MOTORISTS

Try Courtesy

and See How Others
Will Follow

WHEN NEXT you go motoring resolve to "Try Courtesy" every inch of the way and see how much more enjoyable your trip will be and how quickly other drivers will respond to your courtesy. If I could but persuade half of the motorists to "Try Courtesy" I am confident that the other half would follow suit and then we would have established the greatest single factor for safe motoring—courteous driving.

Again I suggest that you "Try Courtesy" the next time you are driving. Try to refrain from "pocketing" your fellow-motorist when he gets into a traffic difficulty. Try to give him some warning of what you intend to do next whether it is to slow down, stop, change direction or overtake him. Try to give him his share of the road so as not to unnerve him by a "close shave." Try to remember to dip or dim your brilliant headlights when you meet him at night so that he will not be "ditched" or drive straight on when he should take a curve. Try to remember that hills, curves and other blind spots are danger spots—keep to your right side of the road when you come to them.

In these and the dozens of other ways, which will occur to you, I sincerely recommend that you "Try Courtesy" every inch of the way.
