Fullerton - Roberts

A quiet wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, when Enid Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Estyn Roberts, was married to Mr. Thomas J. Fullerton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Fullerton. Rev. Mr. Rogers performed the ceremony and Miss Eileen Grand played the wedding march. The bride, who was unattended, wore a becoming grey suit with a grey Mata Hari turban and silver fox fur with a corsage of orchids. A reception for the immediate family followed, the bride's mother looking smart in a black and white ensemble. Mrs. J. R. Acret, grandmother of the bride, also wore black and white. Mr. and Mrs. Fullerton left on a motor trip, the latter wearing a grey top coat to match her costume. On their return they will live in Toronto.

A Southland Sunrise Easter Service

A crowd of thousands bowed in reverence in commemoration of the Saviour's resurrection at the Shrine's Easter sunrise service in Plant Park at Tampa, Florida. A throng had gathered since far before dawn for an hour of spiritual exaltation and worship. A hazy half-moon floated over the deserted park as the first few worshippers appeared for the dawn service. The few increased to hundreds and thousands and when the first dim rays of the rising sun appeared, a large crowd spread before the bondshell.

H. Stanley Price, Potentate of Egypt temple, announced that 17,000 persons had been counted by 10 checkers from the Shrine membership not including several hundred who had arrived before 4.30 o'clock.

It was perfect Easter weather. The morning air was comfortably cool and crisp and a light breeze stirred the foliage of the trees. The chirping of the mocking-birds broke the silence of the dawn, and throughout the service their song, interspersed with the program numbers added a happy touch of nature to the worship. The program was broadcast by station W.D.A.E.

The stage was decorated to represent the tomb from which Christ had risen, with angels hovering over the empty sepulchre. Above were festooned purple and white crepe runners and at the front of the stage covering was a large cross in green foliage decked with Easter lilies. A profusion of palms and lilies completed the stage decoration. The seated audience was surrounded by flowers and foliage strung from the stage to connecting trees. Thousands, however, stood far beyond the encircled area.

Two young girls attired as angels appeared at each side of the stage as the service opened with the Egypt Temple band playing "Grand War March and Battle Hymn." Preceding this the chimes of the First Baptist Church sent their resonant notes out over the city half an hour before dawn, calling the worshippers to gather for the sacred service. The chimes played "Rock of Ages," "He Leadeth Me" and other spiritual selections.

The audience joined in singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" and then a voice from afar gave the scripture reading which told again the story of Mary's finding the stone rolled away and the tomb of the martyred Christ empty. The Egypt Temple chanters sang "Christ is Risen" with solo parts. Their voices reached to the furthestmost part of the audience. Then the voices of 100 high school girls blended to the accompaniment of an orchestra in the singing of "Fear Ye Not." Miss Thelma Gaskin, guest soloist from Orlando, sang Handel's "I know that my Redeemer liveth." As the program progressed the rising sun peeped over the city and bathed the crowded park with its slanting rays. The Junior Symphony Orchestra played "The Heavens are Telling" and the chanters sang "The Strife is Over" after which the congregation repeated the Lord's Prayer. Miss Gaskin sang Handel's "Rejoice Greatly O Daughter of Zion" in a manner expressive of spiritual ecstasy. The Temple band closed the service with "March Religioso." The crowd moved slowly as the service ended.

Those seated did not arise for a while, as if reluctant to break the spirit of worship. Hundreds attended the service, from out of town and hundreds of Tampons and others went from this service to Lake Wales to take part in the worship at the singing tower. The Egypt Temple Easter sunrise service was started in 1923 when the temple's first chaplain, Dr. George Hymon, suggested that the nobles foster a fitting observance of the Master's resurrection. With co-operation of the potentate of that year, B. Marlon Reed, the Temple decided that the most fitting observance of this event should be held at sunrise on Easter Sunday. Each succeeding potentate has carried on the service, until it has become an institution in the spiritual life of many thousands of people on the west coast. The service attracts worshippers of all denominations to bow their heads in commemoration of the everlasting life.

"Quick... the barn's on fire"

Dick Johnson's wife was making pies when she glanced out the window and saw smoke curling up from the barn. And Dick was over at the Blay's helping with a load of hogs!

She ran to the telephone. Dick rushed home with Fred Blay and in a few minutes they had stamped out the smouldering hay before the fire got really started.

"That was a close shave", Dick said. "We might have lost everything. It's lucky we've kept our telephones."
