News and Information for the Busy Farmer

Ontario Department of Agriculture

Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, will accompany Premier Ferguson to London, England, next summer to open the new Ontario Government building there.

About 50,000 tons of hay have been recently exported from Eastern Ontario and Quebec to Great Britain. The 1929 exports of hay from Canada are greatly in excess of those in the previous year.

Ontario Potatoes Appreciated

Good success is being attained by the Central Ontario Potato Growers' Association. This organization is marketing potatoes under a brand name and graded to a standard above Canada No. 1. To January 10, thirty car loads were sold in new sacks bearing the brand name.

Some of the largest retail firms in Ontario are now handling this stock. The price compares favorably with that received for potatoes imported from eastern provinces.

Co-operative Marketing

Co-operatives grow not simply by an increase in membership, but more surely by an increase in the loyalty of the members. Not necessarily according to the number of cars, or tons or dollars handled, but according to the extent the business aids in improving the conditions of each member. So by an increase in quantity and continuity by an increase in quality of the marketable product of the individual. Not by spurts or waves which brings groups of members into the field at one time, but by constant missionary work which brings into membership, one by one these sober-thinking, yet perhaps conservative and individualistic producers who, once convinced of the value of co-operation remain loyal to the end.

Use Tested Seed

That price should be the last consideration in the buying of seed is the advice of a well-known seed specialist. Quality, as indicated by purity, germination, and trueness to name is the important item. Experience has repeatedly demonstrated that it is far cheaper in the end to buy the best seeds obtainable than to take as a gift low-grade or infected seed. Canadian Seed authorities advocate the same policy in view of the results of seed surveys which indicate clearly that the average farm seed used is badly infested with weeds. It is earnestly hoped by such well-informed [illegible] that seed conditions that [illegible] should be confined only to [illegible] varieties. Seed [illegible] be [illegible] the nearest government [illegible]

[illegible] stock every [illegible] made more [illegible] than they are [illegible] promising [illegible] has been [illegible]

Combating Fires

[illegible] in combating [illegible] or harm in a [illegible] setting or [illegible] a remedy which [illegible] sounds practicable. The base of the [illegible] is stuffed with cotton batting until completely filled. A small hollow is then made with the finger to allow the wick to lie in it. The lantern is then filled with oil and the surplus fluid drained off. The wick will take the oil from the saturated batting as needed and this method undoubtedly precludes any possibility of the troublesome fluid spilling.

Milk-Testing Pays

There is sound common sense in the suggestion of a farmer keeping five good cows in place of fifteen "just cows." The case is cited of a farmer who tired of the work entailed by keeping fifteen cows and who reduced his herd to five "good ones." The surprising thing was that the net returns from the five were greater than they had been from the fifteen. This should prove conclusively the value in the use of weeding out the non-paying members of the herd by milk-testing. The local department of agriculture stands ready at all times to advise the farmer in these matters.

New Hog Grading Rules

The new hog-grading laws which came into effect last September have resulted in some confusion among the less well informed breeders and shippers. The new qualifications are as follows: Hogs shall be divided into two classes, the bacon hogs and the non-bacon hogs; the bacon class is divided into two classes, the "selects" and "bacon." The standard for the select grade is the same except that the minimum weight is now set at 190 lbs. weigh off car. The second grade of bacon hogs or "bacon" must weigh from 170 to 220 pounds off car. The first grade of the non-bacon class is known as "butchers" and its weight range runs from 170 to 230 pounds weighed off cars. All hogs of smooth fleshing and quality not conforming to bacon standard are included in this class. The old shop grade has been entirely removed and hogs under 150 lbs. are known as "lights" or "feeders" and requirements for killers are filled from the feeder grade.

Protecting Cattle

The stockman must be perpetually on the lookout to prevent his choice or even scrub cattle from attacks by vermin, particularly lice and ringworm. The former are most persistent and cause much annoyance. Cement and hellebore, six parts to one, have been used but it has been found that this dries the hair. Linseed oil may be rubbed into the parts attacked by lice or sabadilla powder or some insect powder may be dusted into the hair. One application may kill and clean up the pests, but a new batch will hatch out and in ten days another application will be necessary.

Water For Cows

Cows producing large amounts of milk require large amounts of water as well as feed. It makes up seven pints of every gallon of milk produced and is necessary for all life processes. It is said that of every 100 pounds of milk produced, there is contained, on an average, 87 pounds of water. The cow requires 500 pounds of water including that in the feed, for every 100 pounds of milk produced. Good cows should be supplied 12 gallons or more of water per day, and should have access to it at least twice a day. This supply need not be warmer than 45 degrees if available at all times, but if only supplied twice a day it should be warmed to 65 degrees or above. An abundant supply of water will prevent digestive troubles and assist in the production of the maximum quantity of milk.

Milk Market Improved

Market milk has been greatly improved in quality in recent years. Health departments in many cities have been applying scientific tests in order to protect the consumer from contaminated or adulterated milk. Milk dealers themselves are also making use of these tests to protect the consumer, the dealer and the careful producer alike. By systematic testing and grading of incoming raw milk supplies, the dealer is now able to eliminate milk unsuitable for bottling and thus to improve the quality. A Dominion Department of Agriculture Bulletin, No. 123, has been issued treating the subject from the standpoint of food value, cleanliness, keeping quality, healthfulness and flavor. It explains the importance of these factors, and tells how the tests are made. From knowledge of the quality of milk obtained from these tests, dealers are able to grade milk and to pay for it according to its value. Local conditions such as present quality of milk supply, relative shortage and surplus at different seasons, as well as competition at other points, for milk, must be taken into consideration in any system of grading.

Popular Comedy Success to Open Canadian Festival

SCENE FROM "THE PATSY"

"The Patsy," Barry Conners' great comedy which will be presented at the coming Canadian Chautauqua Festival here by the Martin Erwin Players, tells the story of Patricia Harrington, who seems to be the "patsy" or the unfortunate one who is blamed for everything that goes wrong in the Harrington family. Patricia, or Patsy, is a charming little miss who accepted all the snubs that came her way until she fell in love with Tony, her big sister's discarded suitor. Then the worm turns, and Patsy, through three acts of deliciously funny comedy situations, asserts her personality and wins the boy she loves.

"The Patsy" is an enthralling comedy, with brilliant dialogue, intermingled humor and captivating romance.
