Canadian Springtime

'Tis spring again, the birds are on the wing,
The south winds blow, the grass and flowers spring
From the moist earth where they have lain so long
To greet the sunshine and the robins' song.
From lofty maples oozed the dripping sap,
Where once the snow-banks lay the ground is bare.
The woodchuck ambles on in search of food
For spring has called him from his winter lair.
Winging their weary journey from the south
Above our heads the honking wild geese soar,
Perhaps they've rested on Jack Miner's farm
Enroute to summer homes on northern shore.
The robin builds her nest before the door
Amid the branches of an apple tree;
Her mate, from nearby, sings a tuneful lay,
Filling the air with sweetest melody.
From every creek and pool and marshy swale,
The discordant music of the frogs is heard
But such a faithful harbinger of spring
Is just as welcome as the sweet voiced bird.
The weeks have passed since first the crow's loud voice
Cawed out the message, "Spring is on her way."
Although since then the storms have raged and howled
The winter's gone and spring at last holds sway.
The farmer ploughing in a nearby field
Breaks the soft stillness with his haws and gees.
Until the seed is safely in the ground,
He cannot find much time to sit at ease.
The years roll on, the seasons come and go
And each one brings us nearer to the last.
The time will come, we know not when or how
But life on earth for us will soon be past.
The flowers we long have looked for in the spring
Will bloom again for other eyes to see,
But we'll have passed beyond this vale of tears
To greet the spring-time of eternity.
Mrs. Nellie Myers.

WITH CANOE AND PADDLE ON CANADA'S WATERWAYS

CHANGE is the prime essence of a vacation and a canoe trip in Canada is one method by which the stress of daily life can be exchanged for a tranquil, carefree existence. It may be for a limited time only but its effects are felt all the year round. Jostling crowds, rumble of traffic, hot pavements and vitiated air have no place in the life of the canoeist.
A large number of interesting routes are outlined in "Canoe Trips in Canada," a booklet recently issued by the National Parks of Canada, Department of the Interior, Ottawa. Following the routes described therein one can drift lazily along or relive the strenuous days of the voyageur. There are cruises which lead for a hundred miles through canal, stream and lake with alternating civilization and lightly wooded country. There are long, smooth flowing rivers and placid lakes on which one can travel for days, and by contrast rushing streams which ever and again break into foaming rapids and thundering falls. There are adventurous trips through wilderness country along routes once followed by Indian and fur-trader, now almost forgotten so seldom are they travelled. Strange geological formations, wild life, good fishing, the charming and picturesque await the advent of one's canoe on the numerous and varied water trails of Canada.
