

COAST GUARD BOAT EFFECTS THRILLING RESCUE ON STORMY LAKE ERIE

A despatch from Cleveland, O., says:—Successfully battling the waves of Lake Erie, United States coastguard early on Wednesday night brought to shore Harry Holsworth, who, for 24 hours, lay a victim of pneumonia on the waterworks crib. It was one of the most thrilling rescues recorded in the annals of the Great Lakes' history.

The coastguard, powered boat, with a crew of eight men and a captain, set out for the crib late on Wednesday evening in a high wind, after several previous attempts had failed. An hour later, the boat itself became the object of a rescue.

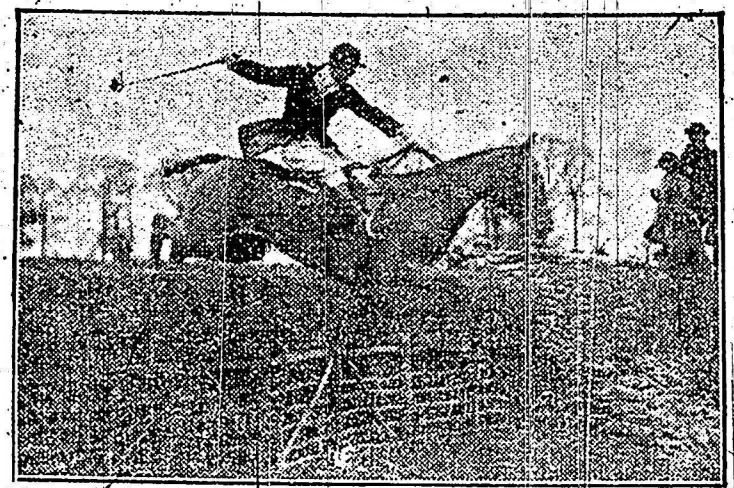

As the power boat reached the crib, John Huro and Thomas B. Keller, Holsworth's assistants, tied a rope around the sick man. Then as the boat manoeuvred in close, Holsworth was lowered 20 feet to the ice-coated cabin roof as the vessel passed.

He was grabbed by two of the crew, who several times almost slipped into the water. Holsworth was finally placed inside the cabin, where Dr. Harry L. Baird worked over him as the boat buffeted the waves on her landward trip.

Half way back to the coastguard station, the power boat's engine went dead. The crew of the Frank W., which had been held in readiness by the Great Lakes Towing Company, steamed out into the lake and towed the boat to shore.

An ambulance, held in readiness, rushed Holsworth to a hospital. His condition is extremely serious, Dr. Baird declared.

First word that Holsworth was ill was picked up by an amateur radio operator early on Wednesday. He in turn notified the coastguard, but because of the heavy seas and high wind, the life-saving crew was unable to approach the crib during the day.

Wrecked British Cruiser Raleigh May Be Refloated

A despatch from St. John's, Nfld., says:—The possibility of refloating the British cruiser Raleigh, which went ashore in the Straits of Belle Isle last summer, and was abandoned as a total loss, has been revived. Reports made to the British Admiralty that the wreck had been moved by the pressure of the ice pack this winter led the British authorities to investigate the cruiser's present position on the Labrador rocks.

On Tuesday an aviator flew from Bellefleur, on the northern coast of Newfoundland, to Point Barrow, on the south coast of Labrador, and made photographs of the Raleigh as she now lies. If the hull has been freed from the rocks that held her an effort will be made to refloat the cruiser.

Mackintosh, Professor of Physiology and Associate Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, has been asked to deliver the famous Cameron Series of medical lectures at the University of Edinburgh during next October, and the Board of Governors, at a recent meeting, granted Dr. Mackintosh leave of absence for the month of October so that he may deliver these lectures.

Prof. Beatty will give one undergraduate course and one or more graduate courses while in Wales.

Prince's Love for Steeple-chasing Causes Anxiety

A despatch from London says:—The Prince of Wales' love for steeple-chasing is beginning to cause public anxiety, owing to the frequency with which he misleads himself. The Prince himself, however, makes light of his risks.

The Heir Apparent had another mishap on Wednesday, when, participating with Prince George in the Melton steeplechase and riding 'in the Ladies' Plate, his mount, 'Little Christy,' was brought down by the balking of another horse at the seventh fence. After making six unsuccessful attempts to get his mount over the fence, the Prince gave up.

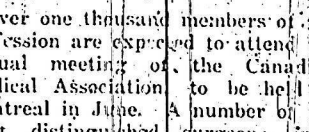

The Prince also, for the first time, competed against professional jockeys in an open race on Thursday, after a narrow escape from being unseated.

ROYAL CHRISTENING AT GOLDSBOROUGH

Their Majesties Chief Sponsors for Infant Son of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles.

A despatch from Goldsborough, Yorkshire, England, says:—The Archbishop of York on Friday christened 'Baby Lascelles,' the infant son of Viscount Lascelles and Princess Mary, in the presence of King George and Queen Mary and other members of the royal household. Villagers, tenants and dependents of the Harwood estate, of Viscount Lascelles, were given the preference over visitors to the village desirous of witnessing the ceremony.

The christening took place after the morning service in the little village church. It was a quiet and simple ceremony; the only incident was the busy carrying of the baby, which would be heard throughout the church. The infant was given the name George Henry Albert Lascelles.

The King, Queen and Queen Mary were the chief sponsors. Present with them at the baptism were two other sponsors, the Countess of Harwood and Colonel Lane-Poole. Four additional sponsors who were represented by proxies are Dowager Queen Alexandra, Lady Patricia Ramsay the Countess of Harwood and General George Hertzog, the late Premier of South Africa. Princess Mary and Queen Mary were also present.

The Harwood estate is one of the largest in the county. It covers 2,000 acres and is situated in the North York Moors. The village of Goldsborough is one of the most beautiful in the county. It is situated on the banks of the River Ure and is surrounded by the famous Goldsborough Park.

Seek to Recover Gold From Sunken Laurentic

A despatch from London says:—The British Admiralty in the next few days will send out its salvage ship and divers in an endeavor to recover more gold from the Laurentic, which was sunk by the northern Irish coast by a torpedo in 1917 while carrying $2,300,000 in gold bullion to the United States.

To date, $5,000,000 worth of the bullion has been brought up from the bottom of the tricky waters of that section of the coast, and Admiralty officials hope to get two or three more millions up this summer, but they are not too sure of it.

The wreck is in very bad shape and divers working fifteen miles from land and at a depth of twenty fathoms have met with difficulties, including attacks from male porfish, challenging the intrusion upon their realm.

Half of One Per Cent

The population of Russia in Europe is about 130,000,000. The number of Communists in Russia is 87,000, according to the official census of that party. Of those in good and regular standing, with a right to have their say in all matters affecting Russia and the Soviets, there are 410,430. This same census shows 119,924 candidates for full party membership and 289,839 young Communists. The Red Army and Navy numbered 90,000 of the regular members and 83,000 fed at the public trough as Government employes.

All then of the acknowledged Communists in communist Russia, including candidates, probationaries and young Reds, total but a fraction more than one-half of 1 per cent of the European Russians. They are the rulers of about 130,000,000 west of the Urals, and possibly 85,000,000 Siberians. After a fashion their writs run from the Dnieper and the Baltic to the Sea of Okhotsk and the Straits of Bering. They have 800,000 bayonets and have kept themselves in power for five years.

Yet there are skeptical souls who are inclined to hoot at the power of an organized minority.

The average value of occupied farm lands in Canada for the year 1922 is $44 per acre, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This included improved and unimproved land, together with houses, barns, and other buildings on the farms. The average value in 1921 was $40 per acre, while it was $48 in 1920 and $55 in 1915. Average values are higher in British Columbia, where the figure is given as $120 per acre. The other provinces vary from $64 in Ontario to $24 in Alberta.

Faces

"There's no art to find the mind's construction in the face," says Shakespeare, through the mind and tongue of King Duncan in 'Macbeth.' The King was disillusioned and saddened because he had robbed a trust and his confidence was betrayed. But the sweeping generalization, like other affirmations of the sort, is often found to be untrue. If a man is habitually truthful and faithful, the thoughts that live in his mind and vent themselves in the acts of his hand come to read. If he consent to evil, if his trend of his mind is away from light to darkness, if things that are mean and base and gross are the things that especially please him, the tell-tale evidence sooner or later must show in his countenance.

One sees in a photographer's shadow-window the pictures of human beings who have called on every artifice of dress to make them beautiful, and who have called in vain. Whistler painted a woman and painted nothing but the dress. When she asked indignantly why he omitted the face, he answered calmly that he saw nothing but the dress. Thus it is with certain of these photographs. There are the bridal bouquet, the veil, the train, the superb adornments and all the accessories of art; but what is the personality? The face in the stereotyped commonplace.

Faithfully, faultlessly, regularly, splendidly null.

Where is the character? Where is the individual submerged in the trap-logic? What has the consummate 'art of perfection' been doing with herself these years on earth except to deck herself for the marriage part? What does she know? What can she do? Who is she?

Those who have nothing behind the ornamental facade make that from an imposing and as decorative as possible. They display a specious exterior because it is all they have to place on view.

'The crowd passes, and if an observer is sententious to the faces, there is an outline of social history in a walk one block long. Some of the faces are so immense, so vast, they come very close to expressing nothing at all. How fearfully dull it must be to dwell with these who are dressed with the who are their consorts presumably, are no better than they. It is a wise reminder of Nature. Walter Raleigh reminds us that 'the ordinary woman is ordinarily satisfied with the ordinary man.' But all the faces are not void of the nobler emotions, and undimmed and unpressing. There is an old woman who carries in her aspect, though she knows it not, a dimming fump of piety and charity and bodiless goodness. Irreverent youth may not know the meaning of her life. But her eyes and smile are selling it. But it is not lost on the Power that serves and reavers. Here is a man, old and gray, tired and poor, wearing the sign whatever of any personal distinction. Yet he, too, has counted in his place of service, has finished the work he was given to do, has been faithful in a few things. Poor, old, dull or young, it is not a few bright exceptions, here or there, that are living up to their consciences and their ideals. Most of them are doing the best they can with what they have, and it read aright—their faces tell of it.
