LITTLE BOYS' NIGHT SONGS

It had rained and stormed all night; the March Wind blew a gale. The window in Little Boy's room shook and rattled so loud that Little Boy woke up. He didn't know who it was, but he heard a voice that called for Mother. A little Boy's Mother knew all the strange sounds at night, and always told him what they sign, for they really do sing if you listen.

Mother said the houses and trees and ground were all dirty with mud. Little Boy and his mother went to the Big Rain to wash them clean. Mother Nature had no towel to dry with like Little Boy used, so she sent March Wind to blow the dirt away and dry the little trees, who-o-o and the March Wind sang, "Who-o-o I'll dry you-o-o."

Soon the song of the March Wind soothed Little Boy and he was just going to sleep again when he heard another song: "Milk-stop! Clinkety-clock!" The horses' feet sang that song as they clattered along on the pavement. Then "Clink-clink! Milk-to-drink!" sang the bottles as they landed on the porch steps. Little Boy sat up: "That's our milk plant! I haven't seen him in the morning for a long time. He comes while it's dark now."

Little Boy listened to the horses' feet sing, "Clinkety-clock! Milk-stop! Clink-clink!" until they were far away and it sounded very low and dreamlike. Little Boy loved his little horse better than all his other toys, and nothing was quite so wonderful to him as to go to Grandpa's Big Farm and pat Grandpa's Beauty on her soft nose and ride on her back.

It was fun to ride horseback on Grandpa's shoulders when he went to feed the horses, too, because Grandpa let Little Boy put corn and oats into their feed boxes, and look for eggs in the hens sometimes laid in the hay in Beauty's manger. And hunting eggs in the old straw now! Wasn't it fun when the horses, too, and barking loudly when they found a nest?

The little Dream Thoughts were coming fast and had carried Little Boy all the way out to Grandpa's Big Farm, and he was having such fun that he didn't know how long it had been that way.

Jobs for Boys.

Should a boy help about the house? Where there are only boy children, this is a great problem for the mother. She sees mothers of girls greatly relieved by the help these young people give with light household routine, and she believes she needs such help, too, but she fears to make "sissies" of her boys by putting them to work in the house.

"A mother can train boys to help her by letting them play they are men in various occupations demanding knack at cooking and bed making and cleaning-up.

They can be solders. Assigning them to "K.P." gets happier results than ordering boys to "go fix your own lunch." Then they can be carpenters. On other days city firemen. One of our able-bodied seamen on one tramp ship's way out in the ocean. The three essentials are, first, to make a game of it; second, spirit and energy; and third, let outsiders, especially other children, see the lads at their household tasks.

A Cheap Dog Feed.

One of the cheapest and most nutritious dog feeds is a composition of cotton-seed meal, corn meal and molasses. To ten parts of corn meal add one part of cotton-seed meal. Mix the two into a batter with cheap molasses and cook brown. This has proved to be a more preferable feed than meat, and the dogs will be less subject to yorm infection. Where cotton-seed meal cannot be secured, make the dough of corn meal, mixed with one-third molasses and two-thirds milk. Bulldogs were kept on the ration of cotton-seed meal, corn meal and molasses from the time they were born until they reached maturity, and they thrived well. The three elements contain a balanced ration and the mixed composition seems to give vigor and quick growth to the canines.

R. PAUL'S DEFENCE BEFORE FELIX, 10-16. II. FELIX CONVICTED BY PAUL'S ARGUMENT, 17-25. INTRODUCTIONS.—In due course, Paul is brought down to Caesarea and placed on his defence before the Roman procurator of Judea. The procurator at this time was Antonius Felix, who had been in office since A. D. 52, and who had already given an example of misgovernment scarcely to be paralleled in provincial records. Felix's origins were Jewish. He had been educated in the law, and his promotion to favor at court, but the rough mark of his extraction clung to him in an arrogant and ungenerous spirit. With the prerogatives of a king, he was the Roman ruler in the province. He was a man of high standing in the Roman world, and he was a man of high standing in the Jewish world. He was a man of high standing in the Roman world, and he was a man of high standing in the Jewish world.
