IT MIGHT BE YOU

Take a good "look" at this picture—it's a verbal one, but it tells the story just the same. Even though you won't like it, still it is something you must face if Ontario's annual highway slaughter is to be stamped out.

It is a gruesome picture—and one that happens every day on our streets and highways. This accident happened because the driver was careless. He died—his face a grotesque caricature with his skull split open like a coconut, his chest a gaping hole where he had been stabbed by the jagged steering column.

His wife was less fortunate—she lived. But every time she looks into a mirror she wishes she had died, too. Modern plastic surgery can perform miracles but it has its limitations. When she looks at herself in the mirror with the eye that isn't glass she still shudders, even though the accident happened three long years ago.

Their five-year-old daughter lived, too. But she doesn't realize it. Her skull was fractured and her brain injured. It's much more difficult to rebuild a brain than a face.

Don't say it can't happen to you—because it can and you know it! To-day's headlines of dead, dying and injured people may be telling a story about you in to-morrow's papers. But you can help to protect yourself. How? Demand sane and careful driving from every motorist. Report those you see driving dangerously. And more important—drive sanely and carefully yourself.

Social Credit in Alberta

The following item, written by W. L. Martin and appearing in the Comet, published at Lashburn, Sask., has been sent to us by Mr. R. S. Meville of Marshall, Sask. Mr. Meville is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Bert Carter of this place.

The first engagement in Alberta's fight to abolish poverty is a distinct victory for the Social Credit Government. It is a major victory. The Social Credit Strategy has succeeded in putting the Ottawa Government definitely "on the spot". We know now where they stand when it comes to a showdown between the banks and the public interest.

Social Creditors scarcely hoped for such a decisive gain so early in the campaign to abolish poverty.

Major Douglas stated the case exactly when he said Mr. Mackenzie King's disallowance of the Alberta legislation to regulate the banks was a "major mistake".

The Ottawa Government has definitely shown its hand as working in the interest of the banks. And as the Aberhart telegram to Mr. King put it, "no statutory obligation or public responsibility compelled you to take such action."

The historic telegram then expresses in no uncertain terms the Alberta Government's determination to proceed with its program in these explicit words:

"Implement the will of the people is the only justification for having a government, and the existence and welfare of Our People is the first and most sacred duty of our Government, whether or not of yours, and we are bound to discharge it."

Canadians will note an unusual ring in those words. "The will of the people" has been the last thing governments have thought of.

Mr. Aberhart has started a new precedent. There is little on record since Confederation to show that "the will of the people" has been seriously considered, except in things that didn't matter, by Canadian governments. Otherwise there would be no need for the Alberta Social Credit government to challenge the right of the banks to use Alberta's credit chiefly for their own ends. The credit of Alberta, in the terms of Confederation, belongs solely to the people of Alberta. As so with every other Canadian Province.

Ottawa itself has been a flagrant lawbreaker with the nation's credit. The terms of Confederation explicily charge the Dominion Government with the issuance of sufficient currency to enable the business of the country to be carried on—not to farm it out to bankers and then, borrow it back at appalling rates of interest, calling it "national debt", and taxing the people to pay it. If that isn't a financial racket—well, what IS a racket anyway?

This monstrous way of doing things has reached its apex. It should have been challenged years ago. It is an intolerable situation that the Dominion Government should assist the banks to block every legitimate effort of the people to carry on their business in an orderly manner. That's what "disallowance" means for Canadians.

Disallowance of Alberta bank legislation is the ultimate limit of a government snatching the people in their faces.

The banks in theory are subordinate to the government. In practice they are the exact opposite. The banks have been allowed to establish a financial dictatorship, controlling and using the people's own credit to thwart the people in their every effort to better the conditions under which they live. The policy pursued by the banks of Canada is the sole cause of Poverty in Canada.

The Alberta Social Credit Government was elected for one explicit thing—to Abolish Poverty. In a rich country like Alberta; it is in accordance with the sentiment of the vast majority abundance of everything that heart could wish for. The people should be living in luxury. But the banks are able to say, "you can't have the pieces of paper to get your share of those things. We hold the pieces of paper."

The Social Credit Government of Alberta exists for one main thing—to restore the use of the people's own credit to the people themselves.

The action of the Alberta Government in controlling the banks is in accordance with not only the demands of the people of Alberta; it is in accordance with the sentiment of the vast majority of the people of Canada, that banker domination has gone on long enough and must be terminated.

The Alberta Social Credit Government in its determination to free its people from bank-created poverty has accomplished one splendid thing that will furnish the key to the whole fight against banker-domination in Canada, which is only just beginning in one small corner of Canada—a fight that will spread all over the Dominion like a prairie fire in a very short while, now it's started. The Alberta Government has found out definitely where the Mackenzie King Government stands. It stands for the most powerful and dangerous special-privilege group in this Dominion—the group of money-controllers whose policy is the sole cause of Poverty in this land of Plenty. They control not only money but by their use and control of money have managed to control everything else that matters, including all governments—except the Alberta Social Credit Government.

Douglas says the Ottawa Government has made a major mistake by disallowance of Alberta's bank legislation. It is a major mistake for Ottawa, because it is exactly what the Douglas strategy had planned for—to put Ottawa on the spot. It could not have succeeded more beautifully. It is a mistake for three chief reasons:

First, Because the Ottawa Government gave away its position as fighting the battles of the banks instead of leaving it to the banks themselves.

Second, Because, as the historic Aberhart telegram states, the Mackenzie King Government has raised an issue which "saddles your government with full responsibility for producing a most serious constitutional crisis".

Third, Because the King Government has dragged the issue out of Alberta and made it a Dominion issue. It has started a prairie fire destined to spread all over Canada at a time when the people, fed up by hard times and continuous financial frustration, are only too ready to jump on the banks as the chief conspirators against their welfare.

But was it a major mistake?
