Historic Sketch of Cooke's United Church

The history of Cooke's Church in Markdale dates back to the early fifties of the past centurey, when the first settlers in the district, filled with hope and indomitable courage, hewed out of the virgin forest, homes for themselves and their little ones. During those years of toil and loneliness, with sometimes deep disappointment and poverty, they never lost sight of God, and many longed for a place in which to worship on the Sabbath. Mr. Samuel Rainey, who lived on the Toronto line, about three and a half miles south of here, opened his home for services and the people came glad of the opportunity to meet together, sing the psalms and pour out their hearts in prayer to God.

A few years later in 1859, a Presbyterian church was organized, and, a public school having been built, services were then held in it. Rev. Charles Cameron was the first settled minister, and the records show that his charge included Rocky Saugeen, Durham, Priceville, Durham Road and Orange Valley. Toward the close of his ministry Knox church was built, Mr. William Cunningham giving an acre of ground, on the north corner of his farm, about 1¾ miles south of here, for the site and cemetery. Amid great rejoicing Knox church was opened on December 30, 1867. It was a very good frame building, well finished in white pine, having a high enclosed pulpit for the minister, and a lower one for the precentor or leader of the singing. Both were upholstered and elaborately trimmed in crimson.

After a time, difficulties arose between this church and the others in the charge, and in 1871, Knox, Toronto Line, withdrew from connection with the charge, and obtained a supply from Holland. There were then 64 certified members on the church roll. These were drawn from as far east as the Beaver River Valley, as far south as a few miles west and south of Flesherton, and as far north as Allan's Hill, now called Mount Pleasant. After the close of Mr. Cameron's pastorate students from Knox college supplied during the summer months. Then Rev. R. McAmmon was called to the charge, and the house on Eliza St., now occupied by Mr. Andrew Griffith, was rented for a Manse. Our present Manse was built in 1876.

Markdale, formerly called Cornabus, had during these years, increased from a hamlet to a small village, and as few of the people had a means of conveyance, they placed before the congregation a plea, that sometimes the service should be held in the village. In 1875 it was decided to hold service alternately in the church and in the Orange Hall in the village; later Dufferin Hall, which stood on the lot adjoining Mr. W. Hill's property on Main St., was used. This arrangement continued until Jan. 1, 1881, when, after much discussion and deliberations, Knox church was closed. The members coming from Flesherton and vicinity soon after organized and held their services in the Town Hall there. These changes were not achieved without some difficulty, and at the time soreness of heart for many who had not yet caught the vision of extension, to meet the needs of the growing village on either side.

Upon the retirement of Mr. McAmmon the pulpit was again supplied by students, and Rev. Andrew Wilson, then attending Knox college, began supplying in 1879. Having graduated in 1881 he became the settled minister in the fall of that year, his charge being Markdale and Flesherton congregations.

In 1882 the new church in Markdale was built and named after Rev. Dr. Cooke, an eminent Presbyterian divine of Belfast, Ireland. Mr. Wilson resigned in 1888, and was followed by Rev. L. C. Emes. After his pastorate the charge was vacant for some time, and during that time was transferred from Orangeville Presbytery to Owen Sound Presbytery, thus severing the relations with Flesherton congregation. Berkeley having been affiliated with Cooke's, Rev. Wm. Forest, a retired minister, accepted the charge for a time, and under his deeply spiritual leadership, followed by the vigorous pastorate of Rev. John Hunter, the church took on new life, the members evincing greater interest in matters pertaining to the church. Mr. Hunter resigned in 1904, and went to Scotland, where he accepted a pastorate.

Rev. A. W. Shepherd succeeded Mr. Hunter, to be followed in 1910 by Rev. R. M. Phalen, whose death in 1916 was a great sorrow to the congregation. Rev. J. Thurburn-Conn was inducted into the charge in the fall of that year, and was succeeded in 1922 by Dr. E. H. Gray. During his pastorate the church voted into union and became a part of the United Church of Canada.

In June, 1926, Dr. Gray resigned, and Rev. W. Coutts, our present minister, was appointed to the charge by the Toronto Conference, being inducted on June 30th.

This little sketch would be incomplete without some mention of those pioneers, who, despite almost insuperable difficulties, helped to keep the Lamp of Life alight, giving from their meagre means to the building and support of the church. Time and space would not permit to give the names of all, but the history of the church would not be complete without mentioning some.

In the eldership we find the names of Mr. Francis Beattie, Mr. Isaac Brown, Mr. Sheppard Boyce and Mr. Samuel Donnelly, while active in the management of the church the following names and many others often appear: Samuel Rainey, Wm. Brown, Wm. Burnett, James Waldie, Henry Meldrum, Wm. Blair, Wm. Cunningham, John McKee, Wm. Ritchie, Robert Brown, Henry Wilson, Wm. Speer, Wm. Nell, George Buskin, George Richardson, Alexander Stewart, George McKenzie, Archibald Cairns. Mr. Jas. Waldie was the first precentor, followed after his death by Mr. A. Cairns.

The women too, as always, did their part, and among those mentioned are: Mrs. J. Waldie, Mrs. F. Beattie, Miss Boyce, Mrs. S. Thompson and others. All, with the exception of Mrs. J. Waldie, for many years a resident of Streetsville, have passed on to their reward, and we to-day are enjoying the results of their labor.

"To you, from falling hands, we throw
The torch, be yours to wave it high."

(The above was written for the C.G.I.T. service, Feb. 24th, 1929.)
