SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 17
JESUS AND THE SABBATH
Exodus 20:8-11; Isaiah 58:13, 14; Mark 2:23, 27

GOLDEN TEXT—And He said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. Mark 2:27.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING
Time.—The Ten Commandments were delivered in 1445 B.C.; the prophecy taken from Isaiah was spoken about 698 B.C.; the words here quoted from our Lord were uttered in the early summer of A.D. 28.
Place.—The Ten Commandments were given on Mount Sinai; Isaiah's prophecy, in Jerusalem; our Lord's discourse on the Sabbath took place not far from Capernaum.

The Holy Sabbath Day
"Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." This day was set aside for the worship of God that men might not forget their Creator.

"Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work; but the seventh day is a sabbath unto Jehovah thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy stranger nor the stranger that is within thy gates." While we faithfully reserve the Lord's Day for worship and rest we must also not compel others to work on the sabbath day.

Sabbath and the Creation
"For in six days Jehovah made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested on the seventh day: wherefore Jehovah blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it." The sabbath is separated from other days and should be a day of joy and gladness, of rest and refreshment for body, mind and soul.

Joy in the Sabbath
"If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the sabbath a delight, and the holy of Jehovah honorable; and shalt honor it, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words." We are to seek and do God's pleasure, not our own, on His day. We should seek the good of others, not our own. We are to speak His word, not our own, for the day should be used for His glory, not for self glory.

God's Promises
"Then shalt thou delight thyself in Jehovah; and I will make thee to ride upon the high places of the earth; and I will feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it." If we delight to do God's bidding and observe the Sabbath we will find increased joy in the existence and service of the Lord. The thought of victory, prosperity and security is undoubtedly implied.

Jesus and the Sabbath
"And it came to pass, that he was going on the sabbath day through the grain fields, and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck ears. And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful?" The disciples were charged with a breach of the sabbath law which forbade working. Reaping was a forbidden work and under reaping was included the gathering of a few ears of corn.

"And he said unto them, Did ye never read what David did, when he had seed, and was hungry, he, and they that were with him? How he entered into the house of God when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the showbread, which it is not lawful to eat save for the priests, and gave also to them that were with him." Since David's action was not condemned it proved that, in urgent cases, human need was to come first. So the necessity of the disciples justified them in doing on the Sabbath what would have been otherwise against the law.

Man's Day of Rest
"And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath." The sabbath was not made to bring about a state of suffering, but to provide for man's rest and communion with God.

Miracle on the Sabbath
"And he entered again into the synagogue; and there was a man there who had his hand withered . . . and he stretched it forth; and his hand was restored." Christ scornfully dismissed the Pharisees' question. To Him to cause a man to suffer longer than is necessary is an evil thing. "They held their peace." In their silence they confessed their hypocrisy and cowardice. Christ looked upon his critics with grief and anger. Though angry He grieved for them. Anger, as righteousness against evil is justified but it must be tempered with compassion for those who have offended.

In this case Jesus did not even touch the man. The sufferer showed courage in standing forth among the hostile Pharisees, but the faith that made him stretch forth his dead hand and attempt the impossible was greater still.

KIEV: RUSSIANS RETURN TO UKRAINE CAPITAL

Kiev and the Dnieper . . . The Russians can see the gilt church domes.

Kiev street . . . as the Russians left it in 1941.

Kiev, metropolis on the Dnieper and capital of the rich Ukraine, had been in German hands just two years to the day when September 22 dispatches told of the Russian advance to within sight of the city's glistening church domes. Kiev is the third city of Russia—Moscow and Leningrad alone are more populous. How many of its 850,000 people have survived the two years of Nazi terror will be revealed when Soviet forces march back down the city's broad, modern streets, left. A centre of agriculture, industry, and cattle raising, Kiev is built on a cliff overlooking the Dnieper. This lofty position commanding the broad plains to the east, above, may give to the Nazis a last defensive advantage.

A FARM WIFE CHATS TO WOMEN

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

If you ever find yourself taking part in a quiz program and the question is asked: "What are the stupidest creatures on a farm?" take it from me, you need have no hesitation in answering: "Hens and chickens!" I am sure anyone who lives on a farm will agree with me but those who don't may wonder why. Well, I'll tell you.

Hens and chickens absolutely refuse to co-operate when you try to make them more comfortable. They will come back again and again to the first home they knew—the brooder house. You can shut them out and chase them off to the nice new airy pen you have prepared for them and in half an hour they will all be back to the brooder house, squatting around outside if they can't get inside.

Several weeks ago when our brooder house became too crowded we took the roosters away and put them in another pen. Partner said, "I guess if we keep them shut up for a day or two and then let them out again they will go back all right." But I gave a disgusted sort of grunt in anticipation of what I was sure would happen. And it did.

brooder house. While Partner was milking I had the grand job of catching and carrying fifty-one roosters back to where they belonged.

Then we have a pen of yearling hens up in the barn. They have been shut up in that same pen over six months. Then came moulting time and we thought it might do the hens good to have the run of the farm for a while. So we let the hens out. Did they go back to their pen at night? Well, about half of them. The others went to roost all over the place—down in the stable, on the manure spreader, in another henpen, and even in the brooder house from which I had so recently chased the roosters to make more room for the pullets. This went on for about three weeks. Finally I went the rounds one night and carried the hens back to their pen. And believe me when I was through with the job I said to those biddies very emphatically as I shut the door, "Now you can just stay there!"

We also have trouble, but of a different kind, with the pullets. They would much rather sleep on the floor than on the roosts. After the roosters had been taken away there was plenty of room for all the pullets to roost in comfort. But would they do it? In the daytime, yes. But at night half of them were on the roosts and the other half hunched up together on the floor. I tried picking them up and putting them on the roost. But that was no good. As fast as I put one bird up another jumped down. So I tried to outwit them. The next night I collected old stove pipes and odd ends of wire net-

A Nice Salvage Job On Bomber

Fortress Forced Down Files Out of Small Field

Salvage of ships and cargoes is common around the British Isles, but a nice job of salvage was done recently on land when a big Flying Fortress bomber had to make a forced landing when returning from an operation over Germany. The bomber came to rest unharmed in a small field surrounded by trees. There seemed no way of getting the plane out except by taking it to pieces which would have meant a long job of rebuilding. But, said an American colonel of Engineers, if the Air Corps got it here the Engineers can get it out.

So his men got to work with bulldozer, grader, caterpillar and dump trucks. They built a road through the trees, removed a wall and row of hedges extending 120 feet, and made a runway about 800 yards long. As an additional safety factor they cleared 1,000 feet of fields at the end of the runway and compacted it.

Then with about 3,250 feet of clear space the Fortress was tuned up and away she went.

Speediest of swimmers, the saltfish can travel at a speed of 68 miles an hour.
