Nazis Keep Norwegian Patriots On Short Rations

It becomes increasingly eviden as more and more reports come in from occupied Norway, that the Germans and quislings are mak ance of the "Home Front" by keeping the patriots on short re-tions. Members of the Nasjons Samling (Quisling Party) always have enough to eat, while their countrymen who refuse to give up their loyalty and patriotism go hungry.

Special counters are set up by German orders in many stores in Oslo and the other large towns in Norway—one counter for the Germans, another for the quislings, mans, another for the quisings, and the third, mostly empty, for the patriots. Other shops and restaurants are set aside for the use of the Germans only. By plundering the larders and keeping the No wegians to a bare with the Commans always. minimum, the Germans always have enough to eat.

Already quisling leaders have threatened that unless the Norvegians come over to the "New Order," blindly follow their great "Fuehrer" Quisling, and work for the "enlightenment" of the country (that is slave willingly for the Germans), "the bread basket will be hoisted even higher." It is obvious therefore that the bribe of extra food is being used to in-duce these patriots to join the Nasjonal Samling, and thereby increase the strength of the party. managed with the fork.

But even though food is becoming more scarce, and Norwegians are faced with a winter of suffering, they will not resort to this method, and thereby jeopardize the strength of the "Home Front."

Campaign Opens Britain's 8th Army Starts

Offensive Action in Libya

Grinding their way through the bottleneck that is Egypt's Alamein battle line, Britain's cosmo-politan 8th Army has launched the seventh straight campaign of the North African front which has seen blood soaked up by the wind blown sands of the desert all the way from El Agheila on the Bay f Sirte to within 80 miles of Alexandria.
The fluctuating struggle thus has raced east and west along a straight line of 800 miles, each succeeding campaign varying only in detail and components from the previous. This time, the 8th Army is confident, and, under Lieut-Gen. Bernard Law Montgomery's order to "destroy Rom-mel and his army," is aiming for the storied shores of Italian Tripoli, clearing the dark continent's northern shores to the border o Vichy-controlled Tunisia.

Action first broke out on the desert in the fall of 1940. The French North African army was immobilized after the Petainist capitulation and Italian Marshal Graziani marched across the iightly held Egyptian-Libyan bor der. Britsih units fell back to Sida Barrani, on the Egyptian coast, and there held up the Italian advance—and held up, too, the lorries loaded with Mussolini statues which were to be planted as victory mementos. In December of 1940, Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell sent his Army of the Nile into the Italian lines

Roads To Victory In This War After the swift conquest of Po-lend, Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium and France many people, says the New York Times, began to assume that Germany had come-how changed the fundamental laws of warfare. They believed that because of the application of the gas engine to military uses in the all and on the ground, the great con lict would be won or lost solely in terms of German "Blitz." To day we can recognize that this is a misconception. Both sides have newer and deadlier weapons than they had in 1939 and 1940. But there are no new and easy roads to victory.
