have never felt my Rheumatism since." JOHN E. GULLDERSON, 60c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

If satisfactory profits are to be obtained from the keeping of hens, it is necessary that eggs be produced during the season of scarcity and high price. Eggs laid in November and December will usually fetch from two to three times the price of eggs laid in April and May. Poultrymen should, therefore, put forth every effort towards the production of winter eggs. Success depends, very largely, upon the care and feed which the flock is given. There are other feeds besides the grain and water commonly fed, that are essential if heavy winter production is to be expected. The most important of these are the green feeds and the animal feeds, and it cannot be too strongly emphasized that these are absolutely necessary to high production. Green feed may be supplied in the form of mangels, clover hay, sprouted oats, waste cabbage or vegetable parings, while animal feed may be given in the form of milk, green cut bones, leaf scrap or digestive tankage.

The following method of feeding should give satisfactory results: Morning—a light feed of scratch grain scattered in the litter. Noon—a moist mash may be given in which is mixed table scraps or green cut bone. Night—a full feed of scratch grain. In addition to the aforementioned a constant supply of grit, oyster shell, charcoal and fresh water should be kept before the flock at all times, also a dry mash. This mash may be made up of different ingredients, but one that will give good results in bran, middlings, corn meal ground oats and meal, equal parts. If milk is available or green cut bone is being used the percentage of meat meal may be reduced. Feed the whole grain sparingly so as to get the flock to consume a large proportion of mash, as this is always noticeable that the consumption of mash is greater when production is at its highest.

Equal parts of ground oil, turpentine and linseed make a good home-made liniment for sore joints. The application of small stones is the right remedy, but as we have been able to find, the only method which several methods have been built for this purpose, but as yet none have proved satisfactory. It is hoped that in a few years something may be manufactured which will eliminate some of the drudgery of raising farms of flocks.

That Word. Little Eleanor gazed long and thoughtfully at the young man who was calling on her grown-up sister, Kate.

"May I climb up on your knees, Brownie?" she said at last, smiling. "Why, of course, dear," smiled the young man, who wanted to make a hit with the family. "I want to get your hair, eh?"

"No, I want to see if I can find that word!" "Word! What word?" asked the puzzled visitor. "I heard Kate say this morning when your photograph came that if every young man had the world about written all over his face, it was 'cat'!"
