Interest Centres on Sturgeon River Area

Once again western Ontario is experiencing the mad excitement of another GOLD rush and many important mining discoveries have been made over a stretch of territory with an extent of some forty miles and about four miles wide. While a number of promising showings of visible gold were uncovered at earlier dates, the real excitement did not start until June, and since that time the length and width of the district has steadily grown. It is seldom that so many of the older and soundly established mining companies have been so prominent in securing ground and options as has been the case in this field. Among those who have already secured claims are Coniagas Mines, Kirkland Hudson Bay (controlled by Lake Shore), United States Smelters, Macassa, International Nickel, McVitie Graham and others. Several of the properties held by these companies are already under active development and results of work done to date in the district cannot help but create enthusiasm over the outlook. Literally hundreds of veins have been opened up and showings of visible gold has become a common occurrence.

The eastern section of the new district lies some sixteen miles northwest of the Little Long Lac field, which has been so prominent during the last year. In this part of the field several properties have been under development for some months, and last winter a shipment of gold ore from surface of the Dixie prospect was sent to the Flin Flin smelter in Manitoba and it is said that after all charges were paid a return of some eight dollars per ton was obtained. Other companies in this section include the Jomac Gold Syndicate, Sturgeon River Exploration Syndicate, U.S. Smelters, Int. Nickel subsidiary, and Kirkland Hudson Bay (Lake Shore).

In the central and western sections of the camp Coniagas, Kirkland Hudson Bay, Oliver Severa Syndicate, McVitie Graham, the Conell interests, Spring Exploration and many others are prominent with important looking strikes having been made.

General opinion, of those who have visited the new area, is that it seems likely that this district will outshine even the spectacular Little Long Lac section before many months have passed and certainly as the situation looks at present, this does not seem to be any exaggeration.

Rush To Market Wheat

Western farmers are said to be rushing their wheat crop to market at an unprecedented rate, according to reports emanating from western centres. It is estimated, now, that this year's crop will exceed the 1933 one by some 15,000,000 bushels and in addition the price is about seven cents higher. One third of the marketable crop is already in the elevators, with quality being good from the southern sections. Frost has affected grade from the northern sections with the exception of the Peace River country which escaped the frost and is said to have a very fine crop. Malting barley is reported at a premium and present prices are over 60 cents, as compared with about 36 cents last year. A considerable amount has been shipped to the American market with the result that Canadian buyers are unusually active in soliciting this grade. Cash quotation for the best quality of malting barley is around 50 cents.

Dominion Coal Co.

It is reported on good authority that notice will soon go out to shareholders proposing a reduction in the preferred dividend rate to 5% and at the same time offering preferred stock in lieu of arrears of dividends on the issue. It is understood that, if this arrangement is completed, dividend payments on the new basis will be resumed right away.

Rail Revenues Rise

The steady increase in traffic revenues of the Canadian Railways, which has continued almost steadily for over a year provides one of the bright spots in the Canadian economic picture. With the exception of June, when a slight decline was recorded, combined traffic revenues of the two roads have shown an increase each month over the same period a year ago. During the month of August the increase amounted to 4.8% while the first two weeks of September recorded an increase of over eleven per cent, as compared with the same two weeks in 1933.

Mineral Output Shows Big Advance

Figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that mineral production in Canada for the first six months of the current year has made a very substantial increase. All metals except arsenic and the quantity of gold showed big advances. Gold output was only one per cent, less than in the first six months of 1933, but the average price of gold in Canadian funds during the period ending June 30 was $34.67, as compared with $25.75 in the first half of 1933. Output totalled $49,862,602, a new record high and an improvement of some 33% over the 1932 period.

Total of all minerals for the period under review amounted to $131,942,150 as against $90,647,151 in 1933, an increase of approximately 45%.

Long Lac Adair Mines

Word coming down from this company's property continues to be of a decidedly optimistic nature and Frank Leslie, in charge of operations, states that another new vein, running at right angles to the big number five, has been uncovered for several hundred feet. First assay from four-foot channel ran well over $7.00. Two additional assays from the number five ran over $14.00 and $6.00. The management are now considering plans for winter development, and it seems likely that shaft sinking will be started in the near future. Results of work to date on this property would indicate that Long Lac Adair has real possibilities of bringing in a producer.

Humberstone Shoe Co.

For the year ending July 31st this company earned $2.57 per share on the outstanding common stock and sales were reported as being the highest in the company's history. Earnings were shown at $66,073 as against $63,429 for the previous year.

Working capital also showed improvement, being $383,103 as compared with $369,172 in July, 1933.

Sturgeon River Exploration Syndicate

Following the intense interest which has developed through the widespread and almost sensational discoveries in the Sturgeon River district, announcement is made of the formation of the Sturgeon River Exploration Syndicate for the purpose of acquiring properties and interests in other companies operating in the area. The Syndicate has already obtained a substantial interest in one three-million share company with acreage in the heart of the area where spectacular surface showings were responsible for the present intense interest in the district; has several properties under option and has others under consideration.

Recognizing the tremendous profits which accrued to pioneers in such fields as the Little Long Lac Area, the Syndicate management feels that the same opportunity exists in Ontario's most recent prospective mining district, and it is the intention of the syndicate to wholesale part of its holdings, but at the same time retain interest in the properties through holdings of securities to be issued by the operating company.

The Sturgeon River Development Syndicate, which will shortly be publicly announced, will have as its purpose, actual financing and development assigned to it by the Exploration Syndicate. Unit holders of the Exploration Syndicate will participate on a preferred basis in the issue of Development Syndicate units and will also get preferred position as, if and when share companies are formed and offerings made.

In Sturgeon River, during the past month or two, literally hundreds of veins have been reported to have been discovered, and many of these are said to be of a spectacular nature. Geological conditions are reported as excellent and it seems reasonably certain that a number of new producers will be added to Ontario's steadily growing list.

Canada's Exports Up $51,273,382

New Land For Old

India is so far away that most Canadians if they ever give it a thought regard it simply as a land of teeming millions and overwhelming heat—and fasting Gandhi. But India is in reality becoming a more and more important factor in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and therefore anything that affects its prosperity ought to be of interest to them all.

The Indian government has just been celebrating the completion of a great work of irrigation which must be added to its triumphs of peace. Mother India utilizes irrigation as European countries employ emigration—to add her surplus population. Instead of relieving entirely upon the latter to relieve her congestion, she actually provides new land for her people within her own borders, by providing water supply for areas that could not possibly be properly cultivated as they are.

The latest development in this direction is the Mettur dam on the Cauvery river in Madras Presidency. This vast work is second only to the huge Sukkur barrage on the Indus which was completed two years ago. It ranks in importance and size with the splendid works at Assuan on the Nile. It is one mile long and 170 feet high, it has created a reservoir one hundred miles in circumference, from which seventy miles of main canals provide ample water supply for three hundred thousand acres of land which has not hitherto been under cultivation. The total cost was $3,000,000 and the Government expects to realize six per cent upon its investment. All the machinery and materials employed upon the work were British.

Thus it brought to completion a dream of the eleventh century, for the Cauvery was dammed then, hundreds of thousands of people are also assured of an ample living who have hitherto had to eke out a precarious existence, dependent entirely for their water supply upon the rather unreliable monsoons. British energy and enterprise continue the great work of developing India for the Indians whether Gandhi fasts or fights.—Montreal Star.

Canadian Weeklies Merge in London

Canada and Canadian Gazette Abandon Competition

London.—The weekly illustrated paper, "Canada," published here for the past 27 years is being merged with another weekly the "Canadian Gazette."

The editor and founder of the former publication, Walter Lefroy closes 37 years of prominent association with Canadian news work in London.

Announcing the merger the directors of "Canada" remark the recent years of depression severely affected the fortunes of many newspapers. It had been wisely decided the two Canadian weeklies in London should cease their wasteful competition, they added.

Mr. Lefroy, an Irishman who lived in Canada for some years, is 64 years of age. He first visited the Dominion in 1891 and after six years' residence returned to London, contributing articles to leading publications concerning the resources and development of Canada and its growing importance. Before, he founded "Canada," he established the "British Columbia Review."

Under Anaesthetics

There were held the other day at Dundee meetings in connection with the British Dental Association. At one of them there was discussion on anaesthetics that might be used in dental surgery. Eripan was spoken of as were also chloroform, ether, nitrous oxide and oxygen.

In course of the talk, experiences of dentists with patients under and after anaesthetics were described. Mr. R. Wilcox, Bristol, spoke of the wrecking of his surgery by a stalwart and violent Welshman, a former pugy internationalist. After the troublesome tooth had been extracted the patient became very violent. He caught the dentist by the thighs and threw him several feet against the wall. The nurse jumped out of the surgery window; but the anaesthetist, a young Scot who played football brought the patient down with a rugby tackle, and ultimately he was overpowered. The patient was a sport however, and after saying he was afraid he had been in an extraordinary manner, offered to pay double fees.

Mr. R. C. Scott Dow, of Edinburgh, related the experience of a Dundee dentist, whose premises had been where a new building stands today in the city. The dentist was amazed when several of his patients having sat down in his surgery chair, changed their minds about having the extraction done, saying: "I won't have gas today." The dentist could not understand the change of front until one day he sat down in the chair himself. Directly opposite on the wall of the Salvation Army Citadel, in large letters were the words: "Prepare to meet your God."—Banffshire Journal.

A Chinese Champion

Miss Gem Hoebing the remarkable little thirteen-year old player who won the Midwest Girls' Tennis Championship last Saturday, has all the makings of an England player in her—and fortunately though she is Chinese by parentage she is British by birth.

Handicapped though she is by not standing more than a head higher than the net, she fought her way with out check or hesitation into the final and won that, against a player fully up to championship standard, by 6,3, 6,1. She plays with both head and feet. Her footwork is remarkable and so is her mental concentration. Not of a physique to make hard driving a specialty she wins her games by skill in placing.

Two of the disabilities of her youth are that she cannot play in the Wimbledon Junior Championship this year or next or take the London matric for three years. Her father, watching her Midwest triumph was a monument of Oriental impassivity.—The Spectator.

News of the Air

Last week we gave you all a couple of accounts of the Fise of Public Enemies No. 1 and 2, Rudy Vallee and Bing Crosby respectively. It is with mingled feelings that we relate the story of the rise and fall, (yes, fallen already so soon) of a singer, with a future that was every bit as bright as those of public enemies Nos. 1 and 2 have proven to be. Just think back a few years to those early morning programmes emanating from New York and sponsored by a big soup manufacturer. The whole hour was built around a young singer who had earned a fair degree of success in and around New York, and the powers that be, decided that he was star material and only needed the building up to put him in that class. The programmes were a big success, so the next step was to give him an orchestra of picked men and spot him at the Statler Roof in Boston. As you expected, after his first week, everyone, with the "what-it-takes" were there dancing to his music and listening to his singing. The second week though, something seemed to have gone wrong, the band was better than ever, but his voice had hit that long long trail. He would attempt a note, falter, hit it, then waver miserably. As the weeks passed, it became apparent that his voice was getting worse rather than improving. Needless to say, his contract was not renewed. N.B.C. must have dropped him completely also, for he was heard only occasionally in the two years that followed his dismal debut.

The past week, we were listening to the very fine music of Leo Reisman's orchestra on the cigger half-hour, when, of all things, who should we hear singing, but the very man who seemed to have missed out as far as reaching the top was concerned.

Leo Conrad, for that is his name, is singing a song or two in an absolutely obscure role.

It goes to prove what Winchell says, "It's tough enough getting to the top of the ladder, but it's tougher to stay there."

Just in case you wondered as to the identity of the queer assortment of names we published last week, here they are:—

Cab—Well, that's an easy one. Le Calloway of the Hi-De-Ho school of music.

Miff—Who answers to Mr. Mole. One of the finest trombonists sliding around these parts or any other parts.

Isham—of the "keeping up with the Jones" clan. And what a band!

Muzzy—We suppose that most of you said, "The guy who writes that radio column is screwy, there's no one by the name of Muzzy anywhere. But there is; Muzzy Marcoline, the scat singer with Ted Florida.

Fess—One of Mrs. Williams little boys, leading a hot style dance band, and finally, Oswald Nelson, known better as Ozzie.

Mustn't forget to recommend the American Album of Familiar Music to those lovers of the semi-classic and light music. Virginia Rea and Frank Munn make a grand team interpolating the songs.

We have often wondered just what type of music you folks in the smaller towns and country villages favour the most. The sender of the best letter will receive a free ticket to one of the big Radio Broadcasts here in Toronto this winter.

Once again then, until next week, Heigh-Ho and aren't the middle strains of "I Saw Stars" a steal from "Now you can make my life a Bed of Roses." Am I right?

You Take Your Choice

Bruce Bliven, editor of the New Republic, New York, says the radio broadcasting in Britain is 1000 per cent superior to that of the United States. Joseph Hergeshelmer, in the Saturday Evening Post, ridicules the British service and says it would be impossible to foist it on the American public. Both men spent some time in England studying the system there. So there you are.—London Advertiser.

Creed to Blame

J. N. Darling, who as "Ding," the cartoonist, has made millions laugh, recently said that human atrocities accounts for the dust storm that recently swept over the country. KEPT AWAKE BY BACKACHE

She Was Always Tired

Tried Kruschen—Now Full of Life

Only those who have experienced backache can understand how painful it can be. Only they can understand the disappointment of this woman as she tried one remedy after another—only to find that they failed. And they will appreciate her delight at now being able to write the following letter:—

"I was always feeling tired, never had any energy, and could get no sleep at night, for the pain in my back. So after trying several different so-called remedies (which did me no good at all), I decided to try Kruschen Salts. I am delighted to be able to say that I am now a different woman, full of life and energy, and free from the pain in the back." (Mrs.) M. A.

Backache is commonly caused by the kidneys becoming inactive, and allowing impurities to accumulate in the bloodstream. The six salts in Kruschen will coax your kidneys back to healthy, normal action so that they will rid your blood-stream of every particle of poisonous waste matter. As an immediate result you will experience joyous relief from those old, dragging pains. And as you persevere with the "little daily dose" of Kruschen, the twinges will become less and less frequent until finally your backache will be no more than the memory of a bad dream.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

English of the Newspapers

In an amusing colloquial manner, a running discussion among letter-writers to the London Times, some superior souls have lambasted the "newspaper English" and "headline English." Both have been strongly defended. One correspondent quotes what Mr. J. H. P. Chan said a few years ago. The Press "is producing admirable clear and a pure English prose, far better than is to be read in most books."

Some purists have complained of the use of so-called "noun adjectives." In reply, it is said that "part of the genius of our magnificent language," is the ease with which not only nouns but prepositions, interjections, combinations of words, can be turned into adjectives; for instance a fur coat, an out-and-out scoundrel a million dollar fire. There may be excesses in headline English, but it is not corrupting the language. It is the development of the language that produces headline English.

One of the merits of headline English is that "it gives a palpable advantage to simple Anglo-Saxon words over the longer words of Latin derivation."—New York Times.

A Moral Somewhere

When Joseph Karcimer, also used to work in the upholstering establishment of Joseph Hagan, of Boston, he came to work one morning a week, the boss told him that he had got in on time he might have a little luck.

Balkan said that in ripping the cover off a divan he had found $200.00 in money, which Karcimer, and just as well have found for himself, had done the job himself, if he hadn't been late. He showed him the huge roll of bills.

This impressed Karcimer not only as a lesson in the value of punctuality but as a somewhat dirty trick on the owner of the divan. So he told the police about the good luck of his boss and the police came on once to learn what the Balkan meant by keeping the money in such circumstances.

It was then that the luckless worker found that his boss was even meaner than he had suspected.

For the $200.00 turned out to be nothing but a bundle of old German marks, worth about 8 cents at the present market wrapped up in a few dollar bills. Balkan had painted them in the sofa just to give his employee a lesson on the penalties of lateness. He then fired the man for telling the police.

I don't know what may be the moral of all this, which is faithfully recorded in the Boston Transcript, but I don't think it has much to do with being late.—Baltimore Sun.
