HOLLAND CENTRE

The township hall was filled to capacity on Wednesday evening to greet the presentation of the play "When a Woman Decides", by the Young People's Society and Ladies' Aid of the United Church. Those taking part were Clifford Brown as Billy Defoe, Millionaire's Heir; Marie Troughton as Hilda, his aunt; Evelyn Hampton as Bessie Hayden, a poor little maiden whom he eventually marries; Bob Mandino as Silas Sawyer, his attorney; Mrs. C. Price and Betty Jackson as Matilda Petter and Maybelle Tony, "Gold Diggers"; Raymond Hampton as Rastus, "Head Butler", colored, and Alma McMullen as Mandy, the Cook, also deeply tanned. All deserve credit for the fine acting as does Bert Parker for his directive ability. In the intermissions of the three acts violin and piano music was capably rendered by Web.
