Prof. Albert J. Kelly, of the Mc Gill University observatory, last hints as to how a thermomete should be properly placed for ac-curate readings. Outdoor thermometers are notoriously variable as is amply demonstrated on any particularly cold day in winter or hot day in summer.

REG'LAR FELLERS—In the Bag

Undergoing extensive training in the various phases of modern war-fare, men of the First Division of the C. A. S. F. are rapidly being whip-ped into readiness for the time when they may be needed for action in France. Men of the Toronto Scottish are shown here putting on a very realistic exhibition as they engage in field bayonet practice at the training camp in England. As in the last war, the Canadian troops will maintain their identity of fighting units during their training period and later in the field.
