Stocking a Fishless District According to all available reports and information no species of trout has been found in the waters of southern Saskatchewan. Beginning in 1924 the Dominica Dept. of Marine and Fisheries planted brown and Loch Leven trout fry in several streams in the Cypress Hills district and closed these streams to fishing. Up to the present the fish have done very well. They have survived three winters; come reproduced last autumn in their third year; and specimens have been caught nearly a pound in weight and over a foot in length.
