The fourth was one, two, three and out. In the fifth three runs were scored, Clare Mercer, T. Tuck and G. S. Dundas getting home. Beard was left on third and H. Mercer on first in this frame. Clare Mercer was left at first in the sixth, but no runs were added. The seventh and eighth were uneventful. Clare Mercer walked in the ninth and T. Tuck was left at second.

Russell Graham scored for the Vans in the first and E. Warring was left at third. In the second frame, Graham, S. Buchanan and A. Beard counted. Graham, Beard and Tuck were left on base in the third. Graham scored the run in the third and Beard was left at second. In the fourth frame, Warring was left at second and H. Graham was left at first. In the fifth frame, Graham and Beard counted. ## Sudden Death of James Matthews.

(Durham Review)

A great shock fell on the town this Thursday morning when the news got around that James Matthews was dead. He went to bed the evening before in his usual health and in the silent watches of the night, the spirit left for wife and daughter woke to find they were deeply bereaved. He had nearly completed his 54th year, for he was born at Downpatrick, Co. Down, Ireland, on October 28th, 1838, and came to Canada at the age of 19, settled near Paris, and came to Egremont in 1862, where he remained until he came to Durham nine years ago. In 1866 he married Miss Margaret Morrison and to them were born eight children, the survivors being: Jane at home; Robert and Earl and Sarah (Mrs. M. Hooper), on 19th con. Egremont; Ellen Marg. (Mrs. Schenk), 11th con. Egremont; James, near Markdale. A daughter, Amanda (Mrs. Merchant), died 16 years ago, and Wm was killed in the West 10 years ago.

The deceased we have known for 44 years as a man of intelligence and integrity. For many years he was the leading trustee in Section No. 12, Egremont, taking great interest in education. In politics he was a Conservative, and was a devoted member of the Anglican Church and of the Orange Order.

To the survivors and the lonely widow and daughter, Jane, of the home, especially, intense sympathy goes out. The last named, for some years, has been afflicted with blindness.

The funeral will take place on Saturday to Maplewood cemetery. Service in Trinity church at 2 p.m. and his brother Orangemen will also assemble.
