Improvements

George street is coming to the front in the line of improvements.

Mr. F. Dowling recently purchased a house from Mr. P. McArthur, and has since jacked it up, built a stone foundation under and has the material on the ground for veneering it with brick.

Mr. John Beckett is doing the work. Mrs. Burnett, on the opposite side of the street, has had her home raised up and a stone foundation built beneath; Mr. Beckett did it. Then the Presbyterian manse has been greatly improved by an application of paint to the woodwork of the exterior.

The Presbyterian Church has also been tastefully calcimined within and painted without, all of which, not only adds to the general appearance of both, but speaks well for the pastor, Rev. Mr. Hunter, and the congregation.
