
This Christmas, serve Christie's Puddings and Cakes. Their wholesome goodness will delight young and old.

Hurrah! We have

Christie's Christmas Puddings

MADE BY THE BAKERS OF

Christie's Biscuits

The Standard of Quality Since 1853

Secret Things Of Home Secretary

Jix Gives Interview On Badness and Goodness of London

London—As soon as a new Home Secretary takes office he is initiated into certain things that are going on in London which hardly any man knows or unless he lives the life of a flaneur in the West End.—Lord Brentford—Better known as Jix.

Jix, whose pronouncements as Home Secretary were always made more pronouncements. They were on the subject of London as a [illegible] of crime and in a few days [illegible] to the subject [illegible] of people.

and, as a final [illegible] charge that London is [illegible] some other places.

It was in the solemn [illegible] solicitor's office just off [illegible] offices of this old fish that he walked up and down on a soft carpet and delivered his judgment on London.

Secret Service

He was sitting alone at the head of a very long table in a very long room when I was ushered in (with a correspondent.) I asked him what were those mysterious things he had hinted at in a speech which new Home Secretary learned.

He rose from his chair.

He smiled his friendly, twinkling smile.

Then he said, "Ah, that cannot be told in public," and shook his head.

He walked up and down, his head bent in thought. He paused in front of the fire, and clasped his hands behind him. And even he talked about London as seen by a Home Secretary.

A man who has been Home Secretary cannot possibly know all the ramifications of crime and vice which exist in London," he said. "He cannot be aware of the facts about the central part of London.

"Nor can he know the real truth about what is commonly called the 'secret service.'

"But a Home Secretary knows it.

"A Home Secretary understands that this 'secret service' is a perfectly legitimate duty which the police are compelled to do in their fight against crime and in their efforts to combat activities detrimental to this country which come from abroad.

Jix resumed his pacing.

"There are certain things which originate on the Continent which cannot be made public" he said.

"All these things add their weight to the burden of the great office of Home Secretary—an office which I think is the most interesting in the whole world."

I asked Jix if he regarded the few square miles around Piccadilly Circus as the most wicked place in the world.

He shook his head firmly. "Every capital must of necessity be a centre of amusement and vice," he said, in a judicial voice, "But I don't believe that London is as bad as some other places.

"Lord Byng, the Commissioner of Police, has done a great deal during the first year of office—and is still doing a great deal—to improve London.

"He is doing it, moreover, without disturbing legitimate amusements at all."

Then Jix shook hands with me and sat down at the head of that very long table in that very long room, and went on with his work.

Rangers Snare Wolf, Long Terror of Deer Herd

Toronto.—A large gray wolf, which for months has terrorized the large herds of deer roaming through Algonquin Park, is dead.

Traps had been set in vain until it appeared he would never be caught.

Jim Shields, chief park ranger, finally outwitted the wolf by placing a cunningly laid trap fastened to a four-inch pole. Visiting the snare one day, Shields found the trap gone. The wolf had gnawed through the thick pole and taken the trap away with him. Shields and his assistants followed the trail and after twenty-seven miles of tramping came upon the body of the wolf with the trap still fast to its foreleg.

Lady (to tramp)—"And you say you are an educated man?" Tramp—"Yes ma'am; I'm a roads' scholar!"

Hospital for Sick Children

67 COLLEGE ST., TORONTO 2

December, 1929.

Dear Mr. Editor,

Your newspaper goes to a lot of kind-hearted people who will be very pleased to learn [illegible] the new country branch of the Hospital for Sick Children, established [illegible] last year a few miles away from the main hospital in Toronto, is proving [illegible] even greater than its most ardent supporters anticipated [illegible] when the original project was [illegible]. So please publish this letter [illegible] piece of good news [illegible] Sick [illegible]

Thousands of [illegible] from [illegible] to come to the Hospital [illegible] of a year. Generously [illegible] throughout the Province [illegible] realize the [illegible] when a little one [illegible] in the world [illegible] every known [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]