

TEA TIME TALK

(BY WILMA J. MARCH)

Four nations, two of them from across the high seas, joined hands at old Fort Niagara...

Therefore, it was with wholehearted sincerity and optimism that the representatives from France, the United States, Great Britain and Canada joined with those first...

The first day of celebration, Labor Day, was one of dedication, general assembly and welcome...

Chief Edgar Rickard of the Tuscaroras landed the white people...

John Collier, U.S. Commissioner of Indian Affairs, represented the combined tribes...

Governor Lehman of N.G. praised the various tribes who had a part in the early history of the frontier...

The ceremony of retreat, with the lowering of the French, British and American flags...

Wednesday "French Day" was one of those rare autumn days which seeps with loveliness...

The high light of the afternoon was the dedication and unveiling of the memorial boulder to the memory of Robert de La Salle...

Chief of the Seneca chief stated: "Three nations are paying homage to their countries, who at various stages of its history, controlled Niagara."
