

Personal Bravery Of King George V. Heartened Soldiers

The King's illness recalls many things that have endeared his Majesty to the people of the Empire.

BRAVE UNDER FIRE

World anxiety over King George V's illness during the past month has been in many ways a period of re-education. The following article was written by one of the most brilliant of correspondents who followed the King's part in the great struggle of 1914-1918.

Your King and Country need you. You are, perhaps, well acquainted with the strain of the heart of the man who followed the fate of all those millions of young Englishmen who died in the trenches of the years 1914-1918. Revolution was being smothered by the blood of young men who were dying on the front. We were hard pressed—over France, especially.

When the first Expeditionary Force was sent to France, the King went out to the front. He was with the troops, and he was with the men who were fighting. He was with the men who were fighting. He was with the men who were fighting.

On a day when he visited the Guards' camp north of Ypres, close to the Belgian lines, these German airplanes came over flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low.

On Oct. 28 an unfortunate accident happened which I chance to be an anniversary only a few days away. It was when the King was thrown from his horse by no fault of his own. It was on a road outside Bethune, where some troops of the First Army were being drawn up.

The King kept his seat perfectly, but the third time the poor animal slipped in the greasy mud and fell over on to the King's body. Generals to me jumped from their horses and the King was picked up and carried to a motor car. Standing close to him I could see that he was seriously hurt, though quite conscious, further down the road the men cheered again as he passed in his car, not realizing that any accident had happened.

Conferred Cross From Ambulance

He was in great pain, but with his usual courage he insisted upon receiving one of the Order of St. George's. Lieutenant Brookes with the Victoria Cross, and that little ceremony was performed in the ambulance, though the King was so weak that he could not fasten the pin through the khaki tunic without assistance.

Eight months later the King visited the front again, and this time against the advice, and certainly against the wishes, of the commander-in-chief, and other generals, he insisted upon going closer into the danger zones and taking considerable risks in order to see the actual conditions of war and the conditions of the men who were fighting.

Men Admired His Pluck. His most interesting, and indeed thrilling, visit was in July of 1917, when the Queen accompanied him to the front. He was with the troops, and he was with the men who were fighting. He was with the men who were fighting.

Then he stood further down by one of those vast craters which had been upheaved by shells on the morning of attack. Again he lingered and again he had hardly gone before the German gunners lengthened their range and strafed the ground he had just left.

On another day when he visited the Guards' camp north of Ypres, close to the Belgian lines, these German airplanes came over flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low.

A Prayer Answered. In the spring of 1918, after the fearful events in March, the King slipped over to France, and sent a heartening message to Field Marshal Haig at a time when many of us were inclined to despair. It was the message of a man who was not afraid.

The Conquest of the North a la Ford

A tractor keeping trails on a road in the North, with workers nearby.

Interesting Paper on Northlands

Lieut. Col. Bovey Delivers Lecture on Canadian Development. Quebec—Lieut. Col. Wilfrid Bovey, director of the department of extra-mural relations at McGill University, delivered a lecture recently in the Chateau Frontenac at Quebec, one of a series of lectures being delivered on Canadian topics of interest said to be of the highest order.

When I undertook to prepare this lecture, the fourth of our series, I was careful to select a highly provocative title. This is stated to be a report about other reports, and really that is all that any comprehensive review of the North can be.

As an introduction I should like to say a few words about the size of the Northwest Territories. Without some conception of their magnitude it is impossible to understand the problems that their development sets before us. And I may say at the outset that I am not dealing with the Northwest Territories themselves, but with the Yukon, the Mackenzie, and the Klondike.

Then he stood further down by one of those vast craters which had been upheaved by shells on the morning of attack. Again he lingered and again he had hardly gone before the German gunners lengthened their range and strafed the ground he had just left.

On another day when he visited the Guards' camp north of Ypres, close to the Belgian lines, these German airplanes came over flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low.

A Prayer Answered. In the spring of 1918, after the fearful events in March, the King slipped over to France, and sent a heartening message to Field Marshal Haig at a time when many of us were inclined to despair. It was the message of a man who was not afraid.

Little Welshman Scores Triumph in Campaign

Speech Striking Campaign Keynote Called Greatest of His Career.

London—David Lloyd George, who has just returned from abroad, high of the epigrams of old-fashioned oratory against the Conservative Government in his recent stirring speech which many observers believe may forestall the return of the Conservative party to power.

When I undertook to prepare this lecture, the fourth of our series, I was careful to select a highly provocative title. This is stated to be a report about other reports, and really that is all that any comprehensive review of the North can be.

Then he stood further down by one of those vast craters which had been upheaved by shells on the morning of attack. Again he lingered and again he had hardly gone before the German gunners lengthened their range and strafed the ground he had just left.

On another day when he visited the Guards' camp north of Ypres, close to the Belgian lines, these German airplanes came over flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low.

A Prayer Answered. In the spring of 1918, after the fearful events in March, the King slipped over to France, and sent a heartening message to Field Marshal Haig at a time when many of us were inclined to despair. It was the message of a man who was not afraid.

On Oct. 28 an unfortunate accident happened which I chance to be an anniversary only a few days away. It was when the King was thrown from his horse by no fault of his own. It was on a road outside Bethune, where some troops of the First Army were being drawn up.

Italian Laces and Embroideries

Women bring to Indian art a very notable contribution.

Women bring to Indian art a very notable contribution. The end of the last century was a remarkable effort, crowned with marked success, to revive handicrafts. The traditional work was wasted on a quantity of modern laces and reeds.

When I undertook to prepare this lecture, the fourth of our series, I was careful to select a highly provocative title. This is stated to be a report about other reports, and really that is all that any comprehensive review of the North can be.

Then he stood further down by one of those vast craters which had been upheaved by shells on the morning of attack. Again he lingered and again he had hardly gone before the German gunners lengthened their range and strafed the ground he had just left.

On another day when he visited the Guards' camp north of Ypres, close to the Belgian lines, these German airplanes came over flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low.

A Prayer Answered. In the spring of 1918, after the fearful events in March, the King slipped over to France, and sent a heartening message to Field Marshal Haig at a time when many of us were inclined to despair. It was the message of a man who was not afraid.

On Oct. 28 an unfortunate accident happened which I chance to be an anniversary only a few days away. It was when the King was thrown from his horse by no fault of his own. It was on a road outside Bethune, where some troops of the First Army were being drawn up.

Phase Opened His Life Work By Prince's Tour

to Throne Personally Concerned in Political Question.

ORT UNPUBLISHED

Organ Charges Government Suppressed Observations

The interest taken in the Prince's tour, which recently appeared in the New York Tribune, has been a very notable contribution to the political life of the country. The Prince's tour was a very notable contribution to the political life of the country.

When I undertook to prepare this lecture, the fourth of our series, I was careful to select a highly provocative title. This is stated to be a report about other reports, and really that is all that any comprehensive review of the North can be.

Then he stood further down by one of those vast craters which had been upheaved by shells on the morning of attack. Again he lingered and again he had hardly gone before the German gunners lengthened their range and strafed the ground he had just left.

On another day when he visited the Guards' camp north of Ypres, close to the Belgian lines, these German airplanes came over flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low.

A Prayer Answered. In the spring of 1918, after the fearful events in March, the King slipped over to France, and sent a heartening message to Field Marshal Haig at a time when many of us were inclined to despair. It was the message of a man who was not afraid.

Home Dressmaking

Commercial dressmakers are made to suit certain specified textures. Because of this, it is the best plan to select the material and pattern in relation to each other before purchase.

Then he stood further down by one of those vast craters which had been upheaved by shells on the morning of attack. Again he lingered and again he had hardly gone before the German gunners lengthened their range and strafed the ground he had just left.

On another day when he visited the Guards' camp north of Ypres, close to the Belgian lines, these German airplanes came over flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low.

A Prayer Answered. In the spring of 1918, after the fearful events in March, the King slipped over to France, and sent a heartening message to Field Marshal Haig at a time when many of us were inclined to despair. It was the message of a man who was not afraid.

On Oct. 28 an unfortunate accident happened which I chance to be an anniversary only a few days away. It was when the King was thrown from his horse by no fault of his own. It was on a road outside Bethune, where some troops of the First Army were being drawn up.

Dogger Bank Hero Created Admiral

Sir Reginald Tyrwhitt Promoted—Has Fine War Record.

London—Vice-Admiral Sir Reginald Tyrwhitt, who is 58 years of age, has been promoted to the rank of admiral. His war exploits include the driving off of five enemy cruisers and the sinking of the German Mainz off Heligoland in 1914 and the sinking of the Bluecher at the Dogger Bank in 1915, for which he received the D.S.O. and thanks of the Admiralty.

Then he stood further down by one of those vast craters which had been upheaved by shells on the morning of attack. Again he lingered and again he had hardly gone before the German gunners lengthened their range and strafed the ground he had just left.

On another day when he visited the Guards' camp north of Ypres, close to the Belgian lines, these German airplanes came over flying very low. The King was in the sky and the German planes were flying very low.

Sea Mammoths Stranded

A view of a school of huge sea mammals after they had swum in shallow water and been stranded high and dry on a beach of Cape Town, South Africa.

Festive Desserts

Dessert recipes are abundant. Here are some: Sillibub, or the Bride's. In the old song, sillibub is referred to as "the bride's drink."

The Need for Economy

Quebec Eviction. Quebec, Nov. 15.—The Quebec Eviction Commission has today reported that the province is suffering from a shortage of foodstuffs.

Report Not Published

The report of the Commission on the State of the Province, which was published in the New York Tribune, has been a very notable contribution to the political life of the country.

On Oct. 28 an unfortunate accident happened which I chance to be an anniversary only a few days away. It was when the King was thrown from his horse by no fault of his own. It was on a road outside Bethune, where some troops of the First Army were being drawn up.