SCHOOL GRANTS

(By Herb Corbett)

"Only a few years ago, it will be remembered, it was a difficult task for school boards to fill vacancies caused through resignation of teachers, for the reason, that, as a result of very low salaries, the demand was greater than the supply. Through an increase in Legislative grants the salaries soared. As a result of the rise in salaries, the supply of school teachers has by far exceeded the demand. We might now find that, in order to insure themselves of a job, some are bidding for a very low salary—in some cases below the amount of the township grant. We also find some school boards willing to accept teachers at a remuneration that is not encouraging to the teacher, nor at the same time is it saving anything in dollars and cents to the ratepayers of the section. Therefore, would it not be wise for the school boards to try to stabilize the teachers' salaries? In doing so there would be a tendency to avoid a repetition of past experiences, that is, the demand greater than the supply and vice versa.
 Could we not use the following as a scale to arrive at the minimum amount that a board could pay its teacher, without imposing on the ratepayers of the section any additional school tax? We have four sources from which to draw, to arrive at this amount:—
 Firstly—The attendance grant, $1 per pupil.
 Secondly—The grant on certificate which ranges from $30 to $75 according to the grade.
 Thirdly—The township grant, which is set forth in Section 109, Public Schools' Act.
 Fourthly—The Legislative grant on teacher's salary, which is based on the equalized assessment of the section.
 We might here give one illustration:
 (1) Township Grant $150
 (2) Grant based on average attendance of 25 25
 (3) Teacher's Certificate, Permanent Second 60
 (4) Legislative Grant on salary (12 1/2 per cent. of teacher's salary) 75
 Total $310
 (This 12 1/2 per cent. is taken on a section with $100,000 assessment, and which is paying its teacher $600. We use it as an illustration only.)
 It will be remembered that according to recent legislation there is 20 per cent reduction in the three last items, which would mean a reduction in the legislative grants of $32.
 The percentage of legislative grant ranges from 5 to 70 per cent. depending on the salary and assessment. This would mean that many school boards would qualify for more than $75, the figure used in the last item of our illustration.
 Now if six or seven hundred dollars should be the amount paid our teacher in a public or separate school, what then should our teacher in secondary schools receive?
 The salary of a teacher in a continuation school might be expected to be slightly above that of one in a public school.
 Teachers holding a degree which qualifies them for high school and collegiate four years training, which adds to the cost of their qualifications.
 To be fair to the teacher and to the ratepayer of the high schools and colleges what then should be paid in the way of salary. Assuming that the extra qualifications have cost the holder an additional $3,500 plus four years training, or approximately a $5,000 investment, take six per cent interest on investment. From this we should be able to arrive at, or near, the salaries in our secondary schools.
 The officials of our municipal and county councils have been putting forth every effort to reduce taxation, but the question might be asked, "Are the school boards and boards of education reducing to the same extent that expenditure that is within their control?"

had a warm exchange of complimentary statements. Mr. King took the ground that he had not been treated chivalrously, that the Government had deliberately sought to make his return as difficult as possible. Mr. Turnbull, the chairman of the Saskatchewan redistribution committee was moved to ironic mirth at the talk of chivalry, reminding the House of the treatment given Mr. Meighen at Portage La Prairie.
 The debate moved from Province to Province with only the members affected taking part in the debate and since the boundaries of ridings are known only to those who live in the locality, or who have studied intensively the map of one Province, the debate has been particularly uninteresting. The longest debate so far has been that concerning the redistribution of the Province of Quebec. Powerful speeches were made by Mr. Lapointe and Mr. Cardin. Mr. Lapointe stressed the importance in Quebec of the boundaries of counties, municipalities and parishes. His argument was that this redistribution violates them all and charged that there was a determination on the part of the Government to hire Liberals, making some seats perfectly safe for the Liberals, but diminishing the number in which they had a fighting chance. Mr. Poullot made many forty-minute speeches and all the time groups behind the scenes were trying to reach an agreement. There was some talk that the Prime Minister would make the final decision but this he evaded, standing instead behind the committee's report and endorsing it as one of reasonable equity. The Prime Minister's view is that reasonable justice is being done to the Opposition.
 "Without going into the details, Mr. Chairman," Mr. Bennett said, "I must say that I have not reached the point where I believe that human nature is so constituted that those who for the moment are out of power are unwilling to recognise that fact. In all sincerity may I say that while the Liberal party is in the ascendancy provincially and federally in point of the numbers of members from the Province of Quebec, in this Parliament there happens to be in power a Conservative administration. Is it not fair to say that Hon. gentlemen opposite must recognise that fact and recognise the further fact that when a choice has to be made in one of two given ways you must expect that choice to be made in the way that will be most advantageous to the party in power. Is that unfair? Is that not what has always happened in regard to anything?"
 The Liberal leader, Mr. Mackenzie King, came out definitely in favour of proportional representation. "I believe that the only true method of securing a representative Parliament is by a system of proportional representation properly worked out with regard to the Dominion as a whole." He went on to claim that during his time as Prime Minister the Government had introduced a measure dealing with proportional representation in city constituencies, but the measure was not re-introduced because the government had not a majority in the Senate.
 Immediately after 1921 Mr. W. C. Good, who was then M. P. for Brant, urged Parliament to adopt proportional representation and he kept the urging up session after session. He was undoubtedly an authority on the subject; I recall when he finished speaking there was practically nothing left to be said, though in brief speeches the Southeast corner did support him. His constant hammering at the subject induced the government to introduce the bill of which Mr. King spoke, but that the Liberal government at that time was not particularly interested in the legislation is shown by the fact that the bill only got first reading. There was nothing to prevent the measure being carried in the Commons since all our members would have supported it. It is to be hoped that by the time we get around to redistribution again public opinion will be strong enough to secure through Parliament proportional representation in thickly settled communities and a single transferable vote in any single-member constituencies left.
