ANALYSIS OF LIFE Every day more people find out that life is what you make it -Kitchener Record

Dutch Seacaptain Outwits Germans

A high official of the Pan-Amer ican Lines vouches for this story of a Dutch captain of a seagoing deered when the Germans tool Holland, writes Walter Winchell His task, the Nazis informed him would be to tow a string of barge ioaded with German soldiers out into the turbulent Channel each day so that they could get used to seasickness, in preparation for the coming invasion of England, Day after day he cheerfully escorted his unhappy cargo to the most violent parts of the Channel, got Finally the captain suggested to not have the soldiers get used to ing them out at night instead of in the daytime?" They agreed. Next night, the captain took out his string of six barges, towed coast to ensure their capture and cot them loose. Then he made for the open sea and reached Bermuda, where he now quietly plies the mouth of the Vardar Vailey, has been transformed into a formidable strongpoint.

Munitions and Fuel Stored Similar work is going on in Thrace, Macedonia, Serbia, Al-Dalmatian coast. Neither has the Nazi defense program neglected such European island-outposts as Sardinia, Crete, and the Dodeca

Weapons, ammunition and motor fuel are being transported in large quantities to all strategic points. Except for gasoline, the not as heavy as one might pre-sume. The booty from early Nazi conquests now comes in handy. Large caliber artillery pieces from former Czechoslovakian border fortifications and the French Maginot Line are now in position However, all this extensive work does not mean the German High Command contemplates de-fending the whole of Europe, Such a proposition is ruled out by sheer lack of manpower. Most of the newly built defenses are intended to delay rather than to stave off the attacker.

Areas of Abandonment Moreover, it is reasonable assume that German plans envisage the abandonment of con-siderable parts of Europe. In this category belong Sardinia, Italy Croatia, Montenegro, Albania, Greece, and even some portions of Bulgaria.

In the North, Norway, Finland,

Latvia are likely to be written off. The same applies to a goodly por Holland and Luxemburg can be expected to be defended with e. reme tenacity.

Thus, the innermost fortress wall, that is, the line where the Nazis will throw in every last bit of their strength, runs roughly from the Dutch-Belgian border region southeastward, protecting the Ruhr Valley, then southward somewhat iuside France to Besancon, skirting the Swiss frontier including Lyon, and from there taking a sharp turn to the East along the Alps, through Austria, then through the Yugoslav mountains southward to Nish, and northward along the Carpathians up to Cernauti and either via Brest-Litovsk to Memel, or taking the Pripet Marshes in its stride, up to the Dvina River and to Riga

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING

AMMONIA GOES TO WAR Ammonia, common to the house hold for cleaning woodwork, tiles and windows; to the first-aid kit as a stimulant, and to the ice factory as a refrigerant, is an indispensable war material, says "Scientific American." There are at least 2,000 industrial uses for this chemical. Animonia, for instance, is an ingredient basic to the manufacture of shells and cartridges. It hardens metals for vital parts of airplanes, tanks and guns. It helps vulcanize important rubber articles. It is used in making nylon. It enters into the manufacture of fertilizers. It is emmanufacture of "Lucite" methyl gun turrets; navigation "blisters," nd other transparent sections of fighting airplanes.

Synthesized by Du Pont and others from the elements of air and water with the aid of coal, ammonia simply is one part nitro-gen chemically combined with three parts of hydrogen.

Ammonia plus oxygen produces nitric acid. Furthermore, nitric acid enters into the manufacture of cellulose nitrate plastics, which have many military applications.
Gaseous ammonia flowing across heated steel under proper conditions imparts a hard, wear resistant surface over the soft core without changing the dimensions of the metal. This process, called "nitriding," is necessary to tanks, guns and ships. Ammonia helps in refining pet-roleum products. Crude petroleum contains acid harmful to stills. the addition of small amounts ammonia. In fertilizers, ammonia is used monia and caroon dioxide, is basic to the manufacture of ammonium sulfamate, the new industrial chemical used for flame proofing workmen's clothes, uniforms, and other textiles. Urea formaldehyde plastics have numerous military applications.

Anmonia is used in the manu facture of vat dyes, and in wool scouring to remove fats, waxes and dirt. Long and varied is the list of achievements of this relatively inconspicuous chemical. "It Can't Be Done"

The New Wing: Built In 1377!

Lord Crangoren, the ex-Minister of Colonies and Britain's Lord Pricy Seal, recently was visited at his home in Cranborne by a young American who recited his geneology-tracing his American ancestry back to the Mayflower days. "Come with me. I want to show you this house," Lord Cranboren interrupted. "Now take this part-this is the new wing." "The NEW wing?" asked the American: "It looks so old." "It was built in 1377," the host informed, "but nevertheless — it's the new wing." — Leonard Lyons in The New York Post.
