

One Age Men Suffered Many Dread Diseases

Arthritis, Pyone and Rickets Were Common; Old at 40 people who are fond of speaking of good old days, would be far if they found themselves again planted back into them. In the world they be worse than the service of the doctors, the doctoring was probably no worse and it took them longer to improve it, while it is easier to believe that their patients were many disabled men, and that they did him more good than bad. The Swedish "Cave men" came from shogunism, a painful form of self-sacrifice, willings in themselves had dreadfully bad times in spite of the guns and sacrifices was common.

"I suffered from scurvy in my youth. That was owing to lack of meat and fish without salt. The death rate among the men was higher than in any other age, men aged at 40, were living less than 50."
