

CLEAR DUTY OF U.S. TO JOIN LEAGUE OF NATIONS, DECLARES LLOYD GEORGE

A despatch from Hamilton says—such a judicial body as the committee convened to fix reparations. The heart full of the purpose of peace on earth, Right Hon. Mr. Lloyd George, in an interview with the pressmen while en route to Niagara Falls, rather frankly reminded the United States of its European obligations.

Lloyd George said he did not like to impose his views on the United States regarding its foreign relationships, but since he had been asked to give these he would state them as frankly as possible.

In a word, he held, there could be no peace—no enduring peace—until the United States joins the League of Nations. He felt that the United States ought to become a signatory to the League, and believed that it would do so in the near future.

Prefacing his answers by pointing out that by the Treaty of Versailles the United States had assumed the obligation of any of the other allies in the fixing of reparations, Lloyd George emphasized that when the United States failed to ratify this treaty, the whole fabric of reparations was necessarily altered.

The plan of Mr. Hughes, American Secretary of State, he said, was simply a restoration of the body that convened on reparations before the United States disapproved of the Treaty of Versailles.

"This treaty, he added, brought the United States into adjudication on European affairs. It made the United States the only disinterested party in the settlement of the League of Nations."

LLOYD GEORGE PRESENTED WITH KEY TO CITY OF MONTREAL.
Lloyd George's famous war promoter was almost mobbed; time and time again, by enthusiastic Montrealers during his visit to the Metropolis. In the picture he is seen with Mayor Maderie Martin, during the presentation of a key to the City of Montreal, and a civic address. At the right is Dame Margaret Lloyd George.

What is there to be admired in the conduct of that man or woman who habitually keeps other people waiting? It is an unbecoming feature of a certain temperament that affects to despise time, and, remembering that the Right Honourable J. D. Lobley, former Minister of Justice, had originally only accepted the office under reserve, he decided, out of any sort, to put in an appearance at the Imperial Conference.

The Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa says:

A large increase in the fruit export business between Canada and Great Britain is expected as the result of a substantial reduction in the ocean freight rate on apples, moving between Atlantic port and ports in Great Britain, word of which was received by the Canadian Horticultural Council here.

Cripples at School

One of the phenomena in the educational development of recent years is the provision of special classes and special schools for little people of special needs.

Those who have had long and intimate experience with crippled children are of the opinion that a crippled child who is able to do so profits by attending an ordinary school.
