A Plain Talk.

The world has for us just what we have for it it great whispering gallery which flings back the echoes of our voices. If we laugh, it laughs back: If we curse it curses back.

There is no joy like that which comes from a useful life; the perpetual effort to do our level best; to try to get ahead without crowding others back, and injuring their opportunites or interforing with their rights; making the most of ourselves not only without making anyone else the poorer, but by helping

Why the Nile Was

Worshipped. The ancient Egyptians worshipped the River Nile because it seemed like a god to them. It was the everflowing. of the Nile every year that engiched the surrounding valley made their crops possible, and vaved thom from starvation. The overflewing of the great river not only gave the people their sustances, but it made them prosperous.

Just as the overflowing of the Nile tertilized and enriched the Nile Valley. so it is the life overflowing with leve that enriches humanity with its ablu dant harveets. Unless your life overflews with k
