Lost Glenelg Lad Found on Sunday

The neighborhood of 30 Sideroad in south Glenelg had an exciting ten or twelve hours Saturday night and Sunday when it became known that Gerald Tucker, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tucker, aged around three or four years, had wandered away and could not be found. Once the news got around the neighbors of the family commenced an intensive search, and at one time it is estimated that upwards of 200 searchers were scouring the country roundabout in an endeavor to find the youngster. Gerald had been in the field with his father, as he had been doing on numerous occasions, and when it was noticed he was not in the immediate vicinity of the workmen, no particular attention was paid to it, as it was thought he was around the field somewhere, possibly behind some of the standing crop. When he could not be found, however, a search-party was organized which scoured the whole country with no results until Sunday morning about 5.30, when the boy was found asleep in the bush on his own farm.

Considerable anxiety was felt by the neighborhood for his whereabouts, as when he left his dog accompanied him, and a small boy and a dog, had been seen some two and one-quarter miles north of the parental home, and had also been seen in the Glen. It is thought the boy and the dog wandered some five or six miles before they settled down for the night in the bush on the home farm.

Gerald was none the worse for his experience, and the story of his wanderings, which reads something like a fairytale, ended the same way, happily, with the lad returned to the arms of his grief-stricken and anxious parents.—The Durham Chronicle.

Your Hospital Deserves Your Support

The public of Ontario are sole beneficiaries of an estate valued at over $75,000,000 and they do not even realize it.

So contended the Board of Directors of the Ontario Hospital Association at a recent meeting.

"How many patients have any appreciation of the fact that from the moment they enter the hospital door they are accepting gratuitous gifts which in value far exceed the fees which they pay for hospital services?" one of the directors asked.

As illustration, the following conversation was cited between a doctor and a patient, who, disgruntled over the fees he had been charged for hospital service, was disputing their justification. While listening to his complaints, the doctor looked over the hospital account which the patient had handed to him, and after a moment's thought, remarked:

"There does seem to be something wrong here."

"Ah," said the gratified patient, "I thought you would see it that way."

"Yes," said the doctor, "they seem to have forgotten to charge you for some items."

"What—what do you mean?"

"For one thing," replied the doctor, thoughtfully, "they haven't charged you anything for the hospital building—"

"Why charge me for the building?" interrupted the patient heatedly. "It was there before I ever became sick."

"You used it, didn't you?" asked the doctor. "The doctors and nurses were there before you became sick. You paid for their services. Why not for the building that made their work possible? That building cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to build. Somebody had to pay for it—why not the patients who are benefitting?"

"Oh, that has been paid for by donations, bequests, and all that kind of thing."

"Exactly," said the doctor. "In other words someone else handed you a building without charging you a cent, gave you a hospital bed and all the hospital furnishings which added to your comfort and played a part in your recovery, donated X-ray machines, fitted out laboratories, and paid thousands of dollars for other equipment to which you, in large part now owe your life. I don't see anything on your bill for any of these items." "Here, give me that bill," said the patient. "If I listen to you any longer, I'll not only be thanking the hospital for letting me off so lightly, but sending them a cheque for unmentioned indebtedness." "So you should," remarked the doctor quietly, as he moved away. $75,000,000 are invested in hospital buildings and equipment in this province. Some quarter of a million patients are given free use of them each year—a legacy, surely, which should not be forgotten when considering your hospital account.

W. C. Knox, Toronto business man, has announced he will allow his name to stand for the office of Conservative candidate for Huron-Bruce riding in the forthcoming provincial election. Mr. Knox, a Wingham native, is well known throughout the riding. His father taught school a number of years and also conducted a jewelry store in Teeswater, Wingham, Lucknow and Gorrie.
