Cow-Testing and Its Value

How One Herd Has Been Improved by This Means

BY A. H. WHITE, SENIOR DAIRY PROMOTER.

Some eleven years ago, J. G. Wait, Coburne, Ont., started to keep records of production of each cow in his herd.

In May of this year Mr. Wait branched out and did some official testing. He put four of his cows on the seven-day Record of Merit test.

After the first year of this work, Mr. Wait found some wide differences in the production of his individual cows.

After 1914 it was more difficult to obtain increases in production as it was impossible to buy the higher producing cows except for exceptionally high prices.

Many dairymen would like to know how the cost of raising calves might be lowered. Work recently completed at an experiment station gives us some interesting suggestions.

advised to ninety pounds of water makes one hundred pounds of normal skim-milk.

At the end of sixty days, the skim-milk was compounded by mixing four parts of corn, one of bran and one of linseed.

Success is more often accomplished by giving two thoughts to one action, than one thought to two actions.

The skeleton frame-work of the modern hog is quite different from that formerly grown; for larger and stronger bone is generally wanted by swine men to-day.

Going into his stable one day, a farmer found his little son with a notebook and pencil in his hand.

Not all accidents occur in cities. The need of "safety first" is just as urgent, if not more so, on farms.

Do not leave machinery or anything else where some one is liable to stumble over it in the dark.

Look out for the Gentle Bull. If you have a vicious bull, get rid of him.

Don't put it off a minute. When you see something that may injure a person or an animal, stop whatever you are doing and make it safe at once.

All ropes which must carry heavy loads, such as the carrier ropes and the hay-fork ropes, must be in good condition.
