Mrs. W. J. McFarland
 Chosen as Head of Toronto Council of Women.
 Mrs. W. L. McFarland, formerly of this place, was chosen as President of the Toronto Local Council of Women at the final session of the thirty-fifth annual meeting held in Toronto last week. The Globe in referring to her election prints a splendid photograph of Mrs. McFarland and the Mall and Empire has the following write-up:
 "In choosing Mrs. W. L. McFarland as its new president, the Toronto Local Council of Women have found someone whose roots are struck deep into Canadian soil. Long years ago, in 1798, when the greater part of what we know as 'Old Ontario,' was dense forest, a Presbyterian minister left the comfortable, settled country to the south, and came over to the little colony of Loyallists who were trying to hew a hedge out of the wilderness on the shore of the Bay of Quinte, at what became Adolphustown. That brave pioneer was the Rev. Robert McDowell, and he was the great-grandfather of the new Local Council president.
 "It came with a bit of a shock to me," said Mrs. McFarland, yesterday, "when I realized how young this country is—to think that I can remember well the stories told me of those early days by an aunt who was the daughter of the man who had to depend on the kindness of Indians to guide him from one little clearing to another in the woods that to him were trackless."
 An Intrepid Daughter
 This missionary, whose charge extended from Adolphustown to what is now Carleton Place, had to go on foot. Later, when the trails through the woods widened, and there was room for a horse, his young daughter often accompanied him and his friendly Indians, who knew the spot where the white man and his tiny log cabin might be found.
 Many years ago a church was built at Adolphustown in memory of this man whose work was of pre-eminent importance in establishing the Presbyterian Church in the province; the man who became one of the founders of Queen's University in Kingston (his college where a great-granddaughter, Ethel McDowell, was in future years to be a student); the man who was first Moderator of the Synod of the Canadas, as the old phrase has it, in 1820; and the man who ministered to his little flock at Adolphustown till his death in 1844.
 Unhappily this church was burnt down about a year ago, and with it many relics of its first minister, who is buried in the churchyard that surrounds it.
 Another Link With the Loyalists
 But it is not on one side alone that Ethel McDowell McFarland is linked with the United Empire Loyalists. Her other great-grandfather was Jacobus Lazier, who came from York, N.Y., and for his loyalty to the Crown, was given many hundreds of acres of land in Prince Edward County, not many miles from Adolphustown. The old Lazier homestead just east of Picton is one of the treasures of Canadian antiquity that grace Edward County prizes.
 Mrs. McFarland is linked, too, with the Washburns through a great-grandmother—Hannah Washburn whose father was the first Governor of New York, and who was, in turn, the granddaughter of the famous Mary Chilton, the first woman of the Mayflower's women passengers to set foot on new world soil.
 Helping the New Canadians
 While Mrs. McFarland laughs to scorn the idea that she has in any way followed in the footsteps of all these pioneering ancestors, and declares that she is quite guiltless of a "career," those who are in touch with things know that she is a worthy descendant of worthy sires. She was on the first committee formed by Queen's women to raise money for the women's residence at Queen's—Banleigh Hall. For a great many years she has been connected with Local Council work, and for six years has been convener of its citizenship committee.
 It is here that she has done what is unquestionably her finest work. For she has tried with sympathy and sanity, to set in touch with our new Canadians from many diverse birth-places. Her forebears came from an older civilization to carve a home in the new. They had to grapple with strange conditions. They had even to master at least a few words of an alien tongue before there could be any interchange of speech between them and the Indians among whom they came. Mrs. McFarland has remembered these things as she has sought among newcomers, winning their hearts and helping them to fit into their new environment.

Eugenia
 During the past week or so we have had very nice weather. We hope it continues so.

Will It Help Business To Mark Time?

By 1934 Ontario and Quebec will need a million telephones and the Bell Telephone Company wants new money to provide them.

The company does not want any money from Parliament. It only wants permission to try to sell new shares to investors.

The investors will supply the money if they are allowed to. If they are not allowed to, the telephone system must mark time.

In 48 years the telephone company has never accepted a government grant; it only asks investors to take further part in Canada's progress.
