Designed to Appear Otherwise

"All is not gold that glitters." This is especially true in the fashion world at the present time, for practically nothing that glitters is gold. Rocks are more vivacious and have more variously glittering ornaments of various metals. Necklaces and earrings are in synthetic compositions and gleam in a sun-tanned skin. In fact, it is precisely to the sun-tanned skin that the particular phases of the contemporary jewelry mode owe their popularity.

Among precious stones, pearls are first in the limelight. They are not seen in the graduated string form, but are more contained in many ingenious ways, and with other jewels such as diamonds, emeralds, jade and the delectable flushed coral, considered smart to twist together in a string of delicate seed pearls and pearls of various sizes. Or it may be around the neck. Or it may be around the wrist several times. Some women wear strands slightly looped and fastened by a side by a pin of similar jewels.

The fashion in jewelry this season points to three revivals: the chain, the strand and the bracelet. The chain is the most popular, and the strand is the most elegant. The bracelet is the most decorative. The chain is made of gold, silver, or platinum, and is worn around the neck or wrist. The strand is made of pearls, diamonds, or other precious stones, and is worn around the neck. The bracelet is made of gold, silver, or platinum, and is worn around the wrist.

Department of Health

The Fly is a Menace to Health—Summer, with the holiday pleasures which it brings, is often marred by that pest of health and comfort—the fly. The presence of flies around any dwelling means that there has been a carelessness on somebody's part. A few necessary precautions taken in time is all that is necessary to prevent the annoyance and dangers to health which can be safely attributed to this pest.

Types of Fly
The fly which bothers us around the house and at summer resorts are of two main types—the house fly and the blow fly. The latter are larger than the house fly and have bright metallic bodies and make considerable noise when flying. The house fly is generally found around cattle and horses, in appearance it resembles the house fly, but has no offensive tincture. It bites and sucks blood and is especially active before storms.

Control of the Fly Pest
When you study the life cycle and habits of flies, you know beyond all doubt that to be effective, the work we do to destroy them must be aimed at the distribution point, viz., the breeding grounds. There are several methods of attack:
(a) Chloride of Lime applied in layers of about 1/4 inch thick on the fresh exposed contents of outdoor privies every four or five days is an effective, cheap agent for destroying the larvae of the blow fly which breeds chiefly in outdoor privies.
(b) Crude Coal Tar Distillate—proves a most effective method in the control of the house fly breeding in stable manure, garbage piles, etc. A satisfactory strength is a three or four per cent solution; this is sprinkled on the edges of the piles wherever the larvae appear. The action is rapid and the results very marked.
(c) The blow fly (blue bottle and green blow fly) breed also in garbage caying receptacles, and in stable manure. Sprinkle crude coal tar distillate (four per cent solution) over the infested areas.
(d) Crude coal tar distillate may be secured from your druggist.
Supplementary Methods
(a) Trap—the cone-shaped type is best; it is so built that the fly after being attracted to bait placed under a glass cover, passes through a small opening in the top of the cone into the trap below.
(b) Screens—wire of twenty meshes to the inch is necessary to keep out house flies.
(c) Poisoning—a cheap and effective poison may be made in the home by adding to a pint mixture of milk and water three (3) teaspoonfuls of formaldehyde. This may be poured on pieces of bread placed in shallow saucers. Place safely out of reach of young children.
Kitchen garbage should be tightly wrapped in paper or kept in fly-proof cans.

Islanders Want Pepper and Sugar

Durban, Natal—On her voyage from Australia to South Africa, the P. & O. steamer Belinda, went two days out of her course on a fruitless search for possible survivors of the Danish training ship—the five-masted schooner, the Bontekamp—which had been reported missing in the Indian Ocean. This detour took the steamer to the two barren and supposedly uninhabited islands of St. Paul and Amsterdam in the southern Indian Ocean, about halfway between Tasmania and Cape Town.

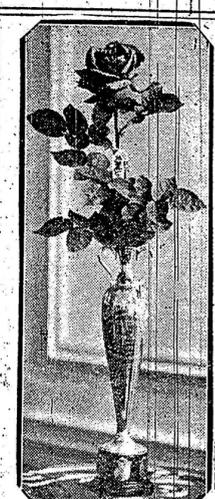

Both islands were acquired by the French in 1832. The island of Amsterdam has an area of 25 square miles, was discovered in 1663. About 2000 miles from the nearest land, in cold southern waters, these islands lie in solitary majesty. Amsterdam has a peak 2700 feet high. The southern extremity of St. Paul is formed by part of an immense crater, round which hot spring bubbles. They are destitute of vegetation except a scanty supply of grass on which goats and rabbits feed. On the island of Amsterdam six rockets and sounder were fired. The rockets were fired by the Indian figures moving hurriedly about, and the French tricolor being hoisted on the flagpole of the depot. Then a small boat put out from the island, containing five French fishermen and a dog. The fishermen were picturesque and gesticulating delightedly. The three who came aboard explained they had seen six men. When asked what they would like, they wanted a boat, a few barrels of powder and sugar. The Indian figures moving hurriedly about, and the French tricolor being hoisted on the flagpole of the depot. Then a small boat put out from the island, containing five French fishermen and a dog. The fishermen were picturesque and gesticulating delightedly.

A Tale of Two Cities
Quebec Eviction (Cons.). In the year 1928, in London, 28 murders were committed. Seven of the murderers escaped justice by committing suicide; the eleven others were arrested, tried, sentenced and hanged. This happened in the most populous city in the world, and in a country where one can practically procure alcoholic drinks any hour of the day and night. Next to London, the biggest and most populous city in the world is New York. The American metropolis has a million and a half inhabitants less than the British metropolis. In New York, in 1927, (the figures for 1928 are not yet available), 28 murders were reported. Not one of the murderers committed suicide, a hundred of them have not been apprehended, the others have been tried, a large number of whom have been acquitted for want of proof, and less than half a dozen sentenced and executed.

Safety for All
La Presse (Ind.). The Executive Committee will no doubt act on the suggestion of the Motorists' League of Montreal that lights should be installed to control traffic in the busiest parts of the Brookline street, especially from Alway's avenue to LaFontaine Park. The suggestion is a very timely one, as the traffic is becoming more and more dangerous. The necessary complement to the installation of traffic lights, attempts made hitherto in this direction have not been particularly encouraging, as experiments have not met with proper support from a certain class of motorists, not even from some pedestrians who do not seem to be able to submit to a practice destined to give them greater protection. However, with a little training and patience, we should be able to educate the masses and make certain the success of the reform.

Judged among thousands of blooms at the Rose Society of Ontario show, held recently at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, the above 'Gloire de Ch. Guinoisset' was awarded the Challenge Trophy as best rose exhibited. It was raised by Mrs. H. W. Dixon, of Toronto, in an outdoor garden. The roses on exhibit ranged from pure white of large and small dimensions to the vivid red of American Beauties, making the ballroom at the Royal York a blaze of perfumed color. There was a record number of entries this year.

Runaway Horse Obeys Traffic Light, Many Motorists Do Not
A woman horse played so small part in the fall of Troy. A milk wagon steered helped write history in Stamford, Conn. Here's the story—and the good folk of Stamford are going to stick to it. During the war, small hours this particular horse decided to run away. The streets were wide and deserted and the going was fine for a block or so, during which time a lot of milk was delivered promiscuously. Then came a Stamford intersection, and as old Dobbin thundered down upon it, the green light changed to red. The noble charger did his best to land on the pavement and stopped dead in his tracks, thereby stalling himself as a law-abiding citizen. The National Safety Council points out this little incident as an evidence of horse sense—often needed by careless drivers.

Owl Laffs

"And now," said the teacher, "will someone please give us a definition using the word 'candor'?" "Please'm," said the bright little boy in the front seat, "my pop had a pretty stenographer, but after he saw her candor."

It's a good thing our wives know where we were last night. It is that! Where were we? "I don't know!"

RED, RED, RED
Oh, my love she wears a red, red dress. That one can see a mile. Oh, my love she wears a red, red dress. That's newly come in style.

We are approaching the station when some folks will insist on being the boat.

There are awkward times, and we sympathize with the teacher who surprised a customer who approached a customer from behind and said, brightly, "Nothing more, sir—I mean, madame? I beg your pardon, sir."

For a serious misdeed was kept after school. He was so willingly and cheerfully that the surprised teacher said, "John, you can't be as agreeable and pleasant during school hours?" "Gee, that's funny. That's just what I was thinking about your prompt reply."

The honeymoon was over, and the young wife was in tears. "You need to say, 'John,' she sobbed, "we were married we wouldn't be here now. You're one, and I'm no thing."

Dolly says, "Never let a fool kiss you. Also never let a kiss fool you."

There are a lot of 25¢ bills I got one this morning from a dentist.

One of our minor papers has been told that nobody in the town went to medical school. The editor had to set the record straight.

"You don't know how was when I proposed to you?" "You don't know how was until you did."

A woman convinced her way Junior talks. I just saw "Stamford." Why, he has twice as much as most boys his age.

AFTER BIG MONEY
"What is your boy doing?" "He's hitting a punching bag," answered Farmer Courtosel. "He has noticed these comparisons the money received by college professors and pugilists."

Usually you can tell by a man's face that his is in boarders.
"Woman have more imagination than men? Especially when it takes a lot of imagination to get a 42-point 'perfectly perfect'?"
COULDN'T STAND THE NOISE
Foreman: "What's the big deal about hitting?"
Hitter: "Oh, I don't mind hitting rivets all day long, but high-pressure water makes me nervous who works with me in my shop."
