Owl Laffs

A farmer was losing his patience and temper trying to drive two mules into a field, and was using strong language when the local parson came by and said:

"Don't speak like that to dumb animals."

Farmer—"You are just the man I want to see."

Parson—"And why?"

Farmer—"Tell me, how did Noah get those into the Ark?"

The banquet was a great success.
And not a dreary time and glum;
This added to the happiness,
Five of the speakers did not come.

"Have they been married long?"

"Just long enough so they have found there are a lot of things that you can't say with flowers."

"Pat," said his son Charles, "do you think they will ever find a substitute for petrol?"

"They have one now, and I wish you'd give it a trial."

"Huh" retorted Charles, "I've never heard of it. What is it, anyway?"

"Shoe leather," retorted his father.

Passenger on Atlantic liner (who is really enjoying the sea, to his companion who has gone below)—"Come on up Jim! We're passing a ship!"

Voice from Below—"I don't want to see no ship. You call me when we're passing a tree."

Things are looking up for the American drama. The other day a Chicago theatre patron shot two men to get a seat.

Fresh Market Boy—"Are those eggs strictly fresh?"

Grocer—"Boy, see if those eggs are cool enough to sell yet."

Peace and Quiet.

Father was dying, and a sigh came from his breast:
"Please bury me, my friends, where I will find eternal rest,
For peace and quiet, so when I have closed my eyes,
Just plant me in some store where they do not advertise."

Young Merchant—"Here's an invitation to my golden wedding."

Friend—"Why, you're not even engaged."

Young Merchant—"No, but I'm going to marry a rich man's daughter."

"Maybe I should've brought the cup," murmured the aviator, as his head began to fall.

Does rheumatism hinder your work?

"WHILE working in a quarry as a driller," writes Mr. John J. Hogan of South March, Ont., "I was seized with rheumatism in the left shoulder. I followed treatments for some time without relief. I had heard so much concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I decided to give them a trial. They were certainly the medicine that I needed for it was not long before I was as well as ever. Now I take them every Spring as a tonic."

This is one of hundreds of cases in which these blood-enriching pills have proved effective in eradicating rheumatism. Buy Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now at your druggist's or any dealer in medicine, or by mail, 50 cents, postpaid, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Alma Mater.

The Cape Argus, Cape Town, South Africa: A hundred years ago Cape Town was already old, but South Africa was only beginning to be. All eyes were turned to the future. We are still looking to the future, but we must never forget that history has been made in this land of ours, and that to our present ideals and aspirations have their roots in the past. This is especially true of education. Educationally, it is true, South Africa has none of the traditions that so powerfully affect the thought and life of the more ancient seats of learning in the Old Country. But even a century gives time for great traditions to form and proud memories to evolve. No student, whether of yesterday or to-day, can think of the old buildings in the Avenue, the gates, the oak trees, the paddock, the professors of a former day, the companionships and games, the college songs, days of study and nights of revelry, without being deeply moved.

Big British Prison to Be Sold at Auction

London—Sir Kynaston Studd, Lord Mayor, presiding at the annual meeting of the London Court Mission, at the Mansion House, declared prison "a terrible punishment." He praised the work of the police court missionaries in saving men and women from prison.

"If we can effect the reform of the wrongdoer by other means," said the Lord Mayor, "the gain is great. This is the police court mission's work, and it does it very effectively."

Last year, he said, the magistrates requested the missionaries to assist in no fewer than 17,000 cases in the London courts. If that policy was general, it must make clear the extent of the effect, namely, that since 1914 no fewer than 24 prisons in England had been closed.

In this connection it is announced that the empty county prison of Knutsford in Cheshire will be sold at auction early in December some of the buildings, which will be offered in 27 lots, being over 200 years old.

Indigestion

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in their stomach. The food has soured. The instant relief is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

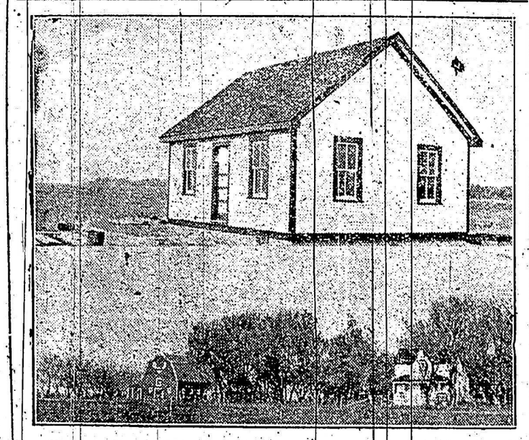
Railway Helps in Building Cottages For New Settlers

Canadian National and White Star Line Co-operate with British Government

Montreal, Nov. 8.—Full approval of the Overseas Settlement Board of the British Government, which is supporting it financially, has been given the project of the Canadian National Railways' Department of Colonization and the White Star Line Canadian Service to solve, to some extent, the problem of accommodation for British families working on the farms of employers in Canada. The scheme provides for the erection of suitable farm cottages in prosperous farming districts in Western Canada to house selected British families placed under the auspices of the National System and the White Star. These cottages are being built carefully, located in the three prairie provinces where the resident farmers are predominately Anglo-Saxon.

Each cottage will stand in a fenced plot of ground averaging from one-half to one acre, and will be close to a good road and within easy access of the local market village, and as near as possible to the rural school. The cottages, modest but substantial, will be of two bedrooms, and the other, for larger families, consisting of a living room and three bedrooms. Simple furniture will be provided in each cottage, including a good stove.

A nominal rent of three dollars a month will be charged the tenants. It is understood that families will occupy the cottages only while they are securing preliminary experience in Canadian farming, presumably for a year's time, after which it is anticipated that they will be in a position to make their own arrangements. The Canadian National Railways' farm placement service will assist in procuring employment for the newly arrived families.



Upper: Standard type of four-room farm cottage built by Canadian National Railways and White Star Line for British Farm Families. Lower: One of the Western Farms on which a Canadian National Railways-White Star Line farm worker's cottage is being built.

Orpheus and Labor

If this age of opportunity for all can find a reminder that even in free peoples moments humanity is not without its resourcefulness, go to London's Crystal Palace on a certain day in fall. There, under the great canopy of glass, you will find a vast sea of faces. Peer into those faces and you will distinguish among them the Cockney, the Tynesider, the man from Wigan and the man from the Clyde. But wherever they come from, you will recognize them as workers all. And note the expressions—not the excitement, too frequently mingled with passion, that marks the trade unions in conclave; not the mechanical dullness that comes of monotonous work in the ship, nor yet the strained look of those who must keep a large family in poor housing conditions. The expression on those countenances is one of keen interest and full enjoyment; it is the elated look of the connoisseur called upon to exercise his special talents.

The event that has thus brought workingmen together is betrayed by the glint everywhere of silver and brass instruments, with here and there the blaze of the bombardon, tilted skyward like a burnished howitzer. For this is the great day of the annual concourse of brass bands, for which factory groups in every industrial area have been practicing hard for many a month. Full 170 bands—4000 bandsmen in all—have journeyed up to London to set their musical prowess in competition with the best in the land.

Hour by hour, band after band essays the intricate measures of the test selection. In endless ebb and flow from quiet cathedral solemnity to sharp clarion challenge, the same strains go on—not a drum beat to drown a defect. Yet the ceaseless flow of the brazen chords never palls. New interest and new suspense accompany each new band that mounts the platform, all quiver with excitement for the supreme test, embodies in some degree that great epic of the workingman's victory over adverse conditions. From coal mine and clay pit, pottery and cotton mill, foundry and shipyard, from drab rows of workers' dwellings amid smoke-blackened hills, the dream of the perfect band arose. The trainer was engaged, the work begun steady, persistent, unflagging repetition until from that forbidding environment there came the rich, warm mellow tones of metal subdued to the gentle service of Orpheus. Nothing short of perfect technique is the goal of these artists of mill and mine. A brass choir may have its natural limitations, but within them it is made a thing of beauty, bringing joy to the lives of generations of workers that otherwise have known little relief from the steady demand of their labor.

The brass band in Britain is the laborer's own handiwork. He himself has laid down its traditions and its standards of excellence—and of its kind it is a masterpiece.—Christian Science Monitor.

The Flexible Tariff

Philadelphia Ledger: The flexible provision is a sound, essential adjunct to a protective tariff. But its merits have been obscured by the welter of politics into which this formerly non-partisan question has been plunged by legislators playing the old familiar game.

Dept. of Health

The autumn has arrived, and we enter into the season of the common cold; unfortunately this season is long, and will be with us until the ice fields and the flowers bloom again in the spring.

The Toll of the Common Cold

The common cold costs the people of Ontario a heavy sum every winter. First, too many winter deaths can be traced to the simple beginning of a common cold; no cold is so simple that it can afford to be neglected, particularly in small children and older people.

The Cost of the Common Cold

The number of persons suffering from colds on any one day during the season of the common cold is enormous. Every second man working in Ontario's industries is sick with a cold some time during the winter. Women workers suffer to the extent of three out of every four. For the balance of the population—children, and those who work at home—we have no statistics, but feel sure their toll for sickness due to colds is just as heavy.

Cause of the Common Cold

A person suffering from a cold can pass it on to others. The infectious material is present in the discharge of the nose and throat; it can be transferred to others by coughing and sneezing. A person suffering from a cold will carry infection on his hands; he should therefore wash his hands before eating, and especially before handling milk or food to be used by others. He will also infect the cups, glasses, dishes, etc., from which he drinks and eats; his dishes should be carefully washed.

Children, and adults too, often take cold as a result of over exposure to cold, getting feet wet, chilling after leaving a hot school, house, etc. Dress in the cold or wet weather so as to protect the body from chill and the feet from getting wet.

Those who have "bad throats"—diseased or enlarged tonsils—suffer more frequently from colds than those with healthy throats. Repeated colds lower one's resistance; children and adults who have one cold after another all through the winter are in a weakened condition by the beginning of spring.

Treatment of Colds

The best thing to do for a cold is to go to bed, to apply counter-irritants and stay there until the cold is over. This is much simpler to prevent colds than to cure them, and most doctors use ammonia baths in the treating the early stages of the common cold.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS WIN GREAT PRAISE

Many Mothers Always Keep Them in the House.

Thousands of mothers state that they know of no other medicine for little ones to equal Baby's Own Tablets—that they always keep the Tablets in the home as a preventive of childhood ailments, or if sickness does suddenly grip their little ones they feel safe with such a remedy at hand.

Concerning the use of the Tablets Mrs. Donat Boudre, Tingwick, Que., writes:—"I have nothing but praise for Baby's Own Tablets. They are the only medicine I have ever given my two little ones and I am glad to state that the Tablets have always kept them in perfect health. I feel so safe with the Tablets that I always keep a box in the house."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and thus banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever and make the cutting of teeth painless. The Tablets are absolutely safe, being guaranteed free from all injurious drugs. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Power of the Movies

F. J. P. Veale in the Nineteenth Century (London): Mr. Baldwin has drawn attention to one aspect of the film's influence—the evil effect film plays designed to suit Western tastes have upon Oriental audiences, with their entirely different standards and outlook. . . . There is, however, another aspect of the problem with results at least equally serious, but far less easy to remedy. At the present time a great film-producing State has unlimited power, not only to magnify its own achievements, but to hold up to universal contempt the character and methods of its rivals. Thus we owe to the American film industry the all but universal belief that the American Army won the Great War. The point is of little practical importance, although it does lessen the faith of tens of thousands of men who laid down their lives in France and Flanders during the period when President Wilson was too proud to fight. It furnishes, however, a good example of the enormous power of the cinema. Compared to the multitudes who derive their ideas of the Great War from the films, the people who seek the real facts from authoritative books on the subject are but an insignificant minority.

It may be the talk of peace, but it does seem as though they're trying to stabilize the farm prices of the horses are some
