EDITORIAL CARE OF THE ROSE

One hesitated before choosing "Care of the Rose" as the subject for an editorial; then on considering certain things, went on with the idea.

The rose, it appears, is a very heavy feeder, therefore its root-bed should be carefully prepared.

All through the summer it is necessary to give frequent surface cultivation, after which a mulch of lawn clippings may be put out.

Roses are particularly likely to be troubled with insect pests, some kinds, however, being much more attractive to "bugs" than others.

For the leaf-eaters, hand-pick the slugs, and apply white hellebore when the dew is on.

A very successful rose grower in Owen Sound uses one spray for all insects. It is made by adding 1 teaspoonful of Paris green to a pailful of rather strong soap.

business. "A butcher, armed with a knife, is a dangerous animal in a rose-garden."

Many amateurs, however, do very little pruning except to cut out dead wood and long unfruitful shoots.

By the way, at the annual show of the Rose Society of Ontario, held in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, last week, the "Lady Alice Stanley" was considered the best rose in the show.

The Armchair

The Old Parsonage

Dear Readers: Two weeks ago I was bemoaning the long draught. Since then what wonderful rains have come! I can never understand why some people dislike a rainy day.

Usually when it rains, I find myself much more in sympathy with the writer of that pretty old song: "When the humid showers gather over all the starry spheres, And the melancholy darkness gently weeps in dewy tears, 'Tis a joy to press the pillow of a cottage chamber bed, And to listen to the patter of the soft rain overhead."

For I cannot imagine any music sweeter than the soft patter of rain on a shingled roof, especially after a long dry time when one has been longing for it.

that the place bore one name, its post office another, as before. I myself can remember when, quite commonly, people along our "line" spoke of going "out to Johnstown," while our mail came addressed to "Chatsworth."

Last week mention was also made of the fact that the first school-house was at what is now known as "Hemstock's Corner." Later the school was moved to the cottage next to the home of Mrs. H. Collins, now vacant, but formerly occupied by Mr. Robert Kerr and family.

HELPFUL HINTS Covering An Ironing Board We have not tried this, but have been told it "works."

Recommended by the University Extension Press of the University of Minnesota. "Take equal parts of tartar emetic and sugar. Mix dry, then moisten with water to consistency of syrup, and put in a dish in the runway of the ants. They will eat freely of it, and fall to return for a long time. The dish may be set away when dry. When needed again add water and a little more sugar. As the tartar emetic is poisonous it should be kept out of the way of children."
