Saving In Clips and Pins No Reason For Merit Mark

Most Canadians will agree with an editorial in last Friday's Toronto Globe and Mail that if our Government wants merit marks in economy except to expect them from a régime, and the Ottawa where it is clothes on the various department had try to curtail inter-departmental correspondence and save desk pins and paper clips. As is pointed out, there is no business in the country that has not cut down on office expenditures of more importance than this, and if the Government cannot do better it should keep quiet.

We have frequently wondered ourselves who is doing the saving in this country. Who is saving the scrap and doing without things?

The need for scrap iron is great, but we have been told by those who have been there that there is enough scrap iron in Camp Borden to make a good many materials of war—old tanks and the like piled up all over the place.

Canadians, however, should not get the idea this country is the only one that seems to be this way. A letter writer in the Christian Science Monitor, published at Boston, Mass., complains that at Fort Lewis, Washington, there are 5,000 or more scrapped army cars, many late models ranging all the way from "jeeps" to staff cars. These cars were scrapped because of the failure of one part or another and now cover "acre after acre of ground" as they stand in the open with their tires rotting and metal rusting. They are not even jacked up, and the correspondent thinks the waste is appalling.

The common everyday mill-run of Canadian citizens are asked by their Government to conserve and are doing so. But what of the Government and the army of enforcement officials? They should be showing the way. And the first evidence we have had that they are in an order to conserve desk pins and paper clips! Is it any wonder people are beginning to ask questions?

It has been suggested that because Canada's big radio hook-up is Government-owned, this may have something to do with it. Even the Government does not care to offend its patrons. At any rate, there is altogether too much advertising in this country which, if not deliberate falsehood, is misleading.—Durham Chronicle.

TRAVERSTON

Sun dogs on Monday morn. brought Tuesday weather into scorn. Luxton Barrie of Harkaway spent the week-end with Raymond Edwards. They hunted all day Saturday, scared many partridges and captured only a wee rabbit.

R. E. Bryans had a quartet of fellows on Monday and got his wood shed just shingled in time. 'Twas spitting raindrops as they finished.

There was a rousing big crowd at the shower for Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Peart on Friday evening. The old stone home was full to overflowing and a merry time was spent. They were the recipients of many useful and appropriate gifts. The wedding cake was extra good. We know, because a generous piece was sent to us.

A telegram message came to our home on Saturday announcing the death of Mrs. Frank Tufts (Margaret Edge) of Fontana, California, on Friday morning of last week. She was a younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elias Edge of this farm. Attended No. 5 school here, also Markdale senior class and later Walkerton High School and Ottawa Normal. She taught one year at Dobbington and two years at the Rocky. Later went to Detroit and in 1889 was happily wedded to Mr. Frank Tufts of Royal Oak. Three sons and one daughter were born of the union, William, Frances and Marion and Gladys. The two younger sons graduated from Ann Arbor College and occupy good positions. Some years ago Miss Gladys and her parents moved to Fontana, Cal., as the damp climate of Detroit was undermining his health. He passed on two years ago and Mrs. Tufts, who had lived a strenuous life in Detroit, began to fail in strength and of late months was an invalid. Miss Gladys is left alone, the sons living in Detroit. They have visited our home quite often and are ambitious and progressive fellows. Of a family of ten, only two remain, our better half, Mrs. R. T. Edwards, and Mrs. L. T. Spencer of Napanee.

TWO YOUNG MEN

with faith in themselves

BEFORE the war, two young graduates in chemistry faced the future with no assets but technical training and unbounded faith in themselves. They planned to capitalize on their years in college by manufacturing a certain chemical product. "But we'll need some money to get started," they said. "Let's put it up to the bank."

Their banker decided that their faith was well founded in character, ability, energy. "We'll finance you to start in a small way," he said. "Make a test on the local market first."

Presently the product was being sold all over Canada and exported to the United States and overseas. Now it fills a wartime demand. The enterprise employs a large number of people.

This actual example illustrates how this country's Chartered Banks help credit-worthy people to benefit themselves, their fellows and their country under the democratic system of free enterprise.

Banks, like any other business, exist because they provide service which a community needs and is willing to pay for at a rate which will yield a reasonable profit. Chartered Bank profits average less than one-half of one per cent a year on total assets. Few, if any, other businesses operate on as small a margin.
