The Late Wm. J. Cornfield

The late Wm. J. Cornfield was born on the 14th of October, 1856, on the farm now occupied by his son, Geo. E. He was a son of John Cornfield, who was one of the early settlers of Epping district in Euphrasia township. The deceased was upright and honest in all his dealings and highly respected.

He was married to Miss Elizabeth Hicks (a daughter of the late Edwin Hicks) on December 30th, 1885. Those left to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father are his widow and two sons, Geo. E. and J. W., and two granddaughters. A daughter passed away on March 19th, 1915. One sister, Mrs. Wm. Fawcett of Kimberley, and three brothers, Robert in the West, and Joseph and Wesley of Kimberley also survive.

The funeral on Monday of last week to New England cemetery was attended by a large circle of sympathizing friends and neighbors. Some of those from a distance attending were Mr. and Mrs. Art Stafford and Mrs. Berry of Parry Sound, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hicks and son, Wm., of Collingwood; Mr. Frank Hicks of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. John Hicks of Owen Sound, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Fawcett of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Abercrombie of Meaford.

Do not ask us if we miss him,
There is such a vacant place;
Can we e'er forget those footsteps
And the dear familiar face?
'Tis hard to part with those
We hold on earth so dear;
The heart no greater trial knows,
No sorrow more severe.

Euphrasia Pioneer Dies at Meaford

Mr. George Crabtree, a resident of the town for sixteen years, died Friday morning at his home on Margaret street, in his 81st year. The deceased had always enjoyed the best of health until a year ago last January, when he had the misfortune to fall on the icy sidewalk and fracture his hip, as a result of which he suffered a stroke and took to bed a week or two later. Since then he has been confined [illegible] Mr. Crabtree [illegible] life without murmur or [illegible] After learning [illegible] carpentry Mr. [illegible] trey began [illegible] in contracting and building, which he followed successfully until he moved to Meaford. He was fond of hunting, and never felt more contented than when he was roaming the forest in quest of game, and was justly noted for his love of children, flowers and animals.

The late Mr. Crabtree was twice married. His bereaved widow was formerly Miss Elizabeth Hubbard, sister of the first wife, who passed away many years ago.

Besides the widow there are left to mourn two daughters, Mrs. (Rev.) J. F. Clugston of Columbus, Ont.; Mrs. (Rev.) J. R. Wilkinson of Clarkson; one son, J. Dawson Crabtree of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Cook of Rocklyn.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon to Lakeview Cemetery.—Meaford Mirror.

Mrs. Russell Brown

The death occurred, at an early hour Wednesday morning, August 15, of Bernice Beatrice Galbraith, beloved wife of Mr. Russell Brown. Mrs. Brown had only resided in Meaford since November of last year, coming here from Markdale, her husband having secured employment with the Seaman Kent Company. Mrs. Brown had been ill for some time and the end was not unexpected.

Deceased, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Galbraith of Meaford, was born in Markdale and had lived there until her removal to Meaford. Besides here bereaved husband, she is survived by a young daughter, Betty, her parents, three brothers and one sister.

The funeral was held from her late home, St. Vincent Street, on Friday to Markdale Cemetery. Service at the house was conducted by Rev. T. D. Painting, and the service at the graveside by Rev. Mr. Coutts of Markdale.—Meaford Mirror.

In Memoriam

HUTCHINSON—In loving memory of our dear brother, George Hutchinson, who passed away on August 23rd, 1927.

One year has passed since that sad day
God called our dear brother away,
Forget him, no, we never will,
For in our heart he liveth still.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought the end was near,
Only those who have lost can tell,
The pain of parting without farewell.

Sisters and Brothers.

Dental Inspection Made in Markdale Public School

[illegible] of the principal [illegible] Markdale Public School several times [illegible] the months of [illegible] and seventy-six pupils. The work was undertaken in compliance with the expressed wishes of the Provincial Department of Health which is endeavoring to obtain a survey of conditions that exist in the mouths of school children throughout the Province. Of the pupils examined, about 30 months had received dental treatment. There were 85 defects in temporary teeth and 159 defects in permanent teeth. Ages of pupils ranged from five to sixteen years. About one half of the months showed that a tooth brush was being used regularly. A number of them had received no attention at all, or just a little previous to inspection. A copy of the record was given to each pupil to be taken home for examination by the parents. The dentists report that since the inspection a number of the pupils have consulted them for treatment. It is to be hoped that the parents will realize the vital importance of providing the children with proper toothbrushes, and insisting on their use at home every day. A child five years old is not too young to be taught a practice that becomes a good habit, and will mean very much in the way of health and comfort in later years. The more time and attention that is given the teeth and mouth at home means just so much less time spent in a dentist's chair trying to save crippled teeth. Of course they should be examined by the dentist once a year anyway, and all defects remedied. The loss of one tooth that should be kept not only affects the mastication of food, but tends to create new trouble on account of the remaining teeth moving from their normal positions in the mouth.

The most important teeth are the sixth teeth from the centre line of the mouth [illegible] each side, above and below. These four belong to the second or permanent set and come [illegible] immediately behind the temporary teeth. They are often mistaken for temporary teeth as they come behind the others, and are consequently neglected. They are apt to become affected with decay from the teeth in front of them, and if neglected transmit the trouble to the new teeth which erupt on each side of them later. Of course all the teeth are important or they wouldn't be placed where they are, but the parent who wilfully neglects these sixth year molars is doing his child an injury from which he will surely suffer throughout his lifetime. The mouths of these one hundred and seventeen pupils showed 103 of these important teeth decayed. The prevention of irregularities and dental deformaties can be achieved only by proper care during the early years of a child's life. In many of the large municipalities the regular dental inspection is undertaken by the authorities and it will only be a matter of time until the practice is general. Without doubt the recent inspection in Markdale will be productive of good results.
