

Courteous Driver Awarded Prize

Novel Road Race Features Highway Etiquette and Driving Rules

For emphasizing the importance of highway rules and courtesy, a novel road race for owner drivers was recently held in Manchester, Eng., in which the winning motorist was awarded the prize not on his speed, but on his observance of the rules of the road and the mechanical fitness of his car.

The race was staged by the North Manchester Motor Club, and included the use of instruments never before utilized in an auto race.

The competitors were lined up and requested to attempt only an average speed of 20 miles an hour. At the starting gun they swung away over the route, which was about 45 miles in length. Official observers were hidden at regular points along the way, and it was their duty to check carefully that each entry gave the correct hand signals, did not attempt to pass each other on curves and up hills, sound their horns when required and generally observe all the rules of careful driving.

At the finish line, each car as it came in was given a brake test, and the alignment of its wheels carefully tested on special automatic brake testing and wheel alignment machines.

The winning motorist was the one who had the most thoroughly proven his knowledge of the rules of the road, and had made the least commissions in highway courtesy and common sense.

Good Reason

Most of the guests had arrived, and the hostess was waiting in the hall for a certain Mr. String. Presently the late arrival appeared, but as soon as she saw him her face fell.

"Oh, Mr. String, I heard you were an excellent musician!" she said. "I'm so disappointed—I was hoping to see you arrive with an instrument under your arm?" What instrument do you play?"

"The piano," returned her guest.

Owl Laffs

The man who is content with what he is isn't much.

Johnny—Say, Dad, remember the story you told me about the time you were expelled from school?
Dad—Yes.
Johnny—Well, isn't it funny how his story repeats itself?
A wife is somebody who remodels a funny story as you go along.

Old Boy—I have had my life insured in your name for $16,666. Now, can I do anything better than that to show my devotion?
Young Wife—No, dear; not as long as you live.

Paula: Once there was a rich young bachelor who didn't think every feminine smile an effort to hook him.

What has become of the old-fashioned girl who used to hang her head out of the window to dry her hair after she had washed it?

Girls who are handy with men, can either twist them around their fingers or break them under their thumb.

Teacher (questioning class)—What do you call a man who keeps on talking and talking when people are no longer interested?
Boy Pupils—Please, sir, a teacher.

Any man can get along with a woman not his wife.

Mrs. Perkinsen—Hello, Bobbie. What are you looking for, huh?
Bobbie—Looking for elephants. You got any elephants or giraffes or lions with you?
Mrs. Perkinsen—No, not one. I see that you like animals.
Bobbie—Yeah. Got any ponies or antelopes or nuffin' with you?
Mrs. Perkinsen—No, Bobbie. Of course not. Why do you expect me to carry around such a menagerie with me?
Bobbie—Well, you did the other day.
Mrs. Perkinsen—What day? What on earth do you mean?
Bobbie—Well, anyhow, mamma told papa at dinner that she seen you on the street and you looked like a circus.

Ask Me Another: What headlines do the women scan most carefully?
Answer: Wrinkles.

Little James (on train)—What was the name of the last station we stopped, mother dear?
His Mother—I don't know. Don't bother me. I'm reading a story.

Little James—Well, its too bad you don't know the name, because little brother got off there.

John Smith was with a party of friends on a fishing trip, and around the camp fire one evening the talk naturally ran on big fish. When it came his turn, John began, uncertain as to how he was going to come out: "We were fishing one time on the Grand Banks for—er—er—
"Whales," somebody suggested.
"No," said John, "we were baiting with whales."

Don't Forget to Call

Jack Clark had secured temporary work with the Wainwright Construction Company. It meant leaving home, but both Mother and son realized how difficult it was to get a job, and when the chance came, Jack took it.

"Don't forget to call me on the telephone often, Jack," said his Mother. "You know how anxious I will be."

"You need not worry, Mother. I went over to the Bell Telephone office when I got word about the job and they told me I could call you from the telephone in the Construction Camp and have the charges made on our own telephone bill each month."

"Far from it, Mother, but you know how Dad insisted that I always keep you and him posted by telephone if I could not be home just at the time promised. Well, I have what they call the Telephone Habit."

Marquess Explains Why We Must Work

"The Busiest Person Is the Happiest Person," Says the Marquess of Londonderry

"Industrial revival and future economic security depend upon work—hard work on the part of all engaged in industry, whether employer or employee. This means a little re-education for most of us upon the important question, 'Why do we work?'"

"Upon the answer to this question depends the industrial future of our country, and the welfare of millions of homes," writes the Marquess of Londonderry in a little booklet, Towards Industrial Solidarity.

"Without thinking very deeply, most of us would answer unhesitatingly: 'To get money, of course!'"

"But that is quite wrong. No one works for money really. We all work for what money will buy—food, clothes and pleasure. Neither a five-pound note nor a shilling would be of any earthly use if we could not obtain in exchange for it those things which will satisfy our daily needs."

"The Hurly-Burly of Modern Industry"

"This fact is not sufficiently appreciated in the hurly-burly of modern industry, yet it is fundamental to the revival of industry. We cannot live without work, and as it is the chief desire of most people to attain a far higher standard of living, it can come only through harder and more intelligent work by all classes. I say all classes; deliberately, for successful industry is a co-operative effort, and if one department slacks or is unintelligent, the whole of that industry suffers."

"When people save money, it is generally for what they can get at some future date in exchange for their savings. One often hears the young aristocrat say he is 'saving up to get married.' This means he is working harder to earn more money, which he hopes to spend in exchange for a home."

"Another illusion which must be dispelled before we can lay a better and surer foundation for industrial revival is that work is an affliction. It is nothing of the sort. Out food, clothes, pleasure, home and all the social and domestic conveniences we enjoy today are the result of work. Without them our affliction would be great indeed."

"Success in any industry is the result of hard work, and those who shared the work must have thought it anything but an affliction or they would have failed."

"To think and to teach that work is an affliction, is to fill the mind with economic poison. Along this path will not be found the money necessary to buy the things with which to carry on life, nor the health and happiness which accompany work as by-products. We shall find, however, a great number of disgruntled people, extremists in thought and purpose, who believe and preach work to be an affliction, and cause industrial unrest, but who would very soon revolt if the farmer, the baker, the tailor, the railwayman, the doctor, the printer, refused to work."

"Work, and all kinds of it, is the normal, healthy state of mankind. Real happiness does not come without work, nor can we live in combination with that of others. We must work to live at all; and even if the element of money had no existence we should have to work just as hard, for work is essential to life."

God give them peace and plenty and bless the homes they keep. When ends the long day's toiling may restful be their sleep, May many a joy repay them for all the pains they bear, And may our nation's workmen in all her glories share.

The toilers at the furnace, the toilers in the field,
Translate their strength in iron or in the harvest field.
In bricks the mason sings the poems of his clan,
And every door and archway proclaim the working man.

A few there are who toil not and have no bouts with care;
They walk the realm of pleasure to end with boredom there,
But all the nation's workers with duty spend their years,
And earn their right to laughter whenever mirth appears.

God bless the nation's toilers and let their dreams come true,
May happiness reward them for all the tasks they do,
May blossoms deck their gardens and love their homes maintain,
And pride's sweet satisfaction make worthwhile every pain.

—Edgar A. Guest.

The Wheat Crisis
London Daily Herald (Lab.): It has been rather lightly taken for granted that the main reason for the crisis in the wheat industry is that the world as a whole is now producing more wheat than it needs. The Italian Premier suggests that the explanation is that the improvement in the standard of living at the end of the war has caused people who were mainly living on bread before to turn to other and more expensive foods. We doubt this. The crisis did not come in those years. It has come at a time when the standard of living is being depressed everywhere. Lack of purchasing power—largely due to gold shortage—has affected the consumption of wheat as of other commodities. Surely the common-sense thing is to bring purchasing power up to a point at which it can absorb production, not to cut production down to the limits of an artificial-restricted purchasing power.

Try and Find Out
"The busiest person is the happiest person, while the man whose work is truly hard is the much-envied luxurious idler, who is always on the lookout for something to do."

"The whole matter is one of the correct attitude towards work, which is neither an affliction nor a mere means for procuring money. Work done in the spirit of its being an affliction must always be our worst work and cannot set to advantage in the world's markets. That would mean increased unemployment, low wages, and poverty for the nation.

"If the gold mines of the world petered out we should still have to work in spite of the fact. We work to serve others by what we produce, as that the baker might bake into bread what the farmer has grown, gold being merely a means of exchange by which the miner, the baker and the farmer can buy each other's services."

"Industrial peace and all that it means to the worker in wages, homes, education, and pleasure, can come when both sides pull together. Employer and employee have to work, probably harder than at present, on account of their service in some form or other to their country. The best and most lasting service we can give is to make her more industrially prosperous so that all who live in our land may have the opportunity of living happily, and, above all, in economic security."—Public Opinion (London).

France Now Feeling Depression Which Holds Europe and East

Toronto.—"There is no place in the world better off than Canada," declared L. Babayan of Toronto, who has just completed a twelve-week tour of the Orient and Europe. He further commented:

"In Europe every country has been suffering from depression. France, one of the most favored nations in Europe, has now begun to feel the pangs of distress that has caused so much distress in places like Italy and in Germany. Factories are closing in France as they are in Italy, and business is not good."

"I came into personal contact with a number of Soviet Russian agents," said Mr. Babayan. "They are all agreed on one thing—that is, to flood every country they can with their goods. They have a particular desire to swamp England first. Englishmen will wake up to the real condition that confronts them, just as Canada has. Chocolates are being brought into London, England, and sold at a profit and sold retail for 16 cents a pound against the home product selling at about one dollar a pound. That condition cannot last with any benefit to the British people."

"I had the pleasure of a personal invitation to attend the reception and ball given by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson to the new Governor-General prior to his leaving England. Mr. Ferguson has the right idea, and as a result of his efforts there has been a substantial movement of Canadian wheat," said Mr. Babayan.

The fairway beckons green and bright,
But still the pits and bunkers wait,
And no one knows just where the ball
Upon its upward flight may fall,
And who would care an awful lot,
When time permits another shot,
With surer grip and firmer stance,
To gamble of the sporting chance.

The harbour flames with shining sails,
But just beyond the roaring gales
Call to the bolder, braver crew
Who dare to see the journey through:
Who know that life is something more
Than dreaming on a sunlit shore:
Where they shall find through storm
and flame
The thrill and glory of the game,
To gamble on the sporting chance.
—Granland Rice, in Songs of the Open.

Spain Discontinues Car Manufacture

A country without an automobile factory. This is the distinction that Spain holds now that the latest attempt to manufacture cars there has died.

For ten years the Spanish government has been trying to bring about motor car manufacture in the country, with control of the venture in the hands of Spanish capital. Overtures have been made to several English and American car makers to build Spanish plants, but each time the projects have failed, because the Spanish government has insisted on so tying up the deals with red tape that private companies have not cared to risk their capital.

The venture which has just died, the National Automobile Company, was in existence only a year. A factory was established at Barcelona, which is the industrial centre of Spain. The government promised an importation subsidy, and assured the company of parts free of duties, and exemptions from automobile taxes for car purchasers.

The company passed out of existence it is said, because of the decline of the Spanish peseta, and the difficult political and financial situation made it impossible for the government to live up to its promises.

Spain has approximately 150,000 motor vehicles in operation.

Don't Trust To Luck
London Daily Express (Ind. Cons.): There is a lesson in the story of the boy who inherited £250,000, squandered it in two years, committed suicide, and will now be buried in a pauper's grave. The lesson is that great wealth is rarely of use to a man unless he acquires it himself. Then he knows its uses and its limitations. A man who has built up a fortune by his own efforts rarely squanders it, for his interest is in the work which creates the wealth and not in the spending of the money. Those who sit down and dream of a big legacy or a fat sweepstakes prize would be far better and more happily employed in making their own fortune.

Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and effective way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The word symptoms, such as headaches, gas, heartburn, etc., will disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

There may be mists and fog about,
There may be sudden turns — and doubt—
There may be ghosts who stand at bay
Where shadows shut the stars away;
But this enlivens life's romance
For those who like a sporting chance,

NEIGHBORS TALK

"I am employed in a theatre and it is a problem to make ends meet, as I help support my mother and sisters. I like to dress well but haven't very much to spend on clothes. To give the appearance of variety to my slender wardrobe I change the color of a dress or stockings as soon as the things become faded. I always use Diamond Dyes for the work—using them as dyes for dresses and as tints for stockings. I have always gotten such perfect results that our neighbors talk about the great number of new things I have."

"I learned about Diamond Dyes from our wardrobe mistress. She says she has tried all the dyes on the market but none do such splendid work and are so easy to use as Diamond Dyes. I understand they are the world's most popular dyes—and they deserve to be."

Jasper Park "Haymaker"
One of the interesting and curious little animals that inhabit Jasper National Park in Alberta, is the pika. It is about the size of a Guinea pig, with rounded ears, short legs and no visible tail. It can often be seen running rabbit-like across the boulders. Another name for the pika is "the haymaker" from his habit of storing away dried grasses and plants for his winter food. Sometimes under an overhanging rock there will be found his miniature haystack, a bundle containing perhaps a bushel of well cured vegetation, which includes apparently specimens of every plant in the neighborhood.

LOSE YOUR FAT

This sensible way
Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and fireless energy you'd almost forgotten had existed—you get the needed exercise.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one-half teaspoon in a glass of hot water to-morrow morning and every morning—be careful of the foods you eat—take regular moderate exercise—then watch the pounds slide off.

DON'T TRIFLE WITH COLDS

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper: mild and bland to the tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.
