I am the Great Saugene

When first I stir 'mid Osprey's marsh

With life's uncertain quiver,
I find myself a moving thing,
A little rambling river.

I trickle on my meandering way
'Mid fern and mosses trailing
Until I stronger grow and then
Fast westward I go sailing.

Past cliffs, through crannies on I go
Through Artemesia gliding.
I barely visit Proton swamps
Then back again go sliding

O'er muddy beds and flats until Glenelg's fair bowers I enter.
Down rocky falls I tumble on Through Priceville's busy centre.

Anon through Durham west and north,
Make haste through clay cuts chalky
Till west of Aberdeen I join
My brother stream the "Rocky".

Who born in Artemesia south
He finds his way through valleys.
Euphrasia, he a corner cuts,
Then through Glenelg he sallies

To roll along through Bentinck fields
Where soon he joins his brother
Then into Bruce, Hanover way
In co with one another.

First Brant we touch, then Carrick fair,
As south we go together.
Until our course we quickly change
The northern gales we weather.

Through Walkerton the County town
Still north on, on we ramble,
Past Paisley, where in Elderslie
We make our last preamble.

Our northern brother there we join
With Holland as his founding
'Twas there that first his feeble voice

Went through the meadows sounding.
Through Sullivan he finds his way,
By Chesley town he sallies,
Until some ten miles farther west
His brothers two he halloeth.

From there through Saugene on we go,
Fast by Port Elgin wending,
Southampton last, then Huron's waves

And there we greet our ending.
And so we wend our meandering way,
'Mid fern and mosses trailing.
At last to ride o'er wave and tide
On endless voyage sailing.
