Political Democracy Found Wanting

by E. S. Rutledge

Political democracy in North America is a national ideal. Free assembly, the franchise and parliament give it fibre and equipoise, and yet how inept and sadly deficient it proves in the practical and economic sphere. What a travesty our politico-democracy in the 1930-1940 decade, but let us hope economic democracy may be born out of that catastrophe. Our political democracy spells liberty, but the economic phase so essential has been devoid of plan, with the results we have seen. A planned economy at the base is imperative and "free enterprise" without controls has been tried and found wanting. For too many who have profited by it have not recognized their responsibility.

How many thousands in this broad land whose personal liberty in the past decade has amounted to no more than the liberty to live in poverty and die in debt. Unemployment, "mother-hubbard cupboards," while full granaries across this broad land doesn't recommend very highly our political democracy.

Dorothy Thompson well says: "The theory that each individual and group seeking its own ends and purposes would result in a true welfare society has been exploded."

And Bruce Hutchison says: "A new era is being born. Both the Old Deal and the New Deal have failed."

Our capitalistic democracy isn't good enough and will have to be revamped. It is a great charter of liberty, but it cannot equitably distribute the national income. Shall we permit a recurrence of that blasé picture of 40-cent wheat in 1932? I hope never again as many are hoping, but where any definite formula to prevent it?

However, we are learning a little out of the exigencies of war. We are learning through the school of Wartime Prices and Trade Board, that our free enterprise system doesn't function good enough in war time, and it is to be hoped that the rod of discipline required now may not be discarded when the war is over, for it is going to be needed—make no mistake about that.

And yet we are regaled, almost daily, through the press about the new day coming after the war. But what new day is this and how is it coming—we would like to know. Wishful thinking isn't going to change things, and the people who have a comfortable station in life are not eager to change things. What everybody seems to want is that the whoopee of the war shall continue. At any rate, says a correspondent, "It is idle to talk of the return of prosperity if it only means that those who have steady employment and money will again be able to make more for themselves."

But again the query persists: Why should there be a depression in this great new land with its amazing potentialities? And the conviction also holds that we cannot have genuine prosperity with the existing dislocated economy, and we will be obliged to change things, otherwise our country must take the toboggan of defeat and discredit.

But at any rate, we must declare with all the emphasis at our command that the story of the "thirties" shall not be repeated with its record of unemployment, mal-distribution of wealth and income, and a sub-standard of living for one-half the people.

What we have is an economy for the privileged and protected groups, and what we want is an economy that will equitably distribute the national income. For, says a noted statistician, that is all the problem there is to "unemployment."

And says P. M. Richards, a noted writer on the old and new order: "We can be fairly sure that, for many years to come, we are going to have a larger measure of state direction of our economy and our social system that we had before the war. The problem is, can we manage to combine with it a measure of freedom of individual introductory sufficient to ensure a continuance of the progress enjoyed under our old-time democracy."

VANDELEUR

The Women's Association held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. Howard Graham on Wednesday afternoon of last week with an attendance of about forty. The roll call was answered by "Your Favorite Hymn". It was decided to hold a bazaar in the church on Friday, June 25th. Lunch was served by the hostess and Mrs. John Morrison. Quite a number from here attended the Grey County Shorthorn Breeders' Sale at Chatsworth on June 3rd.

A team, composed of members of the staff of the Power House in the Valley, will give a demonstration in resuscitation and first aid in electric shock and drowning at the next meeting of the Women's Institute at the home of Mrs. Dane McGee on Wednesday, June 23rd. Miss M. Dawn attended the funeral of her uncle, Rev. Silas McAuslan at Heathcote on Monday of last week.

Misses Kathleen and Nancy and Master John Milligan of Toronto are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lundy Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Shaw and Jimmie of Durham were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Boland and Dora.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Blair of Rocanville, Sask. and Miss Roberta Blair of Toronto and Mr. W. R. Burnett of Markdale were callers on Mr. and Mrs. Howard Graham and Ruth.

Mrs. J. J. McGee is visiting relatives in the community. Miss Myrtle Fawcett is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ethel Hutchinson.

American industry was well-equipped to cope with her own huge war requirements largely because of the vast British orders which had built it up before Pearl Harbour.
