CANADIAN VISITORS IN U. S. TO BUY FIND MANY ARTICLES CHEAPER AT HOME

Father wants some new accessories for the car, daughter needs a new dress, and the son and heir is mastering an almost uncontrollable desire to rush down town and buy that nifty wool suit in the window.
 Why?
 Because mother has said, as she says every year, that "We are going to visit Aunt Matilda in Ohio in a few weeks."
 And everyone knows that mother's next remark will be "..... and we can buy it cheaper in the States."
 Mother is both right and wrong. Leaving aside all consideration of father's politics or his views on the tariff question, he can get his car radio cheaper in the United States.
 Daughter can get her new dress for less money in Canada, if it happens to be a cotton frock, but she might be wiser to wait for the visit to Aunt Matilda and then lay in a year's stock of cosmetics from the United States. She will also save money by buying her hose across the border.
 Junior's all-wool suit will cost him $19.50 at Jones' store with its "Buy in Canada" placards, but if he waits until he is across the border the same suit will cost him $25.
 But if the family's requirements of sporting goods, father's razor blades, or his engineering precision tools need replenishing, he can save money again by getting them on the trip to Aunt Matilda.
 It sounds complicated, but it is simplicity itself if the Canadian family visiting the United States knows in advance what it wants to buy.

Gain and Lose Business

Border retailers will lose business in some lines of merchandise as the result of the new tourist exemption of duty on articles up to $100 in value coming from the United States. In other lines of merchandise their price tickets tell a plain story of savings that any Canadian can enjoy.
 At one time there were hundreds of articles that could be purchased at lower prices in the United States, but when codes were imposed under the now defunct N.R.A., the result was to raise prices to a level that cancelled the savings Canadians were able to make.

Since that time, trade has been more competitive at border cities and in some merchandise there is no difference between prices in Windsor, for example, and Detroit. There is the $100 exemption, it is true, but it means nothing in the case of hundreds of items which, bought in the United States, merely deprive Canadian merchants of sales which could have been made at the same or lower prices, and impede the traveller with unnecessary luggage. Woollen blankets are a case in point; so are some kinds of perfume, good hats, broadcloth shirts, English razors and many other articles that can be bought for less in Canada.

Household Goods Higher Here

Household furnishings? The answer is given by prices quoted in advertisements appearing in United States publications. They are lower, as the following comparative price lists of similar goods at retail in Windsor and Detroit reveal:
 Axminster rugs, large, Windsor $32.50 to $54; Detroit $37.50 to $47.50; small, Windsor $2 to $5.50; Detroit $2 to $4.50.
 Wool blankets, single, Windsor $2.98; Detroit $4.98. Double, Windsor $21.50; Detroit $39.50.
 In sporting goods the advantage lies with the U. S. stores.
 After making lengthy price comparisons the writer of the article says: "But that does not mean 'You can get it cheaper in the U.S.' The statement is only half true, and like all half-truths it is very misleading. The information in the foregoing was taken from The Financial Post.

King Edward VIII Is Royal Patron

Accepts Invitation of National Sanitarium Association

A letter received yesterday from Buckingham Palace, London, addressed to Mr. E. L. Ruddy, President of the National Sanitarium Association, states that His Majesty King Edward VIII. has accepted the invitation to be royal patron of the Association.
 "I am commanded by the King," reads the letter which is an official black-bordered Buckingham Palace stationery, "to inform you that His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant his Patronage to the National Sanitarium Association, Toronto. (Signed) Wigram, Keeper of the Privy Purse." This letter came to Mr. Ruddy by way of Government House in Ottawa, along with a kindly message from the Governor-General.
 In 1907 the then King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra became the first Royal Patrons of the Muskoka Hospital. Ever since, members of the Royal Family have taken a deep interest in the work.
 Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives, the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives and the Queen Mary Hospital for Consumptive Children at Weston, formerly had as Royal Patron the late King George V.
 His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, great-uncle of the present sovereign, laid the corner-stone of the Queen Mary Hospital for Consumptive Children. It was the first hospital in the world devoted to the treatment of children suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis. On May 12, 1913, Queen Mary in Buckingham Palace, pressed a button by which the doors of the hospital were electrically opened.
 When fire destroyed the original section of the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives, the King Edward Memorial Fund was inaugurated by which over six hundred thousand dollars was raised. In this work the Duke of Connaught took an active part.
 Upon learning recently from the Earl of Bessborough that the tiny patients at the Queen Mary Hospital for Consumptive Children had taken from a London illustrated paper and framed a picture of Queen Mary and the Princess Elizabeth, Her Majesty voluntarily sent the children a signed portrait of herself and the little Princess.
 Every Governor-General of Canada, from Earl Grey on, has been Honorary President of the National Sanitarium Association. The three hospitals maintained by the Association have a total of over 1,000 patients. Canada again pioneered medical achievement when the new Surgical Building, one of the first structures erected on this continent for the surgical treatment of tuberculosis, was opened about three years ago at Weston. It has already justified itself, said Mr. Ruddy.
