Miss Macphail's Letter

Robert Gardner, the House Leader of the U. F. A. group stirred up a hornet's nest when he asked for the adjournment of the House, May 22nd, to discuss "A definite matter of urgent public importance," in connection with the Hydro Electric development of the St. Lawrence River by the Beauharnois Power Corporation, and its various subsidiary companies. The Government, Mr. Gardner asserted, had by Order in Council, approved the development over the head of the Joint Board of Engineers, which investigated the St. Lawrence project. He asserted also that the Beauharnois Power Company had violated and exceeded conditions imposed on them by the terms of the Order in Council. R. O. Sweezy has been the moving spirit in the enterprise, and while under the agreement with the Government, they were allowed to divert only forty thousand cubic feet per second, their advertising intimates that they will control the full flow of the river. He declared in summing up the situation that R. O. Sweezy and his associates had received in cash and securities one hundred and four million eight hundred and sixty thousand dollars, and all the assets of the concern, although there was no evidence that they spent a dollar of their own money.

E. J. Garland of Bow River asserted the company was selling bonds to the public on representation that it expected to control the entire flow of the St. Lawrence at the point of development. This was "misrepresentation and fraud," Mr. Garland said, and he called for cancellation of the Order in Council. The Hon. R. B. Bennett asserted that the whole situation should be subjected to a judicial enquiry. He felt the situation was a menace to the industrial and economic life of Canada. The Hon. J. C. Elliott, and the Hon. Lucien Cannon replied for the government. Mr. Elliott said the company was incorporated under a charter of the Province of Quebec, and the Dominion was concerned in the matter only to the extent of safeguarding the navigation rights on the St. Lawrence. The Hon. Lucien Cannon said that the province of Quebec had jurisdiction in the matter, and that province had determined rightly or wrongly, that private ownership was the best medium for the development of water power. Colonel Geary thought that Parliament, not the cabinet, should have said whether or not the approval should be granted. J. S. Woodworth pointed out that if a youth commits theft of even a small article or sum of money, he gets a jail sentence, while these gigantic steals are allowed to go unpunished. Many of the directors and parties interested in this company are in the Capital City to-day, including R. O. Sweezy. The election in all probability will be July 28th. Certain changes have been made in the Election Act. It will be possible this year for the agents of the candidates to pay for the hall the night of the meeting, which will be a great convenience. Privileges are being extended to voters afflicted with blindness. They may take their relatives or friends with them to the polling booth to mark their ballots. In the past this has been done by the Deputy Returning Officer in the presence of scrutineers.

The Pensions Bill has passed through all its stages. The bill reviews the machinery for dealing with appeals of soldiers from the Pensions Board. It provides a Veterans Bureau to prepare the cases for soldiers, and it aims to deal with all those cases which experience has shown were not dealt with, or were unsatisfactorily dealt with in the act as it now exists. It was stated in the House that there was nothing partisan in the bill, or in the methods by which the committee worked. Mr. William Irvine remarked that he hoped the same splendid co-operation would be extended to all legislation. The Act comes into operation October 1st, 1930. Major Power, the Chairman, declared that the reason for this was the desire of the Committee to have the appointments to the new Boards made by the government, that would assume office after the General Election.

When the items of the budget were being discussed some rather sweeping changes were made. On early vegetables and fruits a change was made from an all around ad valorem duty to a seasonal tariff, extending over different periods for different products. Mr. J. S. Woodworth made a spirited attempt to have the hours of labour of the men in the steel mills of Cape Breton reduced below twelve hours. He pointed out that under the new tariff schedule the industry is enjoying a stiff increase in protection by tariff, and some of that benefit should be passed on to the men.

This has been a rather festive week. I was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Philip Grove at their summer cottage on the Ottawa River. Mr. Grove has written several books, possibly the best known "The Search for America."

He is devoted to the prairies, and his writings have helped many people who appreciate them more.

The Acting Speaker of the Senate, the Hon. A. C. Hardy, entertained at luncheon a well assorted group of senators. The Hon. Cairine Wilson and I had the honor of sitting on either side of him, and of voicing the group's appreciation of his hospitality. A group of Parliamentarians play volley ball. It insures greater mental activity, helps retain "that boyish figure". The losing team entertained the winners and their friends to dinner this week. Agnes C. Macphail, House of Commons, Ottawa, May 23rd, 1930.
