

PIRATES IN PETTICOATS

The most romantic periods in the history of the British Mercantile was the days when pirates... One morning recently, the big vector lowered in the shaft at the mill on Avery Island...

During the early part of the century, when French and British were continually offering... Captain Stutchmond, but no one existed; the commander privateer was Belle Hammond...

Recently Mr. Charles A. Coffin, an American who has done large things in the industrial world during the past forty years, made the following statement: "The next big social change, as I see it, will be decentralization..."

Electricity is now making possible these comforts, opportunities and amusements in the healthful districts of our countryside. The effect this will have upon the agriculture of any community is difficult to foresee...

Do what you consider is your duty, but do not insist that others shall consider it their duty also.

A Visit to a Rock-Salt Mine

BY DAVID M. LEVINGSTON

There's a thrill in being lowered down through a black hole into the earth 600 feet. One becomes used to it, they say, but believe me, not at once.

There are no preliminaries nor ceremony about the descent. The shaft is a very uninviting affair, and has an appearance of "come down if you wish; I'm not promising you anything. This elevator is not a halcyon brass or steel-fitted cage nor is there a boy in attendance. After all got on, it just went down.

The camera man wanted to "shoot" a scene showing how the salt was torn from its bed. This led the party down one of those long avenues with the small lights strung alongside, just as though they were so many tiny street lamps, and the tall arch glistening overhead.

But when the bottom is reached what a change! And what a surprise to find down there that the temperature is pleasant, standing around 72 degrees. The atmosphere is as balmy as early summer. A cleaner spot could hardly be imagined.

A Prayer.

Sweet, I lift this prayer for you Who are dearer than the dew Is to the frail flowers of spring Ere they burst to blossoming—

May the great Eternal Will Guard you from all touch of ill; Spare you from the bitter cup Hooded Sorrow raises up;

Lead you through fair ways where Lovy's heartease and asphodel! —Clinton Scollard.

OVERWORKED NERVES

The early stages of nervous debility are noted by restlessness and irritability in which the victims seem to be oppressed by their nerves.

The nervous system governs the whole body, controlling heart, lungs, digestion and brain, so that it is not surprising that nervous disturbances cause acute distress.

British Columbia is spending approximately $1,500,000 this year on highways. Much new country will be opened up.

The safe place during a thunderstorm is in bed, a position between two feather beds giving complete immunity. Owing to the metallic substances in certain soils some trees are struck more frequently than others.

For years I have never considered my stock of household remedies complete unless a bottle of Edward's Liniment was included. For hiccups, cramps, sprains, frostbites or chilblains it excels, and I know of no better remedy for a severe cold in the head...

On the iceberg's track. Of all the perils dreaded by those who sail across the Atlantic, icebergs are by far the most formidable.

The thermocouple is connected to a telephone receiver on the bridge of the ship. When conditions are normal it emits a continuous note of unchanging pitch.

Copper Roofing. Copper that was used on some of the most famous buildings of Europe, now centuries old, has never been replaced.

Artificial Christmas Tree. An artificial Christmas tree invented by a Californian serves as a hat-rack and umbrella stand when the branches are removed.

The world's largest wireless horn has been erected at Idora Park, California. It is twenty-five feet long, and has an aperture of twelve feet, and with its air, wireless concerts can be heard over an area of twenty-nine square miles.

Some Lessons from a Great Composer's Life.

There is much encouragement for the hard-working music student in the long life of Camille Saint-Saens. Presently called "Saint-Groves' sober dictionary," Saint-Saens is a consummate master of composition, and no one possesses a more profound knowledge than he does of the secrets and resources of the art.

Genius is rare. Mozart and Schubert are very scarce in musical history. But all of us can work, and though our endowments may be considerably less than those of Saint-Saens, this gifted musician shows that it is possible to work and live long, and enjoy a large measure of success in music by making the most of whatever share of talent we possess.

Incidentally, Saint-Saens mixed freely with men, and as an amateur astronomer could be happy alone with the stars. It is well to cultivate a hobby by outside music, for this, no doubt, helped Saint-Saens to live to eighty-six.

A VISION OF THE FUTURE

But few men can conscientiously claim any ability in forecasting things that are to happen at some future date. Possibly the weather man is an exception.

Recently Mr. Charles A. Coffin, an American who has done large things in the industrial world during the past forty years, made the following statement: "The next big social change, as I see it, will be decentralization."

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum and stomach troubles come about with alarming frequency.

Not Prepared. The old deacon was the kindest of men, deeply religious and always ready with a good word.

While phonograph records may be handled freely and quickly without danger of injury, they should not be stacked up in a pile without protection for the surfaces, nor should they be given the baby to play with.

The service of God is the most perfect freedom any soul can have. True religion, and true freedom, always have gone hand in hand.

He Had No Speedometer

A scion of noble fame was asked by a traveler how long it would take him to get to Athens.

Not a Profligate. It happened on King Street. An old man was selling pencils. A young man approached and, choosing one from the stock on hand, asked the price.

Honest Milkman. The dealer was charged with selling adulterated milk and he pleaded guilty.

The Inconsiderable Fish. The two things that Clarence Babson liked to do were fishing and "just setting," but apparently he liked to "set" better even than to fish.
