See That YOUR Name Is On The Voters' List

In this issue of The Standard appears an adv. setting forth the dates and places at which Revising Officers will sit to add names to the voters' lists for the forthcoming Ontario election. It is not a difficult matter to have names added provided the applicants are qualified voters and every person entitled to the franchise has the right to vote. The Clerk of the municipality in which you live and very likely some party worker close to you will have lists so that it is an easy matter to find out whether your name has been entered on the list. If it has not some of your friends will be glad to put you in touch with some person who will be interested enough to see that your name is submitted to the Revising Officer for consideration. Every British subject, 21 years of age with the required residence qualification has the right to vote and each individual should see to it that such rights are not lost.

--and Sudden Death

(By J. C. Furnas)

(ED NOTE—Like the gruesome spectacle of a bad automobile accident itself, the realistic details of this article—which first appeared in Reader's Digest—will nauseate some people. Those who find themselves thus affected at the outset are cautioned against reading the article in its entirety, since there is no letdown in the author's outspoken treatment of sickening facts.)

Publicizing the total of Ontario's motoring injuries—more than 10,000 last year and over 500 killed; at the rate we're going we should hit the 500 mark this year—never gets to first base in jarring the motorist into a realization of the appalling risks of motoring. He does not translate dry statistics into a reality of blood and agony.

Figures exclude the pain and horror of savage mutilation—which means they leave out the point. They need to be brought closer home. A passing look at a bad smash or the news that a fellow you had lunch with last week is in a hospital with a broken back will make any driver but a born fool slow down at least temporarily. But what is needed is a vivid and sustained realization that every time you step on the accelerator, death gets in beside you, hopefully waiting for his chance. That single horrible accident you may have witnessed is no isolated horror. That sort of thing happens every day, everywhere in Ontario. If you really felt THAT, perhaps the paragraph in Monday's paper recording that a total of 15 citizens of this province were killed in week-end crashes would rate something more than a perfunctory tut-tut as you turn back to the sports page.

An enterprising magistrate now and then sentences reckless drivers to tour the accident end of a city hospital or morgue. But even a mangled body on a slab, warily portraying the consequences of bad motoring judgment, isn't a patch on the scene of the accident itself. No artist working on a safety poster would dare depict that in full detail.

That picture would have to include slow-motion picture and sound effects, too—the flopping, pointless efforts of the injured to stand up; the queer, grunting noises; the steady, panting groaning of a human being with pain creeping up on him as the shock wears off. It should portray the slack expression on the face of a man, drugged with shock, staring at the Z-twist in his broken leg, the insane crumpled effect of a child's body after its bones are crushed inward, a realistic portrait of an hysterical woman with her screaming mouth opening a hole in the bloody drip that fills her eyes and runs off her chin.

Those are all standard, everyday sequels to the modern passion for going places in a hurry and taking a chance or two by the way. If ghosts could be put to a useful purpose, every bad stretch of road in Ontario would greet the incoming motorist with groans and screams and the educational spectacle of ten or a dozen corpses, all sizes, sexes and ages, lying horribly still on the bloody grass.

Last year a motorcycle patrolman of my acquaintance stopped a big, red limousine for speeding. Papa was obviously a responsible person, obviously set for a pleasant weekend with his family—so the officer cut into papa's well-bred expostulations: "I'll let you off this time, but if you keep on this way, you won't last long. Get going—but take it easier." Later a passing motorist hailed the highway officer and asked if the red car had got a ticket. "No," said the officer, "I hated to spoil their party." "Too bad you didn't," said the motorist, "I saw you stop [Continued on page eight]

TEA TIME TALK

(BY WILMA J. MARCH)

There are so many interesting things at this Great Lakes Exposition that it is difficult to choose what to tell you. Winterland is featuring a fine skating exhibition with several solo skaters from Toronto Skating Club. A dramatized theme runs through the show making it very attractive. Then Billy Roses Aquacade, with Johnny Weismuller, of Tarzan fame, and Eleanor Holm Jarrett, who was expelled from the Olympics when she broke the rule against cocktail drinking, are two of the outstanding swimmers in this show.

As this is "Florida Week" in our exhibit, we are very busy and have had good crowds. Everyone tells us that our exhibit is the finest in the grounds. The week began by honoring the State Chamber of Commerce in the first day's activities. Colonel Harold Colee, Pres. and Bernarr McFadden, the famous publisher and physical culture enthusiast, were the guests of honor at the luncheon. It was the latter's 69th birthday and a mammoth cake was the chief table decoration. The delicious light cake which weighed over twenty-five pounds, and measured four feet across, was a picture to behold. It was banked by lovely flowers and iced in white. The sides were decorated with palm trees and maps of Florida made of green icing. The edge looked luscious with tropical fruits in their native colors. One of the pretty girls in our information bureau, Suzanne Penney, a graduate of Stetson College in Deland, was photographed for the southern papers, while presenting Mr. McFadden with a rose of welcome. In the background can be seen the beautiful cake and groups of the McFadden magazine publications. After everyone was served with the cake at the luncheon, there was still half of it left and we were eating it for two days. It isn't often that a birthday cake costs $19.00, but this one did.

Six years ago Mr. McFadden learned to fly and has many thousands of miles to his credit as a pilot. He flew here to the Exposition with three of his seven daughters. He has flown to Zephyrhills in Florida, to our airport, to visit with his cousins who have a big citrus grove, from which they supply his sanitarium in Delaware with fruits.

I have seen older men who looked younger than he, but he is unusually well and energetic, being well built and still straight, walking briskly. He has a profusion of hair surrounding his well tanned brow. He seems to practice what he recommends in his publications. Tuesday night the Manor House became a reception hall, where the Florida folk were hosts to the travel representatives of Ohio. It was a gala party.

To-night is the dedication of the Aqualux Fountain, honoring the memory of the late Lorenzo Wilson, first President of the Florida National Exhibits. To-day has been in honor of Nathan May, Commissioner of Agriculture. To-morrow is Governor's Day and Governor Fred Cone and his staff will be met at the main gate by the reception committee and a salute of 19 guns will be made prior to a conducted tour of the grounds. Then a luncheon and dinner will follow and the week of festivities will be considered closed, and most of us working the grounds will not be sorry.

I must tell you about the pet animals we have here. The General Manager's daughter has a cunning little Pekinese dog named "Chi" because she was born at the world's fair in Chicago three years ago. She is the pet of the Florida gang. Yesterday she received some fudge sent to her from the south. But listen till I tell you of Shanghai, the Persian cat, owned by the manager. Shang is huge and unafraid. He is quite a man-about-town, rambling all over the Fair grounds. He was missed some days ago and we discovered that he had been visiting Firestone's exhibit and had killed some of their ducks in the farmyard. Then two days ago a telephone call informed us that we had better send at once for Shang, as he was drastically disrupting the Radioland programs. It seems they had a very popular attraction, upon a return engagement, a pair of boxing cats and when Shang appeared, while they were doing their act, he decided that they better quit fighting. So he just up and knocked both of them out right there before the audience. Naturally the management didn't like that so Shang was sent home in disgrace.
