THE KITCHEN GARDEN CLUB

BY LOUISE BRANDON

was admiring the garden... "But surely they do not all care for the same varieties."

"We never will eat all that produce and those radishes," my friend exclaimed.

"Why don't you dispose of them through your kitchen garden club?" I asked.

"Then you shall hear of one right now," I began telling her of the club to which my auntie belonged.

"Each week every member of the club reports to the chairman the things that distinguish this kitchen garden club and makes it unique."

"Not only the members of the club report in this way but other members are reported in the same way."

"Quite often there are reports of some vegetable which is either grown from the different gardens or turned over to the finance committee."

"Yes, indeed, and also young plants and others sold to the members."

"The club members report a pound of honey for each of the two dollars given by the members during the year."

"The iris is not only the most beautiful of perennials... it has the good qualities of being easily grown and transplanted."

"The economy of the home garden is one of the most important factors in the life of the modern housewife."

"The discovery of the important part played by vitamins in the maintenance of health is a recent development in the science of nutrition."

"The farmer's feet may be down on the world's clay but his head may be up among the stars."

"Ove no man anything, but to love one another, for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."

"Getting on amicably with your business associates adds to your operation."

Silver Cups for School Planting

The ornamental planting of the grounds of the country schools is to be given encouragement in a competition arranged for by the Canadian Horticultural Council.

One day last August I drove home from the town in which I had been selling truck, with just as many string beans as I started out with.

This same evening a salesman tried to sell me some brushes and the line of talk he used set me thinking.

When I went to one door the lady told me that she and her husband never ate string beans and the dirt ferret ways to prepare them.

When I went to another door the lady told me that she and her husband never ate string beans and the dirt ferret ways to prepare them.

When I went to a third door the lady told me that she and her husband never ate string beans and the dirt ferret ways to prepare them.

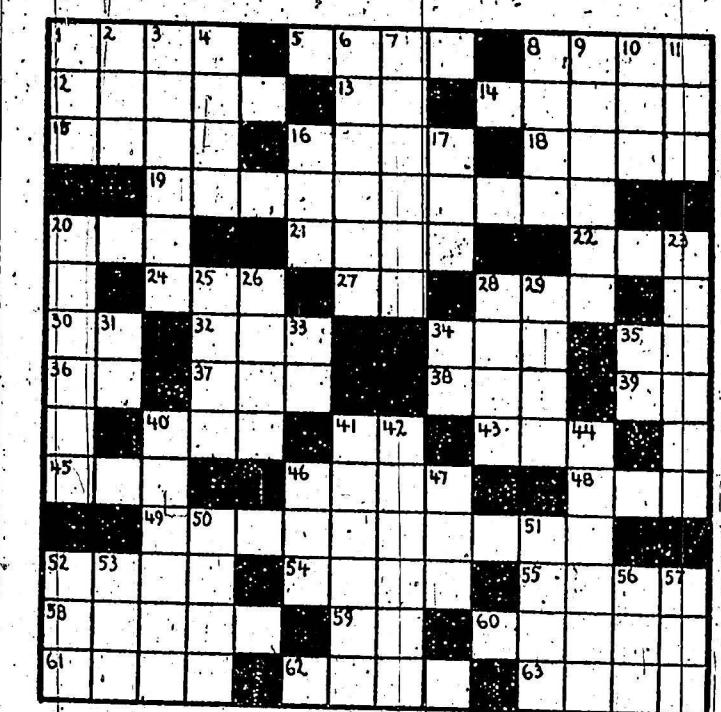

When I went to a fourth door the lady told me that she and her husband never ate string beans and the dirt ferret ways to prepare them.

When I went to a fifth door the lady told me that she and her husband never ate string beans and the dirt ferret ways to prepare them.

When I went to a sixth door the lady told me that she and her husband never ate string beans and the dirt ferret ways to prepare them.

When I went to a seventh door the lady told me that she and her husband never ate string beans and the dirt ferret ways to prepare them.
