The old belief that the Red River fixes a charm upon those who touch it, was tried out recently as Harry Pearce, undefeated Australian Single Sculls champion and one time world champion, stood on its shore and watched his son, H. IN THE SUNNY SOUTH

(By Wilma-Jackson-March)

We spent the American Thanksgiving Day, the last Thursday in November, at Daytona Beach. This city is especially typical of the southland and the east coast. Every business street in the city was strung with colored lights. The path of moonlight over the ocean and the Halifax river, the many lighted bridges, and piers, the brightness of the parks along the waters edge, the twinkling of the boats and fishing tugs in port, made it seem a fairy land indeed. The next day we called upon an old western friend who lives in this city and after a most pleasant visit we had a dip in the ocean and Sonny had a turn at speeding on the famous beach. There are plans and a beautiful model on view, for an International Temple to Speed to be erected in the centre of the Halifax River at Daytona Beach. It is to be an educational and historical memorial. In form it will be a beautiful tower, to which no admission will be charged. Access to the lookout may be had by stair or elevator. From this point a panoramic view of the surrounding country may be had. In this building will be kept not only the records of the super men and women who have made modern high speed possible, but a complete history of the development of speed on land, in the air and on the water. The public will find admission at all times and the building will be electrically illuminated in colors at night.

The seventh winter Lawn Bowling Tournament at St. Petersburg begins Feb. 1st. The tournament, fostered by the Chamber of Commerce, with many suitable prizes, is open to all lawn bowlers of the world. Here is found the largest distinctive Lawn Bowling Club in the world.

Speaking of sports, there have been some wonderful fish caught in the lake at the tourist camp the last few weeks. Three noted fishermen, one from New York, one from Michigan and the third a resident here, have been running races, so to speak, to get the largest bass. Last week the latter fisherman drew in a 13 lb. bass and was he a beauty? The photographer has been kept busy taking pictures of these famous fishermen and their hauls. Last week a tourist at the camp told me there was an Ontario car had just come to camp so I was anxious to see someone from home. I went down and what should greet me but Shelburne written on the tire cover. That meant home indeed and so I introduced myself to the travellers, who were two brothers on an extended vacation trip. They had been away four months and driven 11,000 miles. They entered United States at Michigan going West through the Northern States to the Dakotas, then north into Canada to the coast and down the coast line to Southern California, then East through the Southern States bordering Mexico and the Gulf to Florida. They liked British Columbia and Washington the best till they reached the sunny state of Florida. They expect to find a spot called home somewhere under southern skies; they said it was surprising how little their trip had cost them. Fortunately they bought their travellers' cheques before our good old Canadian money was discounted in the states. Some places it is not accepted at all. Even the postoffices in certain states will not cash Canadian money orders. But I've heard that some hotels on the East Coast will accept it at par from Canadian travellers who make their residence at those hotels. However, we find that some groceries are even cheaper than last year, potatoes especially and milk. One can surely live very cheaply here. We are paying $9 a month for a lovely bright, well furnished bungalow with fruit and garage. There are two of the loveliest, monstrous camphor trees in the back yard and the shade is so lovely that the tourist club decided to have a picnic under those trees and everyone had a most enjoyable time. We are enjoying wonderful strawberries at 15 cents a quart and the stores are selling grapefruit at 5 cents a dozen. In fact several truck loads of grapefruit have been dumped on the grass at the tourist camp, so that the tourists may help themselves. Orchard owners would rather have the tourists enjoy the fruit than to have it spoil. The season seems a peculiar one, peach trees are in bloom and it is early for them, they should bloom in April or late in March. Last week I saw green figs, the natural size, on a tree that should be in the dormant state at present. At the same farm I saw a bunch of bananas that seemed to refuse to ripen. What's the matter with this old world anyway? A few days ago a report came over the radio that the sun is expected to burst on Saturday. We can only wait and see. Those doleful thoughts make me think of a quaint cemetery which I visited recently. It is an old one, not so many graves but they were strange to me. Some were completely covered with sea shells, both large and very small. One grave had millions of tiny shells on it, four or five inches deep; others had larger ones formed in patterns. Many graves were covered over with a thin cement covering in the shape of a mummy's case. Several pairs of tiny graves, twins I expect, had such coverings and the little precious gifts these children valued, such as a glass mug, a tiny china doll or pretty porridge bowl were placed at the head boards. A pair of those old fashioned china hens, one pink and one blue were placed upon two such tiny graves and one could not help but linger by and think over the emotions behind those things.

Changing the subject from the sublime to the ridiculous I'll tell you about an incident that happened to dad. One night when the band was playing down on Main street dad was sitting on the curb petting a little dog. A little salamander, which is like a northern rat, appeared from somewhere and seeing the dog, became frightened. Thinking dad's trouser leg was a haven of shelter it proceeded to climb on the inside of course. The dog unable to follow, kept barking and the terrified animal kept trying to climb. Dad with a firm grip upon his knee kept it from doing so, but he had a few pretty scratches after the game was over.

On New Year's Day the New York tourists held their state dinner. This year New Jersey and Pennsylvania were invited also. Being secretary-treasurer of the Tourist Club I received an invitation to all the Club activities. At dinner I was sitting beside Professor Porter, a college man from New York, who was one of the speakers. In welcoming the guests he named each state and then turned to me and smilingly said and Canada too. Being the only Canadian present I surely did feel consoled. Though our money at present is discounted by the American nation, I surely find them as a whole, most gracious. I am sending a beautiful little poem "The Girl's Room" by Louise Washburn, which won first prize in a contest recently.

Wilma J. March.

How dear the slight disorder of her room,
So lonely now; a few short hours ago a joyous place,
With merry laughter and smiling face.
A faint sweet perfume in this lonely room
Seems like a last farewell embrace,
A sweater thrown across a chair,
A dress hung in the closet there,
This hollow in the pillow I shall leave a while,
Another time, another day, blankets I'll fold and put away.
Some future day this lonely room
May live again in glowing light,
Look gay again in festive air,
With roses on the dresser there,
And I shall say with fond delight,
"My girl comes home to-night."
—By Louise Washburn.

Barrhead Women's Institute

The regular monthly meeting of Barrhead W.I. was held on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Emma Littlejohns. Eleven members and two visitors were present. The meeting was opened in the usual manner, and after the secretary's report the roll call was answered by "An Ontario County and its County-town." Mrs. J. Hatton gave a paper on "Is Man Ridiculous"; a reading by Miss Mary Bowler was much enjoyed. We then had several selections of community singing. The current events were given by Miss Alma Wilson. The meeting closed by singing "God Save the King", after which the hostess served a dainty lunch, assisted by Mrs. Hargrave, Mrs. Hatton, Mary Bowles and Mrs. A. White. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Hamilton.
